First-Offence Users

Marijuana Penalty Easing Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government plans legislation, in the session of Parliament resuming Tuesday, to lighten the penalty for first-offender marijuana users, informants say.

The bill could be introduced by Justice Minister John Turner within a month or two. No change is contemplated in stiff penalties for those who sell marijuana.

Present law requires that any person found illegally in possession of an illegal drug be sentenced to a minimum six months in jail. The maximum sentence is up to seven years.

WITH OPIUM

The law states that courts have no power to impose "less than the minimum penalty" for such offences.

It lists marijuana along with such other drugs as opium and cocaine.

The bulk of the known legislative program was forecast at the Sept. 12 opening of the 28th Parliament. And most of that was a hangover from the pre-Trudeau era of Lester Pearson.

42 STILL TO GO

Of the 52 pieces of legislation forecast at the opening or introduced later, 10 gained parliamentary approval, leaving 42 to be dealt with by MPs who broke Dec. 20 for the Christmas recess.

The government is expected to assign high priority to the drug bill aimed at reducing prices through more open competition and the omnibus Criminal Code bill relaxing restrictions on abortion and homosexuality, among other things.

Some tax increases arising from the Oct. 22 fall budget have yet to be approved by Parliament. The government may add to the legislation items including housing amendments arising from the fall inquiry headed by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

Judy Admits Trudeau Good Prime Minister

TORONTO (UPI) — Former secretary of state Judy LaMarsh, who has often feuded publicly with Prime Minister Trudeau, conceded Thursday night that he was a "pretty good prime minister."

Miss LaMarsh said in a television interview that her former boss, Lester Pearson, was "too permissive" to be a good government leader. She said members of Pearson's cabinet "loved him and would do anything for him" but did not universally respect him as a leader.

She said Trudeau, on the other hand, was a good leader because he was "a bit of a bastard."

"In my view," she added, "Mr. Trudeau ought to be happy that he has this qualification.

"As a matter of fact," she said, "I think he's a pretty good prime minister."

Worried Lebanon May Rein Raiders

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) —Premier-designate Rashid Karami said Thursday he will give Israel no excuse for attacking Lebanon. But Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan warned in Jerusalem that Arab guerrilla bases on Lebanese soil are open to assault.

Karami told a news conference that Israel is using guerrilla activities as a pretext for attacking its neighbors and added: "we will give them no pretext."

But he defended what he called the right of Palestinian guerrillas to defend their own land.

NO EXCUSE PROVIDED

"I do not think anyone can say that that is not their right," he said.

Asked whether Lebanon would permit Arab guerrillas to operate from its soil he said Beirut will not provide Israel an excuse for mounting an attack, but declared that no one can expect Lebanon to act as policemen for the Israelis.

INTOLERABLE

In Jerusalem, Dayan said Israel "cannot tolerate a situation whereby we are forbidden to hit the sabotage organizations across the border while they are permitted to operate against us."

"We regard each Arab government as responsible for the acts of these organizations, and we have the right to deal them blows in their own territory."

FORM GOVERNMENT

President Charles Helou of Lebanon asked the 47-year-old Karami to form a government to succeed that of Abdullah Yafi which resigned Tuesday as a result of Israel's unchallenged commando raid against Beirut International Airport Dec. 28.

Karami spent the day consulting with political leaders with a view to forming a government as widely representative as possible.

SEES NO CHANGE

Karami, who has served seven previous terms as Lebanon's premier, said he foresaw no change in the country's basic policy.

"I think it is wrong to say Lebanon is neutral in the Arab-Israeli conflict because the threat is against us as against all Arab states. Israel's policy is one of expansion and aggression."

WON'T COURT REPRISALS

Karami, who headed an Arab nationalist uprising here in 1958 which led to the landing of U.S. marines, has been regarded as more a hawk than Yafi.

His latest statement, however, suggested that while Lebanon would continue to give Arab guerrillas moral suport it would be unwilling to court reprisal raids by permitting them to use this country as a base.

Unidentified man runs to car driving astronauts, Vice-President Humphrey

'It Really Is a Small Planet'

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson, paying tribute to the Apollo 8 astronauts, said Thursday they "represented all mankind" in their historic voyage around the moon.

The space trio received medals from the president in a White House ceremony and standing ovations from a joint meeting of Congress where Col. Frank Borman described the Apollo mission as a "triumph of mankind."

The astronauts go to New York today for a traditional ticker tape parade reserved for heroes.

SERVICE MEDAL

Johnson decorated Borman, Capt. James A. Lovell, Jr., and Lt.-Col. William A. Anders with the Distinguished Service Medal of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

He called them "history's boldest explorers" and said they had "blazed a new trail for mankind out into the vastness of extra-terrestrial space."

From the White House, the astronauts motored to the House of Representatives where members of the Senate and House, the cabinet and the Supreme Court cheered the smiling astronauts.

BRAVE LADS

House Speaker John W. McCormack, introduced them as "three brave lads who have made a notable contribution to our understanding of the exploration of space."

Borman, speaking for his fellow Apollo 8 crew members, said they had often been asked what was the most unforgettable impression of their flight.

He said: "I think the one overwhelming emotion that we had was when we saw the earth

Three Men Chosen For Moon Landing

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. space agency Thursday named astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin A. Aldrin to the Apollo 11 crew—the American team that will have the first chance of landing on the moon.

Armstrong, a civilian, was named Apollo 11 commander. Collins, a U.S. Air Force lieutenant - colonel, was named command pilot and Aldrin, an air force colonel, was selected lunar module pilot.

If they make the historic moon landing trip, Armstrong and Aldrin would drop to the lunar surface in the lunar module while Collins circled the moon in the main Appollo ship.

All three are space veterans.

Armstrong commanded the nearly disastrous Gemini 8 flight in 1966, which he flew with Lt.-Col. David Scott.

Collins took a space walk on the Gemini 11 flight in 1966, and originally was assigned to the Apollo 8 moon orbit mission. But a spinal operation knocked him off that assignment last summer, and he was replaced by Capt. James A. Lovell Jr.

Aldrin took a space walk on Gemini 12, in which he flew with Lovell.

'Peace — And Money'

PARIS (CP) — Foreign Minister Michel Debre Thursday night attacked countries that he said are voting at the United Nations for peace in the Middle East with one hand, "while getting money, the product of their arms sales, with the other."

It was his explanation, in part, for France's decision to stop all arms shipments to Israel.

Debre also cited French interests as an important consideration, pointing to France's desire to maintain economic and cultural relations with Arab states.

He also said France believes that Israel has the right to exist, the right to security and the right to the normal guarantees of international law.

But he stressed: "If the Recognition

Sweden Nods To Hanoi

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Neutral Sweden Friday will become the first West European nation to extend full diplomatic recognition to Communist North Vietnam, diplomatic sources said Thursday.

The decision, seen in some quarters here as an act of support for Hanoi and the Viet Cong at the stalemated Paris Vietnam talks, was expected to be taken officially at a cabinet meeting Friday.

North Vietnamese Premier Pha Van Dong told the Social Democratic Stockholm paper Aftonbladet in an interview earlier this week that Swedish recognition was "of great importance" to his government.

CONFIRMED

Sweden also maintains formal diplomatic relations with South Vietnam but no Swedish ambassador is currently accredited in Saigon.

The story of the reported Swedish decision was circulated by the usually well-informed Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter. A foreign ministry spokesman had no comment but it was confirmed by diplomatic sources in the capital.

The sources said Sweden's ambassador to Peking, Lennart Petri, is expected to be accredited as ambassador to Hanoi as well, pending the establishment of a Swedish diplomatic mission in the North Vietnamese capital.

While such a move would make Sweden the first nation in Western Europe to accord full diplomatic recognition to Hanoi, the French have a lower-ranking mission there and Britain also has a foreign office official serving in North Vietnam.

British Won't Budge

● Canada will remain in NATO for year at least. Page 12.

LONDON (CP) — African delegates to the Commonwealth conference Thursday renewed their criticism of British policy on Rhodesia but without the loud bitterness they showed at the last such meeting two years ago.

The British stuck to their established position on the thorny issue and insisted that sanctions rather than force are the key to toppling the rebel Rhodesian government of Ian Smith.

Prime Minister Trudeau backed the principle of no independence for Rhodesia before majority African rule—Nibmar—as theoretically and morally the best solution.

NO GUARANTEE

He also termed unacceptable the proposals made to Smith by Britain aboard HMS Fearless last year because, he said, they contained no real guarantee of majority rule.

But Trudeau added that if Nibmar proved impossible there must be a search for a solution which works. He rejected use of military force in Rhodesia.

The Canadian leader said Canada would object to any alternative to Nibmar which does not contain a guarantee of African majority rule.

Canadian Arnold Smith, Commonwealth secretary-general, told reporters after the Thursday session that there had been

Packing Plant Blazes In 25-Below Weather

EDMONTON (CP) — A 5½-hour fire fought by a third of the 600 men in Edmonton's fire department severely damaged the five-storey Swift Canadian Company Limited meat-packing plant in the northeast part of the city Thursday.

Firemen were rotated in shifts so that they would not have to spend long periods out in the 25-below weather. The blaze was reported "out" at 9:25 p.m.

For NDP Leadership

Third Hat in Ring

By IAN STREET

Legislative Reporter

Robert Arthur Williams, a 35-year-old town planner from Vancouver, became the third MLA to toss his hat into the ring in the contest to elect a successor to Robert Strachan as provincial leader of the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Williams told a press conference here he could "happily live with" the choice of either of his fellow MLAs, Tom Berger and Dave Barrett, as party leader. But he added he had entered the race because only two candidates might lead to polarization of political thinking within the NDP.

"There is every likelihood that the delegates to the NDP convention this spring will not just be picking a leader of the opposition, but more likely we will be picking the future premier," he said.

"The choice for the delegates therefore must be as broad as possible and must not be limited for parochial or partisan reasons. That is one reason I am now in this race. I also think I can win — but winning is not enough. We must show those outside the party that we in fact are ready to govern."

Mr. Williams attacked the government for its "Applachian thinking" on such issues as controls over strip mining and pollution.

"We are still taking the rudimentary early American route towards development of this province. We haven't even learned what the Americans have learned in Appalachia about the tremendous environment problems and waste of resources that these policies bring."

He praised Mr. Strachen, who announced last October after more than 12 years as leader of the opposition he would step down as party leader in favor of a younger man, and said the party's 55-year-old elder statesman should remain an MLA so that could he serve in the first NDP cabinet.

Mr. Williams said he decided a month ago to enter the race but delayed his announcement in order to make sure that he had sufficient support. He was asked to run for the party leadership by Mrs. Eileen Dailly, MLA for Burnaby North, William Hartley, MLA for Yale-Lillooet, and former MLAs Arthur Turner and Mrs. Dorothy Steeves.

He also received unanimous endorsement for his bid from the executive of the Vancouver East NDP constituency association.

Alex Macdonald, deputy provincial leader and the other member of the legislature with Mr. Williams for Vancouver East, is supporting Mr. Barrett in the leadership race.

A successor to Mr. Strachan will be chosen at the NDP annual convention in the Hotel Vancouver next April 11-13. The other candidates are Mr. Barrett, 38-year-old social worker and MLA for Coquitlam and 35-year-old Vancouver lawyer Tom Berger, MLA for Burrard.

"significant differences of opinion" over Rhodesia.

Other sources said there were no threats of withdrawals from the Commonwealth as a result of these differences.

The Fearless proposals are considered by the British to allow legal independence for Rhodesia before achievement of black majority rule but with provisions which would guarantee progress towards such rule.

During conference discussion of the matter, Trudeau asked British Prime Minister Wilson to be explicit in his explanations of the proposals. Wilson termed this a hypothetical question.

In dealing with Rhodesia at a Thursday press luncheon, the Canadian leader said that "if we concentrate too much on the past we will fail to solve the problems of the future." He said the Commonwealth should "not invest all energies in the past but accept some situations as regrettable and see how you can prevent their development in future."

'RATIONAL'

Delegates at the Commonwealth discussion of Rhodesia did not resort to "attacking one another," Arnold Smith said. Canadians sources called the session "phenomenally rational and low-keyed."

Another official of the secretariat said discussion of possible use of force—a course broached in the past by some of Rhodesia's neighbors—was not a significant feature of the Thursday session.

Descriptions of the discussion by witnesses spoke of its being much more moderate than the sharp controversy which flared over British policy at the 1966 Commonwealth conference in Lagos.

"There wasn't an atmosphere of hour-to-hour crisis," said Smith, who added that "everyone is in favor of the effecting of sanctions to the maximum possible extent."

Yet the Africans pressed Wilson with the contention that there is inconsistency between the Fearless proposals and Nibmar.

And they asked Wilson pointedly why there seemed to be so much hurry on his part to bring about a settlement along the lines suggested aboard HMS Fearless.

CONTINUES TODAY

Conference discussion on the issue was scheduled to continue today. Arnold Smith spoke of a possible Saturday meeting of delegation officials aimed at drafting the terms of a communique on the subject.

He added it is too soon to say whether the conference will reach agreement on Rhodesia.

Thursday's discussion included "substantive" statements—considered separate from requests for clarification—from a total of 16 delegation leaders.

Australian Prime Minister John Gorton reaffirmed his government's opposition to use of force.

Your Good Health

Fruit, Vegetables Helpful

By G. T. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A doctor has told me I am allergic to orange juice. It gives me blotches and makes my tongue feel like it has been burned. I have to have the orange juice to keep me from being constipated. Is there any other juice I could take? — Mrs. E. M.

Prune juice (or whole prunes) is very effective. I doubt that orange juice is the only way to prevent your constipation. There are other ways. Adequate fruit and vegetables in the diet will give you bulk as well as the useful vitamin content.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does mumps orchitis always cause sterility or does it depend on the severity of the case? — Mrs. K. E.

With mumps orchitis (that is when the mumps "goes down") the risk of sterility is high; all the same, it does not always occur.

I would call your attention to the fact that a good mumps vaccine is now available, as well as a test which will show whether a person has acquired protection (by an earlier attack of mumps). An adult male of reproductive age, who has not, to his knowledge, had mumps, is well-advised to have the skin test to make sure. If he lacks protection, then he can have the vaccine. In many instances, only one testicle may be affected. In such a case sterility is not a consequence.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After a checkup the gynecologist told me my uterus was backwards. To me this sounded serious but he brushed it off like it was an every-day thing. Is this normal for many women? Will I encounter difficulty in having children? —Mrs. J. C.

The uterus isn't exactly "backwards." It normally tilts forward, but in about 15 per cent of women there is a backward tilt, called retroversion of the uterus.

It is not a serious situation, ordinarily requires no treatment. If the tilt is extreme enough to cause symptoms of any kind, the uterus can be tilted forward surgically. Only rarely is it a cause of infertility; if you become pregnant you should have no difficulty.

French don't think first of their country, who will do it for them?"

As Debre spoke on a private radio station, a large group of young persons formed outside. They carried banners proclaiming French solidarity with Israel.

MUST PLAY PART

"The moment has come for the great powers to take an active role in resolving the Middle East affairs," Debre said.

"Are they going to stay impassive while, in six months, the solution will be more difficult than today? Do they think that they can vote for a resolution in the Security Council with one hand while getting money, the product of their arms sales, with the other?"

This seemed to be a poke at both the United States and the Soviet Union, although Russia and France agree on the advisability of a Middle East Big Four conference.

HOPES FOR HALT

Asked about the delivery of Soviet arms to Arab states, Debre said he hopes there will be consultations to halt the shipment of arms.

Touching on charges that a spokesman for President de Gaulle brushed close to anti-Semitism in complaining about so-called "Israeli influence" in the French press, Debre commented:

"It is not defamatory to note that such pressure groups exist."

REFUND NOT ASKED

He said France had delivered no offensive arms to Arab nations since the end of the Middle East war in 1967.

Debre said France has received no demand from Israel for refund of money paid France for delivery of arms. He said if such a request was received normal commercial rule would be applicable. He did not elaborate.

rising in the distance over the lunar landscape. . . . It makes us realize that we all do exist on one small globe. For from 240,000 miles away it really is a small planet."

Borman said that within months man will land on the moon "and within a few years we may have international laboratories there."

"I'm convinced that it's no longer whether we'll do these things, it's how long it will take and how much we'll spend.

"Exploration is really the essence of the human spirit and I hope we never forget that."

Borman, who commanded the Apollo 8 mission, later was removed from flight status and was named to a NASA administrative post. He will become deputy director of flight crew operations at NASA's Manned Spacecraft Centre in Houston, Tex.

One of his first duties will be to help pick the crew to fly Apollo 11—the team likely to be the first to land on the moon.

The crews for Apollo 9, an earth orbit flight, and Apollo 10, another lunar orbit mission, already have been named. Both of these flights are planned to thoroughly check out the lunar module in which two astronauts are to ride to the moon's surface.

"I think that practically the atomic bomb cannot be used without damaging Israel itself."

Newspapers in Tel Aviv said Prime Minister Levi Eshkol wrote President Helou asking him to clamp down on Arab guerrillas, but the letter was rejected as improperly sent.

HANDED ON BORDER

The note was handed to Lebanese officials on the Israel-Lebanon border during a recent meeting between army officers of the two states, the reports said.

Two days later "a high ranking officer of the United Nations" brought it back to Israel, saying Lebanon demanded it be sent "through accepted channels," the reports said.

Officials Answer Nuclear Arms Claim:

Israel Lacks Financing

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel has the know-how but lacks the money to produce nuclear weapons, well informed official sources said Thursday.

They were commenting on a report by NBC television in New York Wednesday night saying Israel either has a nuclear bomb now or will have one very soon.

The Israeli sources greeted the NBC report with skepticism. They said Israel was already so heavily committed financially to conventional weapons that it "cannot afford to indulge in the dubious luxury of joining the nuclear club."

In London, authoritative defence sources corroborated the Tel Aviv reports. The London sources said Israel, India, Japan, Canada and Sweden "are all considered to have the know-how necessary to produce nuclear bombs in a comparatively short time, though the cost might be prohibitive."

Last October Prime Minister Levi Eshkol told a meeting of his constituents in his home settlement of Deganiya that Israel had the know-how to manufacture nuclear bombs but warned "from there to making them is a long way to go."

Eshkol said in the same speech that Israel was "in no hurry" to subscribe to the nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

"Why should Israel rush into signing the convention as long as the Arab states and the Soviet Union are represented on the supervisory body while Israel is not," Eshkol said.

Eshkol said he doubted the Soviet Union would be prepared to equip its Arab friends with nuclear weapons.

It is well known that during the protracted negotiations with the United States for the supply of 50 Phantom jet fighter-bombers, Washington brought strong pressure to bear on Jerusalem to sign the non-proliferation treaty.

The United States has agreed to supply the jets, but Israel has made no move to sign the treaty.

Earlier this week Israel announced a $2.2 billion budget with 37 per cent devoted to defence

Israel has two nuclear research establishments. One is at the Weizmann Institute at Rehovah, about 15 miles south of Tel Aviv, and the other at Dimona in the Negev.

Czech Union Demands Choice

PRAGUE (UPI) — The powerful Czech metal workers' union Thursday night served notice that it will not accept unquestioningly the replacement of parliament chairman Josef Smrkovsky by deputy premier Peter Colotka.

A union plenary session proposed that Smrkovsky and Colotka should be named dual candidates, the winner to be decided by assembly vote.

The national party presidium Tuesday named 44-year-old Colotka, a middle-of-the road Slovak with liberal leanings, as its choice for the key post.

The 900,000-member union pledged that if their proposal is taken into consideration, in view of the fact that the Slovak candidate (Colotka) is also progressive, we shall not consider a general strike justified.

Czechoslovak observers said the announcement could be interpreted as a face-saving gesture to allow the union to voice acceptance of Colotka without appearing to betray the Smrkovsky cause.

Giant Jets Call On Nearby Cong

SAIGON (UPI) — Giant B-52 bombers assigned to protect Saigon from another Tet offensive dropped 200,000 pounds of bombs Friday on red positions in pre-dawn raids closer to the capital than any since last October.

While other Stratofort flights roamed from the Mekong Delta to the northern provinces, B-52 pilots rained bombs on communist bunkers and base camps only 18 miles west of the capital.

The U.S. command Thursday reported 101 Americans were killed in Vietnam fighting last week, the lowest seven-day toll in nearly three months. Headquarters also said 10 Americans have been killed this week in the loss of three U.S. helicopters to communist gunfire.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong losses for last week were placed at 1,846 killed.

STARK CONTRAST

In stark contrast to the situation of a year ago, 5,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops were making a massive sweep toward the abandoned allied combat base at Khe Sanh in northwest South Vietnam.

South Vietnamese troops on penetration raids into the Forest of Darkness have killed 475 guerillas and discovered a 100-bed hospital and 11 prison camps, a government spokesman reported.

TWO-WEEK OPERATION

The troops destroyed 180 small barracks compounds and 16 engineering workshops during the two-week operation on the south-western coast of South Vietnam.

For years the dense forest, silent except for the shrilling of birds has been considered a haven for the Viet Cong, which are still holding American and South Vietnamese prisoners there.

Nguyen Thanh Le, Hanoi's chief delegation spokesman, said in Paris Thursday Saigon was "obstinately opposed to peace," was "hampering the Paris conference," and "wants the United States to prolong its aggressive war so that they continue their life as lackeys."

Huks

Guerrilla Force Blasted

MANILA (UPI) — Philippine troops reported killing 16 Communist Huk guerrillas in a prolonged overnight battle described as the biggest since the Huk rebellion was smashed 18 years ago. Five Huk field commanders were killed in the fight that ended at dawn today.

The battle in Bataan Province north of Manila began Thursday afternoon and lasted more than 13 hours when government troops surprised a meeting of Huk commanders and their supporters. The government troops used mortars and 77-mm rockets and were directed from the air by spotter planes.

Col. Vicente Baldin, operations chief of the central Luzon military zone near Manila, said 40 or 50 Huks believed to have survived the battle apparently slipped through the troop cordon.

President Ferdinand Marcos was so elated at the results of the operation he ordered one-rank battlefield promotions for all the estimated 400 officers and men involved.

Q. WHAT IS CONSIDERED THE BEST COLOR IN A DIAMOND?

A. Crystal-clear absence of any color in the body of a diamond is considered the finest quality. This is interior color, not the flashes of rainbow colors called "fire." Value falls as a tinge of yellow deepens the diamond in body color. Members of the American Gem Society use a number of scientific methods to determine the degree of yellow in each stone in order to set a proper value and quality grade. Come in soon and let us explain other pertinent points used by professional jewelers in determining diamond value.

Matter of Morals

THE CONFIRMATION of the 1967 embargo against delivery of Mirage jet fighter aircraft to Israel by General Charles de Gaulle has been called by one ranking Paris official "probably the worst mistake" of the French president's political career.

It is fruitless to conjecture on the reasoning behind the de Gaulle decision, but, charitably, let it be assumed he believes that by denying Israel air arms he is lessening the prospect of a renewal of hostilities in the explosive Middle East.

But how can the president possibly justify the freezing in France of the $100,000,000 paid by the Israeli government for the Mirage fighters?

The French government is surely bound, like any private contractor, to live up to an agreement to deliver goods ordered and paid for; and if, for one reason or another, it cannot honor its undertaking it must be obliged to restore whatever has been paid in good faith—in this case, the full amount of the contract.

It is true that General de Gaulle announced the embargo against delivery of the aircraft 18 months ago. And the government at Jerusalem has made no attempt to recover the cash it laid on the barrelhead, hoping, it is assumed, for a reversal of the decision.

Last Friday, the French government announced the embargo was extended to all arms, including spare parts for Mirage aircraft with which Israel had already been equipped before the war of June, 1967.

Despatches leave the point unclarified as to whether President de Gaulle informed his cabinet, or even consulted it, on the decision to extend the embargo until the word was officially released Wednesday.

But it seems certain that none of his ministers was aware that he also intended to retain the $100,000,000 paid for material he has no intention of delivering.

The sympathies of people uncommitted to either side in the Middle East's long-standing dispute swing like a pendulum in response to depredations by Israeli or Arab. Israel, by the commando raid on the international airport at Beirut, in the Lebanon, undoubtedly injured her position, just as Arab terrorists had earned condemnation before it. Now, because of President de Gaulle's questionable decision, Israel has a new grievance and good grounds for moral support at least from abroad.

A quick and significant response from the United States would be no surprise, and this President de Gaulle must certainly have anticipated.

What he may not have foreseen is the possible damage he has done himself in his own country, where there are signs of bitter resentment and disagreement in and out of his cabinet. His decision in "the embargo affair" goes beyond the area of politics and becomes a matter of morals.

A Possible Change

ACCORDING TO ALL reports from London, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau seems to have found the Commonwealth meetings and their accompanying social activities and less formal get-togethers surprisingly to his liking.

Indeed it is not without the realms of possiblity that Mr. Trudeau will return to Canada firmly convinced that the Commonwealth is not at all the anachronism he so off-handedly labelled it before he left Ottawa.

If Mr. Trudeau does come back with a new appreciation of the Commonwealth's usefulness, the committee now reviewing this country's foreign policy might well find itself facing a brand new set of reference terms on which to base its ultimate proposals for Canada's future role in international affairs.

Apart from External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp's astonishing revelation last week to a select group of senior officials and academics in Hull, Quebec, that thought was being given to establishing closer relations with France as a counterweight to American influence, the government has been extremely close-mouthed about the Trudeau regime's approach to the current re-appraisal of foreign policy.

In the light of Mr. Trudeau's Commonwealth experience coupled with the ever present memory of President de Gaulle's continued attacks on Canadian unity and his recent larcenous behavior in the Middle East crisis, it is to be hoped that the review committee—and Mr. Sharp—can be persuaded to redirect their thoughts along more responsible lines.

Militant Professors

IN A LETTER to The Times of London seven Canadian professors have called on Canada to declare its readiness "to consider with like-minded Commonwealth members whether the time has come for international police intervention" in Rhodesia.

What they seem to believe is that further talks between Britain and Rhodesia are pointless and therefore Canada should take the initiative in creating a Commonwealth or United Nations military force to invade Rhodesia, depose the Smith regime, replace it with another and drive out all the white men in the country.

Odd as it is to find any group of academics openly banding together to preach violence in this manner, it is odder still to note that they are all professors of the social sciences.

In an obvious attempt to explain their morbid and militant interest in the Rhodesian situation, all the signatories claim to have had "African experience." Surely it would be more pertinent to the course they are advocating if they related what experience they have had in wars and killings.

However, their letter serves one useful purpose inasmuch as it provides the answer to the age-old question: "Whatever happened to the seven dwarfs after Snow White married the handsome prince?"

Mauritius Illustrates Problem

Behind the Overpopulation Statistics

By JOHN de ST. JORRE from London

"MEGABIRTH Nightmare," "Grim Prospect of Overpopulation," "Demographic Revolution," and even, in the language of the horror film industry: "Once again the Spectre of Malthus Walks the World"—these are typical of the shock headlines so often used to describe the urgent and grave problem of world overpopulation.

But most of us, while dutifully absorbing the disturbing statistics, remain unshocked. The problem is too remote, too large, too diffuse to grasp. It is like a vague and unidentifiable toothache: it is undoubtedly there, it bodes ill and it nags a little but one hopes it will eventually disappear of its own accord.

There is no shortage of evidence to support the headlines. According to the latest United Nations figures the world's population will double by the end of the century at the present rate of growth. It is increasing by 65 million people every year and 1.9 babies are born in the time it takes to type that figure.

One scientist has even plotted Doomsday—Friday, Nov. 13, 2026—when the earth will be so overcrowded that people will start crushing each other to death!

One of the difficulties of understanding the overpopulation problem is recognizing it as the root cause of other more obvious surface problems. This is beginning to happen now in Mauritius, the beautiful and remote Indian Ocean island which became independent from Britain last March.

The size of the English county of Surrey with a population of over three-quarters of a million, Mauritius is one of the most densely-populated countries in the world. Riots brought British troops to the island last year—their second visit in three years—simply because one group of unemployed men fought with another: the direct result of too many people chasing too few jobs.

The crux of the problem is that Mauritius, like many other overpopulated places, is primarily an agricultural country. The limit of how many people an agricultural economy can absorb is soon reached and Mauritius got to that stage long ago.

The tragedy is that overpopulation in Mauritius is a very recent phenomenon and that, if it had been recognized and tackled in time, its worst manifestations would never have appeared.

As with India, the eradication of malaria after the Second World War started the ball rolling.

Since then nothing has kept pace with the growth of the population except, ironically, the development of the health services, which by reducing the death rate, have greatly exacerbated the problem.

With a population of 382 persons per square kilometre—compared with Britain's 222, India's 155 and Australia's one—Mauritius has 50,000 people unemployed, and 8,000 school-leavers who come on to the labor market annually have no prospect of getting jobs. And things are getting worse. Mauritians are discovering the bitter truth that population explosions are not single cataclysmic bangs but a series of connected and escalating charges.

The government is trying to tackle it in three different ways: birth control, emigration and economic development. Unfortunately, the odds are against the island because of its isolation—"a thousand miles from anywhere," as the tourist brochure puts it; its historic ties to a one-crop economy (sugar); and the government's tardiness in getting to the roots of the problem.

The problem was noted as early as 1950 when a Committee of Population was set up by the colonial government. But, incredibly, it was not until 1965—a mere three years ago—that the government began to make financial grants to two voluntary family planning associations in the island. The trouble here was that 30 per cent of Mauritians are Roman Catholics and the church was too strong. Or, putting it another way perhaps, the government, looking for votes, was too weak.

November, 1966, saw another step forward with the setting up of a family planning division in the ministry of health. But actual direction of the campaign still remains the responsibility of the two organizations which receive additional assistance from Sweden, America and charitable organizations like Oxfam in Britain.

It is difficult to gauge results. But the birth rate has dropped a little in recent years. People are using more contraceptives. But politics (and religion, in the case of the Catholics) continue to hinder progress. Hindus, who form just over 50 per cent of the population, traditionally like lots of sons. The ruling Independence Party draws its main support from the Hindus and it is felt that if the government took over full direction of the campaign—which the experts say it should do—it would lose the sympathy of many of its followers.

Emigration would seem, on the surface, the easy way out. Unfortunately, although efforts have been made it has been difficult to find countries which are prepared to take Mauritian immigrants in large numbers. Figures for net emigration over the last three years are disappointingly small.

Britain's Commonwealth Immigration Act has cut down one possible outlet. The Malagasy Republic (Madagascar), Mauritius' nearest neighbor, has steadfastly refused to accept immigrants though it is very underpopulated. The Malagasy government fears a huge influx of Indian agricultural workers if it opened its doors.

The Mauritius government has also been slow in devising assisted emigration schemes. Also the island's isolation, especially from Europe where many people would like to go—Mauritians have a built-in advantage in speaking both French and English—compounds the difficulties.

With little prospect of "exporting" the population problem the government is turning more enthusiastically to providing more jobs by expanding the economy, particularly through the establishment of new light industries, such as shoe, soap, margarine and clothing factories. But this is a slow process—sugar still represents 97 per cent of the island's exports—and has not yet made any significant inroads into the rapidly growing labor force.

Mauritius will have her "problem of people" for a long time to come.

Precious Traditions

From The Gazette, Montreal

THE battle is on. And as usual with the Scots, the whole procedure has been well thought out, and organized with the troops well dug in.

The battle is to save the Argyll and Sunderland Highlanders, one of the six infantry units to be abolished or merged in the upcoming cut in Britain's armed forces.

The fight has been taken to Westminster, where a petition was presented with more than 1,000,000 signatures on it.

The Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders evidently have many friends, and not only in Scotland. The petition is said to have the names of English, Welsh and even Irish penned to it.

The regiment is part of British — and Scottish — history. It has won battle honors in such places as Lucknow, India, and Balaclava in the 19th century; in Europe during two world wars, as well as Korea and Aden.

But it appears that the toughest campaign will be against the defence ministry's determination to cut-back.

And as many an older soldier and sailor in Canada knows, the chances of winning this battle are very slim. But to allow traditions as precious as those of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders to be lost in a reorganizational shuffle is to show a dullness of spirit unlikely to inspire the nation's future.

Power from Mekong

Southeast Asians Share Resource

By JOHN STIRLING from Bangkok

THE first international transfer of electricity in Southeast Asia has begun officially with the inauguration of a power line across the Mekong River between Thailand and Laos. In a subcontinent racked by war and political quarrels, the pylons marching from Northeast Thailand into the plain of Vientiane show that this frontier at least is not faced by armed camps.

The ceremony opening the power line was conducted by King Bhumipol Adulydej of Thailand and King Savang Vatthana of Laos on a raft in the Mekong. The raft, built at great expense, had room for about 100 members of the royal suites. Delicate problems of protocol had to be overcome, since in mid-river neither monarch was host or guest of the other.

The pylons will feed power from the Ubol Ratana dam in Thailand to the Nam Ngum dam site, 37 miles north of Vientiane. The electricity will drive the air compressors and other equipment used to build the Nam Ngum dam, which will be 514 yards long and 71 yards high.

Both the Nam Ngum and Ubol Ratana projects are part of a vast United Nations plan to harness the Mekong. Eventually, some 40 dams across the mainstream and its tributaries will provide enormous quantities of power and irrigation water for the four riparian countries—Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam.

The Mekong project began 10 years ago, when a United Nations mission, led by Gen. R. A. Wheeler, recommended a detailed reconnaissance of the lower basin and tributaries. Many potential dam sites have been chosen, but in the last decade only two, both of them in Thailand, have been completed. The Laotian dam will be the third.

In the two other member-countries of the Mekong committee, little tangible progress has been made. South Vietnam, obviously, is in no position to build dams until the bombs stop falling. In Cambodia the deep anxiety of Prince Norodom Sihanouk to avoid foreign entanglements extends to some United Nations projects.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The American freighter Flying Enterprise sank off the coast of England at 4:10 p.m. 17 years ago today — in 1952 — minutes after her heroic Captain Kurt Carlsen jumped into the sea and was rescued by the tug Turmoil which was trying to tow the ship to safety. Carlsen had refused until the last to abandon ship, remaining aboard for 16 days after it was first battered by a hurricane.

1907 — A tidal wave in the Dutch West Indies took the lives of 2,100 persons.

1920 — The Treaty of Versailles, which established the League of Nations, was ratified by Canada.

Sicco Mansholt Sure He Is Right

By HAROLD KING from Paris

IF there is one man in Europe who gets President Charles de Gaulle's goat more than any other, it is the bald-headed, tough ex-Java tea-planter and one-time Dutch minister of agriculture, Sicco Mansholt, now vice-president of the executive commission of the six-nation European Common Market.

Mansholt is a convinced and fanatical supranationalist. He wants a politically united Europe, and he wants it quickly. He wants Britain inside the common market and any other European nation that will accept its rules. He wants the executive commission, of which he is the fighting member, to become the ex-officio government of Western Europe, and sees in General de Gaulle the great enemy of his dream.

At 57 Mansholt can still skate 100 miles at the speed of an amateur champion and can build a boat with his own hands.

He is conducting a permanent and vigorous campaign for rationalizing the farming of Western Europe. We must kill three million cows, and drive five million peasant-farmers off the land, he proclaims.

He points out endlessly that Europe is producing millions of tons of butter over and above consumer needs. This will be costing the six Common Market countries billions of dollars in subsidies in the coming year if nothing is done to change the basic structure of European small farming, he argues.

Mansholt's solution is a socialistic one. "Twelve million acres of small-holdings must be afforested," says Mansholt, "and the farmers organized in viable profit-producing collective farms."

This is what he told the foreign ministers of the six Common Market countries much to the fury of French Foreign Minister Michel Debre, who told him in almost angry tones: "You should measure the risks of provoking unrest and apprehension among the agricultural population of our various countries which your more or less revolutionary proposals create."

Mansholt is not opposed only by the French. The Germans have a big problem with their small farmers too. Germany's agricultural minister, Hans Von Der Groeben, an old-school Prussian with at least as much toughness as the Dutch Social-Democrat, would have nothing to do with Mansholt's great farm rationalization plan, and said so to the point of rudeness.

On June 30, 1965, the first great so-called crisis inside the Common Market broke out. For most of that year the French refused to play inside the Common Market's council of ministers. The executive commission, consisting of officials from the member countries, is subject to the directions of the council of ministers, but the supranational technocrats of the commission are always straining after becoming the effective bosses.

On that date in 1965 under the leadership of the then chairman, the West German professor Walter Hallstein, the commission made a bold attempt to achieve its objective. Hallstein wanted the executive commission to be given full control over the money contributed by the various member nations to finance the new agricultural policy of the Common Market, under which the wheat price was given another uneconomical boost high above the world price (this to appease the Germans), and arrangements for subsidizing or equalizing other farm prices were agreed upon. This became known as the Agricultural Common Market, and was presented to the French farmers as opening a long period of unprecedented prosperity.

With its own enormous budget to play around with as the Brussels technocrats saw fit, the executive commission of the Common Market would indeed have had in its hands an instrument of supranational power.

De Gaulle saw red. But Hallstein and Mansholt thought they could force his hand. Mansholt said then: de Gaulle will climb down. If he does not, the powerful pro-Europe current of the other five Common Market countries will prevent de Gaulle from being re-elected president of France next December.

(In fact, de Gaulle had a tough time getting elected in December, 1965).

Hallstein and Mansholt took the line that there would be no agricultural Common Market, which France badly wanted, unless the executive commission of the common market got its own budget.

De Gaulle boycotted the Common Market council of ministers and forbade them to "keep rushing off to Brussels." Once re-elected president de Gaulle put the executive commission back in its place as an organ clearly subject to the instructions of the council of ministers.

Behind the scenes he insisted on the departure of Hallstein, which took place in due course.

Today de Gaulle is again getting impatient with what he calls "the nebulous and totally unrealizable theories of Mansholt."

But skater Mansholt carries on blandly. "I am sure I am right," he says.

A Nixon Goal:

East-West Balance

By WILLIAM S. WHITE from Washington

NOT the least of the aims of President-elect Richard Nixon, if a goal not likely to be too much talked about, is a restoration of geographical balance within the power structure in Washington.

He intends to reduce the influence of the so-called Eastern Establishment and to bring the West and Middle West back into full participation in government both at and near the summit. One of his motives no doubt is the traditional one of rewarding those sections of the country primarily responsible for his election. But there is more to it than this.

His general objective he has made clear in a quiet and low-keyed and little noticed speech in his native California; and this is one of those rare political utterances that may truly be said to be about 10 times as important as would seem on the surface to be the case.

For it is a simple fact that the Eastern Establishment has been too dominant in Washington for a good many years. This is not because Easterners are in any way unfit for high place; to the contrary, they have made enormous contributions to the public service ever since the remote days of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Rather, it is because the heavy Easternization of the seats of consequence, which has so long been a fact of political life, has led to sectional divisions in the United States that are as real as they are subtle and as dangerous as they are unnecessary.

Indeed, two highly significant presidential elections within this single decade, that of John F. Kennedy in 1960 and that of Richard Nixon in 1968, have clearly reflected an East-West polarization quite as genuine in its way as is the far older and far more advertised separatism of North and South. For both Kennedy in 1960 and Nixon in 1968 were placed into power by processes of sectional divisionism.

Kennedy was all but blacked out west of Chicago. Nixon's mandate for all practical purposes stopped, barring some limited success in the South, about at the Illinois line. Kennedy, in a word, was an Eastern and Nixon a Western choice. And this sort of thing, it hardly need be said, is not good in a country that needs all the unity it can get.

This columnist has reason to believe that before his tragic death John Kennedy himself was troubled by the spatial limitations of his national constituency and specifically by its almost exclusively Eastern tone and flavor. There is reason to suspect that Nixon is troubled by the obverse of this situation.

Moreover, any man of reasonable perceptiveness who attended the 1964 Republican national convention in San Francisco and felt the unexampled bitterness of Western jeering at the very word "Eastern" could hardly fail to recognize that the nomination of Barry Goldwater was to a perilous degree motivated by sheer emotional hostility toward a whole region.

That this hostility was extreme is doubtless true. That it was for the most part unthinking is no less true. But that there was a certain human justification for it can hardly be denied. For a whole vast land west of the Appalachians has long been put on a very thin diet by an Eastern-dominated politics and an Eastern-dominated communications complex, both of which have tended to be patronizing indeed toward those fellows in the out-yonder.

The poor old South has for generations had this treatment and has perforce long since learned to live with it. But for the West it is a relatively new experience—and, more importantly, the West is also far the richer in both electoral and economic terms.

It is a reasonable speculation that Nixon grasps all this and proposes to do something about it in the only way anything effective could be done. This is by making more room at the top for Western personalities and for legitimate Western interests. If there is to a certain degree an understandable Western inferiority complex leading to excessive dislike of the East, it is pretty sure that this step would help to cure it.

Outmoded U.S., Russian Policies Cause of Current Mideast Danger

By J. C. HUREWITZ

Professor of Government, Columbia University

The Arab-Israel arms races in the 1960s have been the most feverish in the non-industrial world. The value of equipment lost in the six-day war of June, 1967 probably exceeded $750,000,000, and the USSR replaced most of the Egyptian and the Syrian losses within six months.

The United States was somewhat tardier in satisfying the requests of Israel and Jordan — the American arms clients that fought in the war. By the end of 1968, Jordan's losses were finally made good.

By then too, the United States completed delivery to Israel of the A-4 Skyhawk bombers, for which the contract had been signed in 1966.

The United States also agreed, at the end of 1968, to sell Israel 50 F-4 Phantom jets, with delayed delivery starting at the end of 1969, and the bulk of the order to be filled in 1970.

The entanglement of the United States and the Soviet Union in these arms contests has been only one of many symptoms that the superpowers' military policies in the Middle East are becoming outmoded.

These policies were framed in the second post-war decade, when bi-polarity conditioned international politics the world over, including the Middle East.

By 1968, despite the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, it was clear that the bi-polar security systems were falling apart and bi-polarity was giving way to multi-polarity.

Yet the United States could not take unilateral action, since this would only weaken its friends in the Middle East.

The military policies toward the Middle East of the USSR and the United States were originally designed to serve the interests of the superpowers in their global competitions. So long as one cold war contestant persisted in pursuing these policies, its adversary had little choice but to do the same.

Basic Plan Goes Awry

Sticking to such a course, however, when the underlying structure of international politics in the Middle East no longer sustained it, has basically served the interests of neither the United States nor Russia.

This was convincingly shown in the spring of 1967 by the Soviet brinkmanship that encouraged Egypt and Syria to bait Israel for the manifest purpose of gaining Soviet influence in the area by embarrassing the United States.

The weakening of ties with Arab military clients, especially after the near-destruction of Jordan, indeed embarrassed the United States.

But these were dubious Soviet gains, for the Arab regimes that were friendly to the United States before the six-day war are still basically friendly after it.

The USSR, which did not expect the war, failed to rescue its friends from disaster when war broke out.

Instead, Russia sat nervously on the UN sidelines, seeking to avoid a military confrontation with the United States, while Israel, a Western arms client, thrashed into submission Egypt and Syria, Russia's oldest arms clients in the Middle East.

U.S. Position Weaker

But the U.S. position has also been weakened. Ever since 1950 the United States has been on record as firmly opposed to the use of force for the violation of boundaries in the Middle East.

U.S. support of the political independence and territorial integrity of the states in the Arab-Israel zone has been reaffirmed on many occasions, and again by President Johnson in May and June of 1967.

Yet, as the principal guardian of peace in the Middle East, the United States did not successfully inhibit either the Arab action or the Israel reaction that brought on the war.

The policies of the two superpowers toward the Middle East as a whole have been notably variable. In the Arab-Israel zone both nations have avoided formal alliances, but otherwise their styles differ.

The USSR has engaged in arms dumping in selected Arab countries; the United States first encouraged its Western European allies to engage in pre-emptive and balancing arms sales to friendly Arab states and Israel before turning itself ot this policy.

Soviet arms transfer policies in the area have been designed to stir up tensions, to polarize the Arab states and Israel, and to promote a settlement favorable to the Arabs, so as to discredit the United States as the main preserver of peace in the zone and the main supporter of Israel.

The United States, however, has tried to dampen tensions, to prevent Arab-Israel polarization, and to urge an equitable settlement.

Primary Objectives

The primary military objective of the United States in the Middle East has been deterrence of the Soviet Union, as reflected in the post-war buildup of the Sixth Fleet, the alliances with the CENTO states, the SAC and U-2 bases, the erection of electronic surveillance systems and the emplacement of IRBMs.

Soviet military policies since the mid-1950s have been designed to pare down the American strategic advantage in the Mediterranean and the Middle East by undermining U.S. influence in the Arab and CENTO areas, by establishing a continuous naval presence in the Mediterranean, and by seeking informal naval and air rights in Egypt and Syria, and possibly also Algeria.

The military planners in Moscow clearly view the Mediterranean and the Middle East as falling within the Soviet security sphere of influence.

Into the Arab countries that have become Soviet military clients, Russia has pumped huge quantities of modern weapons, far beyond the early capacity of the receiving states to assimilate.

Although the arms have been sold at a large discount, and sometimes even given away, their monetary value has invariably exceeded the credits given for economic projects.

The acquisition of sophisticated military hardware in large quantities has proved costly to maintain and inured Russia's Arab friends to seeking ever more costly weapons, thus diverting valuable resources from economic development.

Of greater importance, the Soviet Union has encouraged its Arab military clients (except Yemen) to expand their socialist experiments.

As an imported doctrine and mode of organization, socialism in the 1960s has taken no firmer hold than did democracy in an earlier period.

The recurrent military coups in Syria and Iraq and military rule in Algeria have also disrupted the continuity, further weakening the socialist programs.

Even the Egyptian experiment in socialism, which seemed to be making measurable progress in the early 1960s with American economic aid, began to run into roadblocks before the United States ended its help.

Part of the trouble lay in the expensive military imports and abortive but expensive research and engineering projects for the construction of missiles and supersonic planes. The six-day war dealt a stunning blow to a socialist economy that was already in a desperate condition.

The Arab military republics, all arms clients of the USSR, came into being with promises of social revolution, only to impose greater political repression on their citizens than that of the replaced regimes, and the net effect of their economic and social policies at the end of the 1960s seems retrogressive.

The greatest change in international politics in the Middle East in this decade has been the disintegration of the bipolar coalitions led by the super powers.

Because of the lingering cold war in the Middle East the Soviet Union and the United States have been prone to continue their old policies.

As early as the mid-1950s the United States began to move step by step from collective Western responsibilities for peacekeeping and deterrence to what amounted to a unilateral American responsibility.

The Soviet Union for its part is still conducting itself in the region as if it were determined to drive the United States out.

Mideast Russian Border

Soviet policies in the Mediterranean and the Middle East seem to mirror a conviction of security planners that they cannot assure the defence of the USSR without domination of the Middle East and the Mediterranean.

Their naval buildup has been designed to achieve equally with, and preferably superiority to, the U.S. Sixth Fleet; their arms dumping, to undermine American prestige and influence in the Arab area; and the cultivation of friendly relations with Turkey and Iran, to end alliances with the United States.

Admittedly, because of the nuclear stalemate, the super powers have sought to avoid direct military confrontation, and both oppose nuclear proliferation in the region.

Still, it should be noted that the dangers of an accidental confrontation are miltiplying with the secret Soviet manoeuvres to build land-based naval air facilities in Egypt and Syria and perhaps also in Algeria.

Because of the deepening Soviet military presence in the Mediterranean and in selected littoral states, the risk of Soviet involvement in a possible fourth round with Israel is growing.

Such an involvement, if not resisted, would tilt the military balance in the region unmistakably in the Soviet favor; and, if resisted, might develop into a military confrontation.

The above article was adapted from J. C. Hurewitz' book, Middle East Politics: The Military Dimension, which will be published next month.

Nixon May Regret Gambling on Lodge

By CARL T. ROWAN, from Washington

After playing it cozy on Vietnam for months, President-elect Nixon has finally taken a gamble on this bitterly-divisive war. He has named Henry Cabot Lodge to head the U.S. negotiating team at the Paris peace talks.

And that is a very big gamble—one that Nixon may sorely regret.

Lodge's presence in Paris is going to add to the obduracy of both South and North Vietnam. It will increase greatly the time taken to reach a settlement, and might indeed make a settlement unreachable in the forseeable future.

Announcement of the Lodge appointment has provoked press stories about how "Saigon is elated," and reams of trifling nonsense about how "elegant," "polished," "debonair," and "patrician" Lodge is.

The factors that really matter are these:

The people in Saigon who are elated are those who opposed the preliminary peace talks, opposed President Johnson's bombing halt, opposed having a South Vietnamese delegation go to Paris, and will oppose any peace agreement short of total capitulation by Hanoi and the National Liberateion Front (NLF).

They are elated because they believe Lodge is more sympathetic to their views than either Averell Harriman or President Johnson have been.

The people in South Vietnam who believe some kind of "safe" arrangement with the NLF is the only way to bring peace to their war-ravaged country are anything but elated with the appointment of Lodge.

Communist diplomats already have made it clear that Hanoi has miskivings about trying to negotiate with Lodge. They expect the North Vietnamese to take however many months as are necessary trying to prove that they are as tough as Lodge.

Uneasiness about the Lodge appointment also runs pretty deep among some of the Communist diplomats who helped to nudge Hanoi to the conference table.

It was disclosed recently that Lodge was involved in secret negotiations in Saigon with a Polish representative speaking for Hanoi in November 1966. John Gronouski, the American ambassador to Poland, was carrying on similar negotiations in Warsaw. Together they forged an agreement that peace talks would commence in Warsaw on Dec. 6, 1966.

Hanoi backed out of the agreement angrily when U.S. planes bombed Hanoi on Dec. 4 and repeated the bombing a couple of days later.

In fairness, I emphasize that there is no available evidence that Lodge negotiated in bad faith. Nor is there a public record as to whether the December 4 bombing took place at his urging, simply with his approval, or against his recommendation to Johnson.

Whatever the case, this affair is remembered in Hanoi and some other capitals with suspicion and uneasiness.

Lodge's recent statements indicate an understanding of some need to "compromise," suggesting that he may be more flexible than his critics fear. If he shows the required degree of flexibility, Saigon's "elation" is likely to vanish fast.

As he indicated in an interview with me last June, South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu regards the talks as little more than Communist trickery. Furthermore, he and his top advisers feel that South Vietnam is not yet strong enough to stand alone.

Their desire is to thrash the Communists for several more months while, presumably, they build up South Vietnamese forces to the point that American troops can leave them in safety.

If Nixon, through his man Lodge, adopts this position the talks could collapse, leading to renewed bitter fighting and bombings. One need not be clairvoyant to predict that Nixon quickly would be beseiged by the same wild protests and demonstrations that drove Lyndon Johnson out of the presidency.

That is why the Lodge gamble is so important to a president who surely would wish his early months in office to run smoothly.

Separatist Bomb Squad Not Linked with Boys

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said Thursday night that four juveniles arrested in connection with a bomb blast earlier this week were not linked with a separatist terrorist group.

Asst.-Dir. Paul-Emile Olivier said in an interview that published reports linking the four to a terrorist organization were "absolutely false."

"No statement made by the students indicated they were linked to any terrorist organization."

PRINCIPAL DISLIKED

Det.-Lt. Casmir Krysack, who headed the investigation into a Monday night bomb blast that damaged a west-end high school, said the juveniles carried out the bombings for "kicks" and because they didn't like the principal and a teacher at the school, "and for no other reason."

The four taken into custody were between 13 and 16 years old. Two students aged 13 and 15, were arrested at their homes in the Notre-Dame-de-Grace district Wednesday night and another two students aged 13 and 16 were arrested Tuesday night.

All have appeared in social welfare court on charges of planting bombs.

PLEAS NOT ACCEPTED

All pleaded guilty as charged but the judge refused to accept the pleas of three of the youths because their parents were out of town. The three will be brought before the court again Jan. 22.

Police said the last two students arrested will face charges arising from the theft last July of 34 sticks of dynamite and 50 detonators from a construction site at the University of Montreal.

One of the boys is to face an additional charge of planting a bomb under a police cruiser on a west-end parking lot last Nov. 26. The bomb was dismantled before it could explode.

STUDENT'S MOTHER

Police, who have been investigating 50 bomb incidents in the Montreal area over the last nine months, said their first break came from the mother of one of the students at the school.

Her son discussed the school bombing with her and mentioned the name of one of the students allegedly involved. She notified police.

There was no immediate indication whether the woman was being considered as a possible recipient of $21,000 in reward money posted at the end of 1968 by the city, the provincial government and an independent Montreal union.

The money was offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the recent wave of bombings.

Soviet Ships Seized

FLEKKEFJORD, Norway (CP) — A Norwegian navy vessel Wednesday night seized five Soviet and East German trawlers loaded with sophisticated electronic gear inside the three-mile limit near a NATO base in southern Norway, the government announced.

Three other trawlers, one Soviet and two Danish, escaped after a long night chase, a navy spokesman said.

The East German vessels, Nordmeer and Skagerak, were fined $285 each for violating Norwegian fishery, customs and military regulations.

The seizures were said to have been made halfway between the Norwegian coast and Norway's three-mile limit, just south of Lista air force base, NATO's southernmost installation in Norway. Norway recently declared the area a military zone.

The vessels were seized during a gale. The Lista Peninsula traditionally has been used by fishing boats seeking refuge from strong winds and a defence ministry spokesman said the violations were not viewed as severe.

Polish Spy Executed

Leaks to U.K. Fatal

WARSAW (Reuters) — A 28-year-old Pole, Adam Henryk Kaczmarzyk, has been executed for selling Polish military defence secrets to British intelligence contacts, it was announced Thursday.

Polish press reports at the time of his trial June 15 said the secrets were given to British contacts at clandestine meetings in Warsaw apartments.

Polish press reports of the trial said Kaczmarzyk gave the British information about organization of communications in the Polish army and told them about location of military objects and units.

Strike Strains News Service

From Wire Reports

NEW YORK — Editorial and other employees of the Associated Press went on strike Thursday, reducing the volume of the news service's report and closing a number of AP bureaus across the U.S.

AP general manager Wes Gallagher said the central issue is the Wire Service Guild's demand for a modified union shop. The Guild said there were nine unresolved key issues and that the AP had rejected them all. The Guild said the amount of pay increases over a proposed three-year contract was a central point.

SHORTER WEEK

The AP offered a three-year contract reaching a weekly top minimum of $250, in comparison to the present $207 a week. The Guild asked for a top minimum within that time of $264, a 37½-hour week instead of 40, and other improvements.

The AP is a co-operative, non-profit news agency serving some 8,500 newspapers, radio and television stations through the world. Its overseas operations were not affected. The Guild represents 1,313 editorial photographic, clerical and other employees in the U.S.

The only closure due to the strike came in Hawaii where the Honolulu Star-Bulletin was shut down by members of the American Newspaper Guild and craft members who refused to process AP copy.

ANG members at the Madison (Wis.) Capital Times also refused to handle AP copy and publisher Miles McMillin said he might go to court to force them to do it.

Five-Day Mail Admonished, Parley Opens

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal union and department officials met Thursday in an effort to settle a growing controversy over implementation of a five-day delivery week Feb. 1.

There was no immediate report on the closed meeting but earlier Thursday the 12,000-member Letter Carriers Union of Canada issued a stinging press release that accuses the department of, among other things, "Machiavellian undertakings."

A department spokesman said later the talks broke off about 5:30 p.m. and would resume Tuesday morning.

MONTH'S DELAY

The controversy broke into the open Wednesday when the carriers made public a telegram they sent Postmaster-General Eric Kierans asking for at least a month's delay in introducing the day-shorter delivery week.

They say they need the time to discuss effects on carrier delivery walks and possible loss of jobs involved in the reduced work week. The department rejected the bid for a postponement and argued that the union had been properly notified of the change and its effects adequately discussed.

Nonetheless the department agreed to meet the carriers' representatives and those of the 14,300-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

NO LAYOFFS CLAIMED

Mr. Kierans has assured the Commons that the reduction in the delivery week will not result in layoffs. Department officials say this is their policy.

However, Carriers President Roger Decarie said in an interview this is not good enough. "Sure he (Mr. Kierans) told the Commons this but we don't have any assurance our members won't lose their jobs."

It is understood that agreement now has been reached over job security and the meeting concerns the carriers' complaint about proposed lunch breaks.

The union press release says that under the five-day delivery week carriers would not have to return to a post office after their morning mail pickup and could eat their lunch on their routes. They may return to offices for lunch but the time coming and going is "considered part of the lunch break and not working time."

RETROGRADE STEP

The union says this is "the most retrograde step imaginable" and a similar system was abolished three years ago.

The press release conjures up the image of carriers "eating frozen sandwiches in winter time."

It accuses Mr. Kierans and his officials of using "petty means under the pretext of economizing" and says the department proposals will mean a return to "the stage-coach and Paul Revere days."

"Once more the letter carriers must unite and fight against the Machiavellian undertakings of the employer and thwart his ideas of false economy."

Universities Continue To Explode

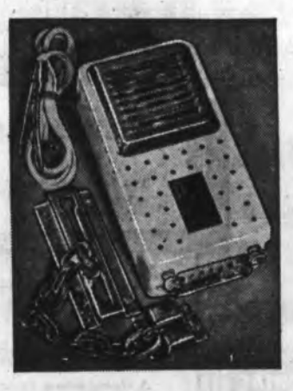

By UPI

Nearly 300 demonstrating students were arrested at San Fernando Valley State College Thursday and a new police-student clash hit violence-ridden San Francisco State College.

Across the U.S. at Waltham, Mass., more than 200 white students staged a sit-in at Brandeis University in support of 65 protesting Negro students who held control of the campus communications complex to protest alleged racist policies.

At least four students were arrested in the melee at San Francisco State College, which came after union teachers rejoined the strikers' ranks in defiance of a court order.

Patient Dead, Alive

VANCOUVER (CP) — Riverview Hospital pronounced a patient dead one day — but alive the next, it was disclosed today.

Between times, the patient's wife ran his obituary notice in the hometown newspaper and began making funeral arrangements.

The patient is Henry Haynes, 62, of Trail.

Dr. B. F. Bryson, superintendent of Riverview, in suburban Coquitlam, said "there were two patients with very similar names and there was a mix-up in them."

Dr. Bryson said Henry Haynes of Trail is alive. He declined to say who was dead.

Carberry Funeral Home Ltd. in Trail hurriedly cancelled arrangements for the Hayne's funeral.

Mrs. Haynes had contacted them Monday and they arranged for his obituary notice in Tuesday's Trail Times.

Health Official Airs Hong Kong Aspect

Middle-Aged Suffer Worst from Flu

Public health authorities still insist there is no Hong Kong flu in Greater Victoria, but assistant medical health officer, Dr. T. J. Bailey, said, "What does it matter? Flu is flu in this case, and determining the variety is actually of academic interest."

He said, "It seems to be hitting middle-aged people hardest, and it's hard to tell if we have reached the peak yet. Each year we have flu and sometime during the winter it peaks. Our conclusions are based on informal reports we get from family doctors, not on statistical evidence."

St. Joseph's Hospital reported two cases that had been diagnosed in December, but later said the diagnosis was made by doctors, not lab specialists.

Royal Jubilee Hospital released figures Thursday showing 37 patients had been treated since Dec. 25 for complications resulting from flu.

Staff absenteeism during December was 110 nurses and 93 other staff.

School absenteeism, often used as a yardstick of flu and cold infection, was reported as 10 per cent. This is slightly higher than usual, according to school superintendent Joseph Chell.

In discussing the problem of positive diagnosis of Hong Kong flu, Dr. Bailey explained it was one of a number of related flu viruses that required sophisticated laboratory techniques. He added the symptoms were much the same as for other varieties, and that for all practical purposes it was no different from the usual winter varieties, as far as the sufferer was concerned.

1969 Caprice Coupe

Chevrolet presents Jean-Claude Killy, Olympic Ski Champion, in a one-hour special, Monday, January 13 on CBC TV.

No clowns. No hoopla. No funny hats.

This is an event for the serious car buyer. The man who has X number of dollars to spend and is determined to get his money's worth and maybe more.

Come to a Chevrolet Showroom during our Value Showdown.

Come in and spend some time. Dig, probe, ask questions, take notes. You owe it to yourself to be thorough.

Go for a drive.

Get a free sample of Chevrolet's luxurious full-coil, cushioned ride. Shut the windows and see how fresh the interior stays, thanks to Astro Ventilation. Feel the kick of the big standard V8.

And do this: Ask the man to show you, on paper, how you can order a 1969 Chevrolet with a big V8, power disc brakes and automatic transmission for less than you could last year.

If you're a serious car buyer, Chevrolet's Value Showdown is for you.

We think you'll buy a Chevy.

More people do, you know.

Putting you first, keeps us first. CHEVROLET

Banks Alone Helped By Loan Rate Hike

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The change in the bank act which permitted the Canadian chartered banks to charge more than 6 per cent on their loans has been a very costly one to the Canadian public, according to Vancouver realtor Henry Block.

Mr. Block, who is president of Block Brothers Ltd. of Vancouver and Victoria, said that the government had allowed the banks to charge more because they would then be able to place more money in the home mortgage field.

But, according to Mr. Block, the plan hasn't worked out that way and the federal government has been fooled.

"The change has not supplied any noticeable amount of money for family housing," he said, "but it has been a shot in the arms of the banks without solving in any way the existing problem."

Mr. Block thinks government at all levels should combine with the real estate companies with the know-how and the leadership to get down to grips with the housing finance problem.

Referring to the housing commission headed by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, Mr. Block said this had given the government an understanding of the problem but not the know how required to solve it.

LEAD PRICE UP

Cominco has increased its domestic price for lead from 13½ cents to 14 cents a pound, effective immediately.

The company said there was a general firming up in lead prices following a lengthy period of depression.

OPPOSING THOUGHTS

Canada's leading bankers for once are expressing widely opposing ideas as to how the world's currency problems should be solved.

John H. Coleman, executive vice-president of the Royal Bank of Canada, recommends that new rules for the international exchange system should be called and recommended that exchange rates be made flexible.

Earlier this week F. W. Nicks, president of the Bank of Nova Scotia, opposed a floating exchange rate because it would intensify speculation and solve nothing.

THREAT INCREASES

The ugly duckling of the financial world shed a few more feathers this week and looked more menacing than ever.

It happened when the government of Canada found it had to pay 6.40 per cent for its 91-day treasury bills at the weekly Thursday auction. This was up .11 per cent from the previous week. The longer term 182-day bills were even more expensive at 6.65 per cent, up from 6.51 per cent a week ago

Nobody seems able to lay a hand on the elusive high interest rate bird.

TOO MANY COOKS

There are too many firms competing in B.C. canned salmon industry to make it a profitable undertaking, says I. M. Bell-Irving, president of the 78-year-old Anglo-B.C. Packing Company.

As a result Anglo-B.C. Packing has sold its company fishboats and canning plant at Skeena to Canadian Fishing Co., and is now concentrating its operations to herring fishing on the Atlantic coast.

Some of the Skeena employees will be taken over by Canadian Fishing Co. but the plant will probably be closed as a fish packing operation, said Mr. Bell-Irving.

Triple Takeoff

Three needle-like USAF missiles leave New Mexico launch pad simultaneously in test of multiple firing and associated equipment. Unarmed missiles carried instead instruments to gather meteorological data, and different ballast loads to gauge effects of staggered flight formation.—(CP)

Bogus-Bill Find Of Poor Quality

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Two trash collectors found three bags crammed with $10 and $20 bills. The total came to $200,000 but U.S. secret service agents described the bills as poor-quality counterfeits.

Trudeau Tells Press

Canada in NATO Year at Least

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has expounded a philosophy that unless you have something better, you might as well leave things as they are.

He sees no likelihood of Canadians dividing on the status of the Crown or switching from the monarchy to republicanism in the next four years. Nor did he plan any immediate change in the status of Canada's military obligations abroad.

When NATO ministers meet in Brussels Jan. 16, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux will renew Canada's military commitment to the alliance for one year, until January, 1970.

MANY TOPICS

Trudeau, speaking to some 500 international journalists at a Dorchester Hotel press luncheon Thursday, emphasized the Canadian military review will continue and changes may still be made for the years ahead. But for one year at least there will be no change in the Canadian contribution of six bomber squadrons and 5,000-man brigade now stationed in West Germany.

Trudeau combined philosophy with politics as he roamed over internal and foreign problems in his candid address and question period. He urged the Commonwealth to be less obsessed with past misdeeds and more concerned with future opportunities. He held some world issues at arms' length and tended to shy away from them but he was forthright about his sympathy with sincere demonstrators.

It was important, he said, that these demonstrators, no matter how small their group, should be heard. The picket involves himself in issues while prime ministers and presidents drive by in limousines and tend to speak through distant microphones.

NOT RELEVANT

The picket feels he is not connected with decision-making; that events at the Commonwealth conference or at Ottawa are not relevant to reality; that statesmen participate in "theoretical discussions between men who don't feel the future, who don't feel justice as the protester demanded it."

To reject or imprison the protester was no answer. Men like Gandhi or like Canada's Louis Riel live on "and they obtain more by perhaps martyrdom, imprisonment or execution than they would by merely standing there."

Trudeau's preoccupation with the demonstrators brought a comment from the London Standard that he had delivered "as radical a homily as has ever fallen from the lips of a visiting statesman."

The question of whether Canada would become a republic while he is in office would depend on just how long he remains in office, Trudeau said lightly. He maintained that about two-thirds of Canadians have no emotional attachment to the Crown since only one-third came from the British Isles. But he did not see Canadians dividing themselves on what is largely a symbolic issue.

As for the Canadian parliamentary system, this had a great advantage over the American system where there could be a president of one political party and a Congress of another.

He was asked about China, the Middle East, the plight of the African Asians and Rhodesia. He gave replies which indicated that he either has not yet made up his mind about Canadian policy or does not want Canada to become directly involved.

RINGSIDE SEAT

Canada, he said, wants to recognize China. To disagree with an opponent did not mean you should not have a dialogue with him. Canada had developed its trade mainly through the Atlantic but it had a ringside seat on the Pacific and wanted to increase trade, cultural exchanges and diplomatic relations in that area.

Asked specifically what he thought about the Chinese imprisoning Reuters correspondent Anthony Grey for more than a year, Trudeau said he had not studied the matter and had no information about it.

The only way out of the Mid-die East impasse was for Israel and the Arabs to accept the efforts of the United Nations mission headed by Ambassador Gunnar Jarring of Sweden. Canada had no solution. But it was possible both sides might be persuaded by the Big Four after a period of brinkmanship. Canada did not accept the principle of changing frontiers by force.

Sanctions against Rhodesia should continue forever, he said. There was no point in announcing a termination date. This would have no more effect than that of a short strike. Negotiating strength lay in getting the point across that there would be no change, no withdrawal until the other side gave in.

Trudeau was asked whether Canada would take more of the Asians being booted out of Kenya and other East African states because they had decided to retain British passports rather than become local citizens. He said the answer was yes and no. Canada had a policy of speeding up processing of immigrants in special cases, such as stateless persons. This speeding up process is being examined in the case of the Asians.

FLASHING SMILE for dashing bachelor was recorded during reception at 10 Downing Street given by British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, as Prime Minister Trudeau chats with Miss Erica Williams, daughter of president of Trinidad and Tobago.—(CP)

Trudeau Held Floor While 'Bomb' Sought

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was speaking at the Commonwealth conference Thursday when word of an anonymous bomb threat came from Scotland Yard.

However, Trudeau and the other 27 delegation leaders talked on about Rhodesia while from other parts of the building came the sounds of a discreet — and vain — bomb search.

Trudeau told a correspondent's luncheon that he does not have much success with women because "I have a very mild nature."

Reminded it had been said of W. L. Mackenzie King, Canada's last bachelor prime minister, that he would have been gentler and more approachable had he married, Trudeau was asked if he felt this could apply to him.

Only complaints from friends, he replied, was that their wives and daughters found him too approachable.

A proud guest at the luncheon was Trudeau's uncle, Gordon Elliott, 75, a retired gardener and landscaper who spent about 40 years in the Dieppe area of France and now lives near Dover.

Russians Offered Coaches, Swedes Just Complain

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — An uproar among Swedish sports-writers, players and fans over performances of Victoriaville Tigers, Canadian Allan Cup champions, graphically points up how the world hockey picture has changed in the past decade.

The fuss is not about any rough play during the recently-concluded Bunny Ahearne hockey tournament but because of the poor showing made by the Canadian club.

Tigers were favored to win the Ahearne tournament but lost four and tied one of six games. Other clubs entered were Djurgarden, Soedertaelje, A.I.K. and Leksand of the Swedish first division, I.F.K. of Helsinki, a Finnish club coached by former National Hockey League-star Carl Brewer, and Sparta of Prague.

The tournament was conducted under Canadian rules, permitting body-checking in all zones, but it was no help to the Tigers. They scored only 12 goals in the six games, the least of any club, while conceding 24 goals.

Swedish newspapers and fans have strongly criticized Dagens Nyheter, the Stockholm morning newspaper which sponsored the tournament, for bringing the Tigers to Sweden.

It was stressed in criticism that the two best Swedish clubs, Brynaes of Gaevle and Vaestra Froelunda of Goteborg weren't in the Ahearne tournament.

Several newspaper critics said it was unfair to the fans to bring over a club of the calibre of the Tigers.

The sponsoring newspaper has more or less apologized to the fans and is reported to have requested the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to send a stronger club for next year's tournament.

Among the sternest critics were Swedish players, who in other years spent their criticism on the "rough" play of Canadian clubs.

"What is the meaning of bringing a Canadian team like this over here?" demanded Bert-Ola Nordlander, a Swedish international with the A.I.K. club.

"I cannot understand how a gang of old ladies like this is allowed to take part in the tournament," said Sig Johansson of the Soedertaelje team.

"We couldn't help laughing at the Canadians but we also felt sorry for them when the audience laughed and booed them," quote Roland Stoltz, veteran international defenceman.

And several Swedish writers asked if the Allan Cup champions were really Canada's best club and offered the opinion that if this was the case, then times must be hard for Canadian amateur hockey.

They could be right. A month ago, the Russians offered to send Anatoly Tarasav and Arkady Chernishov, coaches of their No. 1 and No. 2 teams, respectively, to Canada for a month during 1969 to act as advisers in the proper procedure of conditioning a hockey team.

Good as Any Says Juckes

WINNIPEG (UPI) — Gordon Juckes, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said here Thursday that the Victoriaville Tigers were "as good a club as any" that could have been selected to represent Canada in the recent international Ahearne Cup tournament in Sweden.

HE'D HEARD

Juckes was commenting on a reported uproar in the Swedish press and public over the poor performance in the tournament by the Victoriaville team, winners last year of the Allan Cup—symbol of supremacy in senior amateur hockey in Canada.

"There's little difference between the Tigers and the team sent last year from Drummondville," Juckes said. "In fact, there has been little change in Allen Cup competition in the last two years."

Juckes admitted that he was nevertheless disappointed with Victoriaville's showing — "they just did not play up to their potential" — but he added that the team suffered injuries to two good players before the tournament.

He pointed out that the Ahearne competition was a "club-type" tourney that was not for all-star aggregation but for individual teams. "We must not expect our amateur teams to be powerhouses every time they go to one of these tournaments," Juckes said. "Victoriaville was as good a club as we could select."

REVIEW COMING

Juckes said the CAHA had not received any protest from the sponsors of the Ahearne Cup over the team's performance, as has been reported in Sweden. But he added that the whole matter of Canada's participation in the tournament likely would be discussed during the world hockey championships next March in Stockholm.

Minnesota	40	9	24	7	90	138	25

It was a night for the attack in the National Hockey League on Thursday, five games producing 38 goals on an output of 327 shots.

Most of the shooting was done in Pittsburgh, where the Penguins came up with a 7-2 win over Minnesota North Stars in a wide-open game which saw the clubs take 76 shots, And most of the scoring was done in Montreal, where the Canadiens sped to an 8-4 win over Oakland Seals.

Detroit Red Wings also went on a binge, trouncing Los Angeles Kings, 6-2, on Detroit ice. In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs lost a 3-2 decision to the Bruins in Boston and New York Rangers outscored the Flyers, 3-1, in Philadelphia.

FINALLY ENDS

There was also a psychological victory for the Kings. When Bob Wall scored in the 15th minute of the first period, it ended a scoreless drought which had reached 210 minutes and four seconds.

Lowell MacDonald, finally getting his first goal of the season, got the other Los Angeles goal. But the Kings were outscored by Pete Stemkowski, who had three goals, two of them coming only 37 seconds apart in the second period.

Most frenzied action was in Boston, where the Leafs and Bruins combined for 59 penalty minutes in a wild first period.

Bruins had a 2-0 lead after 20 minutes, were ahead by 3-0 after two periods but had trouble extending their winning streak to five games as the Leafs closed in with goals by Mike Pelyk and Norm Ullman.

Phil Esposito of the Bruins drew assists on two goals and moved within one point of becoming the half-way leader in the individual point race. He now has 53 points and one game left to match or pass the 54 points Bobby Hull amassed in the first 38 games played by Chicago Black Hawks.

Neither Gary Smith or his second - period replacement, Charlie Hodge, looked good against Canadiens, who scored six straight goals between 8:00 of the first period and 19:33 of the second period to take an 8-2 lead.

Jean Beliveau, zooming into fifth place in the point race, scored his 18th goal and had three assists to benefit the most. Yvan Cournoyer chipped in with his 22nd and 23rd goals and also drew an assist.

Coaches Pick 14 All-Stars

MONTREAL (UPI) — Coaches Toe Blake of the East Division and Scotty Bowman of the West Division Thursday completed the lineups for the National Hockey League all-star game, scheduled here Jan. 21.

Both coaches named seven players to add to the 12 selected earlier in the week by a poll of NHL writers and broadcasters.

Blake added Ted Harris of Montreal Canadiens and Ted Green of Boston to his defence, rounded out an outstanding centre corps by adding Norm Ullman of Toronto and Stan Mikita of Chicago to Phil Esposito and Jean Beliveau.

The former Montreal coach also selected Dennis Hull to give him a brother combination on the left side and named rightwingers Bobby Rousseau of Montreal and Rod Gilbert of New York.

Bowman leaned heavily towards members of his own club, selecting defencemen Doug Harvey and Noel Picard, leftwinger Ab McDonald and rightwinger Jim Roberts to make the St. Louis contribution eight players.

Bernie Parent of Philadelphia was added to the St. Louis goal-tending combo of Glenn Hall and Jacques Plante, rookie Danny O'Shea of Minnesota North Stars became the third centreman on the West team and rightwinger Ken Schinkel was selected to give Pittsburgh Penguins a representative.

Unitas Not Quite the Forgotten Man

By MILTON RICHMAN

BOCA RATON, Fla. (UPI) — Johnny Unitas realizes people mean well. He appreciates it. Sincerely.

It's simply that this happens to be an especially rough time for him what with the Super Bowl game coming up Sunday, his prospects of playing in it at all less than 50-50 unless the thing turns into a runaway and him still not knowing for sure about next season.

People always want to know how he feels. How do you think Johnny Unitas feels? Lousy. That's how he feels. Only he's too much of a gentleman to say so.

Oh, the majority of people who come up and talk with him are genuinely solicitous and nice and all that but sometimes that merely makes it worse.

DOESN'T NEED IT

They say little encouraging things to him like "we're with you all the way," "good luck, Johnny," and "you're still the best in our book," but they also look pityingly at the sidelined 35-year-old Baltimore Colts quarterback, the way they'd look at one of yesterday's heroes, and if there's one thing Johnny Unitas doesn't need or doesn't want particularly at this stage of the game it's pity.

"I'm well enough to play right now," he says. "My arm is all right. That's no problem. The only thing is I haven't played much so I'm not sharp and I might be slow picking things up out there."

There was a time Unitas meant the same thing to the Colts that Bill Russell means to the Boston Celtics and Bobby Hull means to the Chicago Black Hawks, but then he came up with ruptured muscle fibers in his $100,000 arm and now Earl Morrall is going to start against the New York Jets on Sunday.

Unitas says it doesn't bother him that much. "I haven't started all year so it's no big deal. Earl should be starting because he has been playing all year. He's an excellent quarterback, he deserves all the honors he's getting and he's a fine person. Why shouldn't he start Sunday after all he's done?"

Johnny Unitas has done a little in his time, too, for the Colts since he came with them 13 years ago. Few players have done more for their ball clubs in that time. Certainly no other quarterback has.

Earl Morrall is so much like Unitas that young Jim Ward cries himself to sleep every night. He's the Colts' backup quarterback for the backup quarterback. Morrall not only performs in the same general pattern Unitas does but also thinks like him. He's aware of what Unitas is going through now.

"I know how much it must bother him," Morrall says sympathetically. "I understand that. He's a wonderful competitor and a wonderful man. He certainly has helped me. He's been tremendous all along."

The orthopedic surgeon who examined Unitas in November said he should be as good as new by the middle of the summer. All he needs is rest, the doctor said. It's simply a case of his arm getting stronger and then his timing will come back.

Unitas says there's "no doubt in my mind" he'll be okay again next season.

Sifford Surges Ahead With Eight-Under 63

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Veteran Charlie Sifford, surging through the back nine with a barrage of birdies and an eagle, knocked eight strokes off par Thursday for a 63 and the lead in the first round of $100,000 Los Angeles open golf tournament.

The 45-year-old Sifford, the first Negro to gain top stature in professional golf, wrecked the Rancho Park Municipal Course's par 36-35-71 with nine-hole scores of 35-28.

His brilliant round put Sifford three strokes in front of two early surprises, new pro Grier Jones, the 1968 national collegiate champion from Wichita, Kan, and veteran Dave Hill of Evergreen, Colo.

Jones, 22, playing in only his fifth pro tournament, shot 32-34-66 and Hill, 31, had 34-32-66.

STARS IN BACKGROUND

The stars of the tournament, Billy Casper, with 34-35-69, U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino, 35-37-72, and Arnold Palmer, 37-36-73, were relegated to back seats.

Tied at 67 were three other lesser-known pros, Jimmy Walker, Jr., Terry Dill and Bob Murphy. Bruce Crampton was alone at 68.

Sifford sank eight-foot putts on the eighth and ninth holes and made the turn relatively unnoticed one under par. He parred the 10th and 11th and then launched his astonishing sub-par attack.

He birdied No. 12 with a three-foot putt, banked a shot in from 40 yards out on the next hole for an eagle three, and birdied the next four holes. The string ended on the 18th when he had to settle for par.

Sifford's 63 was one stroke shy of the course record of 62 set by Palmer in 1962.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 35-36-71 while Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver matched the score with a 34-37.

Robert Cox of Vancouver had a 39-34-73 and Bob Panasiuk, Windsor, Ont., shot a 37-40-77.

Bobby Hewitson Dies in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Hewitson, 76, former curator of the Sports Hall of Fame and sports editor of The Telegram, died Thursday in hospital after suffering a heart attack.

Hewitson also held posts as a racing official, hockey referee and football executive.

The National Hockey League recognized his contribution as a referee by naming him to its hall of fame in 1963. He was only the fifth NHL referee to be so honored.

CRU SECRETARY

He also was secretary of the Canadian Rugby Union for 25 years and until 1956 had never missed a Grey Cup. He was absent that year because he was en route to Australia to cover the Olympic Games.

He joined The Globe in 1913. In 1949 he gave up many of his other interests to concentrate on his job as sports editor of the Telegram until his retirement in 1957.

Hewitson served as curator of the Sports Hall of Fame until he left the post last February because of poor health.

Many Canadians remember Hewitson as an original member of the Hot Stove League radio program during intermission of NHL games.

He leaves his wife Edith and a son Glen. Funeral arrangements were not immediately known.

Chinooks hold two games in hand on Grocers and one on North Shore, but after this weekend, play their remaining four games in Vancouver — two each against Killarney and IGA.

Bob Phillips, with 23 points, and Bob Beaupre, with 21, led Grocers while Clair Wakefield and Brook Hilliard each scored 17 points for Saints.

North Shore came up with a balanced attack led by Ed Richmond's 14 points. Russ Black contributed 13 points while Keith Margetson and Lou Klassen each added 12. Frank Rotering had 20 points for Killarney.

NOT SO SERIOUS

Mini-league preliminaries are set this weekend with Firemen playing CFAX at 7:45 Saturday and Police meeting Victoria Press at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Student Club To Make Bid for Lead

University of Victoria Vikings have a chance to move into first place tonight as Vancouver Island Hockey League action resumes at Esquimalt Sports Centre after a three-week layoff.

Vikings, in second place, two points out of the lead, play first-place Stockers North Americans in a four-point game starting at 7:45 p.m.

Butler Brothers and Queen's Own Rifles clash in the other game at 9:15.

Tonight is "Father and Son-Daughter Night" at the Sports Centre, with the children getting in free if accompanied by Dad.

Retain Lead

Ingraham Buckaroos blanked Drake Hotel Aces, 4-0, Thursday in Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League play at Memorial Arena to retain their four-point lead in the standings.

Second-place Victoria Automatic Transmission kept pace with a 7-1 win over Empress Paint.

Group Contracts to Purchase Seals Seeks Permission for Buffalo Move

BUFFALO (UPI) — Buffalo-banker Seymour H. Knox III said Thursday night he and a group of associates have agreed to acquire the Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League and transfer the franchise to Buffalo at the beginning of the 1969-70 season.

Knox said he and his group already had entered into a contract to purchase the Seals, but said the agreement was subject to several conditions, including the approval of the transfer to Buffalo.

The next regular meeting of the NHL's board of governors is set for Jan. 21 in Montreal, and Knox said he hoped the board would decide on the transfer application during that session.

Knox told an evening news conference his group, Niagara Frontier Hockey, Inc., already has submitted a formal application to the NHL for the franchise transfer.

"To us, the transfer makes an awful lot of sense," he said.

PAID PLENTY

The Oakland club has been in financial trouble and unable to attract crowds large enough to show a profit, Knox added.

Knox did not disclose the purchase price but said it was a "substantial amount in excess of an NHL expansion franchise in 1965."

Some estimates have run up to $6,000,000. The expansion franchise four years ago cost about $2,000,000.

Knox said the contract for the purchase of the Oakland franchise was signed Jan. 3.

The city of Buffalo, Knox said, must increase the capacity of Memorial Auditorium from its current 9800 seats to 16,080. He said a plan was prepared for this when his group was negotiating for an expansion franchise in 1965 and was approved by the Buffalo common council.

Knox said he expects to talk with city officials immediately and hopes the mayor and council will promptly reaffirm the 1965 commitment. The NHL requires each stadium to seat at least 12,500 persons.

with Alec Merriman

Rain, snow, sleet and slush which had been plaguing Victorians would foster the idea that this is a good weekend to sit at home in front of the fireplace, watch television and repair tackle.

Don't you believe it. Fishing reports are good, some of them best they have been in the past 12 months.

Steelheaders have been meeting with good success in rivers. Many of them, contrary to what you might expect from weather conditions, are in excellent fishing condition. Spring salmon fishing has been good and salmon and grilse fishing in Saanich Inlet has been producing more fish per boat that at any time during the past year.

It seems to follow that after a hard freeze the grilse in Saanich Inlet really come on the bite ... and that is the situation just now. Every boat has been getting fish, and many have had limit catches.

The Inlet has been producing from Tod Inlet for big springs, right in front of the Brentwood ferry dock for grilse and Indian Bay, to Bamberton, to Willis Point, McKenzie Bay, The Boulder, Stone House, and Goldstream end for grilse, jacksprings and springs.

Guide Gordy Lamont boated his limit of springs up to 15 pounds off Chesterfield Rock on 100 feet of line, a pound of weight and Krippled K. spoon. Tom Moss has been limiting on springs up to 18 pounds in Tod Inlet on Tomick plugs.

The grilse are as big as 17 inches, but mostly in the 14 to 15-inch bracket. Flashtails and dodger, Abalone sppons, No. 1 Krippled K spoons and four to six ounces of weight have been taking them.

Jim Gilbert has been getting the bigger springs on green and white Octopus and revolving Slasher, but plugs and bait have also been scoring. The Tod Inlet bite has been best around mid-afternoon tide changes.

Winner of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association trophy for December was Wyn Rusk with a 20.7 pounder. Bob Jones won the junior trophy with a 14.12 pounder. Hidden weight winners were Jeff Mair, J. Gerrard, E. MacKenney and A. Olson.

VSIAA directors meet Monday, 8 p.m. at the Ingraham Hotel.

Oak Bay-guide Howard Pepper reports Oak Bay waters still good for springs, but the killer whales were in a week ago to put them off the bite for a day or two. Victoria waterfront has been producing springs and so has Pedder Bay, where Henry Rollins has been clicking regularly.

Springs are being taken off Union Bay, off the black can buoy at Royston and off the Spit at Comox. Duncan Bay, north of Campbell River has been giving up limit catches.

It looks like this may be a good year for steelhead, and don't ever think that because there is high water in the Victoria area there will be high water everywhere. It just isn't so. Snow in the hills, freezing temperatures at higher levels and the backing of a big lake, all control water runoffs and every stream is different.

Thursday's report from the Cowichan was good — lots of water and lots of steelhead. Snow conditions have kept anglers to the more easily accessible spots such as the white bridge at the old highway, and below the Silver Bridge in the Rotary Park area. Steelhead up to 18 pounds have been taken.

San Juan and Harris Creek are reported in good fishing condition, and producing. Snow fell Wednesday, but the West Coast Road was open Thursday and the Hillcrest Road was being plowed. Bear Creek Road is closed by snow.

Murray Cree, Jr., reports Little Qualicum in excellent fishing condition and producing from the bottom to the top, although snow conditions make access a little tough through the meadow. "It is the best year I have seen," he says. One group of anglers hooked 27 steelhead in the upper reaches. Englishman River has been good and the Big Qualicum only fair.

The Puntledge is in good condition and produced a 21-pounder from the Right-of-Way Pool this week and a 17-pounder from the Bluff Pool Wednesday. Oyster and Tsolum are reported low.

John Ebert, who has forsaken fishing this week to celebrate birth of his first youngster Tuesday, a 6:14-pound girl, reports the Campbell fair and in good condition. Quinsam and other rivers in the area have been low.

Cougars Prepare For Chief Rival

Victoria Cougars warm up for an important clash in Memorial Arena Saturday night with an exhibition game against their affiliate in the Pacific Coast Junior "B" Hockey League, Nor'West Caps, at North Vancouver tonight.

Cougar-coach Doug Anderson will use the game to select at least one of the Caps for Saturday's British Columbia Junior Hockey League game against Penticton Broncos.

Anderson is still minus winger Graham Brown, out with a broken wrist, and Laurie Moore, whose suspension by the league for a referee-pushing incident nearly two weeks ago won't be over until midnight Saturday.

The plan is to pick up a centre and possible one other player from the Caps and move Lon Miles back to Moore's defence spot beside Murray Kennett.

"That put two 16-year-old defencemen on the ice together, but I think they can do it," stated the Victoria coach.

Cougars lead Penticton and Vernon, who share second place, by four points. The Broncos have a game in hand on the Cougars and five games in hand on the Essos.

Game time Saturday at Memorial Arena is 8:15 p.m.

Davis Cup Stars Dominate Meet

MELBOURNE — Arthur Ashe and Charles Pasarell of the American Davis Cup team have reached the semifinals of both the men's singles and doubles in the Victoria open tennis championships.

The favored Ashe reached the singles' semi by downing Barry Phillips-Moore of Australia, 9-11, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3, while Pasarell lost his first two sets against Australia Davis Cupper Bill Bowrey before rallying for a 4-6, 5-7, 8-6, 6-1, 6-3 victory.

Also reaching the singles semi-finals were Stan Smith of the United States and Australian Ray Ruffels. Smith defeated Toomas Lejus of Russia, 6-2, 6-4, 8-6, and Ruffels sidelines American Bob Lutz, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

Ashe and Pasarell reached the doubles' semifinals with victories over the Australian duos of John Cooper and Douglas Wright, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3, and junior champions Philip Dent and John Alexander, 6-4, 10-8, 6-2.

Also advancing to the semis were Bowrey and his Davis Cup teammate Ray Ruffles, who defeated former Wimbledon singles champions Frank Sedgman and Neale Fraser.

Upset in the second round were Davis Cuppers Lutz and Smith of Los Angeles, the top rated amateur pairing in the world, who fell to Australian teenagers Bob Giltinen and Syd Ball, 7-5, 6-3, 6-8, 6-2.

Two-time Wimbledon queen Margaret Smith Court of Australia announced her second retirement from top-class tennis after a quarter-final victory over Australian junior Lesley Hunt, 6-2, 6-1.

Sub-Zero Race Starts For 312 Snowmobiles

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (CP) — The bark of snowmobiles filled the arctic air Thursday as 312 machines answered the starting gun for the Midnight Sun 600 race to Fairbanks, Alaska.

The winner will collect the major share of a $20,000 prize purse when he completes the 600-mile course. It is expected to take him three days, officials said.

Temperatures dropped to 40 degrees below zero just before race time when the snowmobiles took off at speeds reaching 70 miles an hour.

Among the six Canadian hopefuls is John Pdunak, a 23-year-old Eskimo from Yellowknife, N.W.T., sponsored by the territorial government.

If temperatures remain at 40 below, speeds of only 40 miles an hour will create a wind chill factor equivalent to 125 below.

The race will be run in three stages with two overnight stops.

Golf Pros Select Top Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper are among the four golfers elected to the Board of Directors of the newly-created tournament Division of the Professional Golfers Association.

Nicklaus and Casper will serve two-year terms while Gardner Dickinson Jr. and Dan Sikes were elected for one-year terms. All four were officers of the American Professional Golfers before that group settled its dispute last month with the PGA.

The 10-man board also includes Leo Fraser, president of the PGA; Warren Orlick, secretary; William Clark, treasurer; plus businessmen John D. Murchison of Dallas, Paul Austin of Atlanta and George Love of Pittsburgh.

Stiffer Rules Set Up In Soccer Crackdown

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — A national federation or an organizing club may be held directly responsible for unruly spectators in a European Cup game under new and more severe penal rules of the European Soccer Federation.

If dissatisfied crowds start letting off fireworks or throwing bottles on the lawn during a game, the federation's disciplinary commission may decide sanctions against the host club or the national federation, depending on who is the organizer of the match.

The new rules follow last year's recommendations by the International Soccer Federation calling for drastic measures against unruly players and crowds to counter what it called the alarming degeneration of the sport.

The new rules provide that if a team walks out of a game it will not only be disqualified but will also have to pay full damages and may be fined or suspended by the disciplinary body.

TOUGH PENALTIES

A player may be suspended indefinitely if he attacks a referee or linesman, or starts a fight or other serious incident. If he commits the offence a second time he may be suspended for life.

Other examples:

Assault of another player or a spectator will result in the offender's suspension for at least three cup games and six cup games after a second offence.

To injure or molest a referee or linesman will entail suspension for at least two cup games, or four if the offence is committed again.

ALL THE WAY

Rough play, repeated protests against a referee's decision or "incorrect behavior" of a player will be punished with his suspension for at least one cup game, or at least two after the offence is repeated.

A player who has been formally warned by the referee may be fined, after a second warning he may be suspended from one cup game and fined as well.

Suspensions Handed To Spanish Players

MADRID (Reuters) — Spanish football authorities have handed out stiff penalties on two Real Madrid stars and six other players in a bid to stop flying fists on the soccer field.

The Spanish Football Association's disciplinary committee imposed suspensions for a total of 48 matches.

Real Madrid's halfback Jose Luis Lopez was suspended for four matches and forward Miguel Perez for two games, both for punching other players. suspension for 28 matches — went to Third Division player Diego Carmona of Almeria for beating up a referee and hitting another player.

Referees did not escape the purge — two who failed to impose discipline when refereeing matches were suspended for a month.

Secret Testimony Only Action In Sirhan's Trial

LOS ANGELES (CP)—Radio reporters testified secretly in the trial of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan Thursday as his defence counsel tried to show his case was damaged because of publicity. His attorneys also sought evidence to support quashing his indictment.

Sirhan and his lawyers, and attorneys prosecuting him on a charge he murdered Robert F. Kennedy, spent only nine minutes in open court before Judge Herbert V. Walker adjourned the trial until Monday for the start of jury selection.

TRY AGAIN

One defence attorney, Emile Zola Berman, said evidence of a "saturation of publicity" surrounding Sirhan and lawyers in the case would be used to try again to postpone proceedings for 30 days. The judge has denied two defence requests for such a continuance.

Asked whether the publicity might be used to request a change of venue, Berman's co-counsel, Russell Parsons, pointed out as he has before that there are few places in the world the case has not been publicized.

MAY PLEAD MISTRIAL

He was asked if a motion for a mistrial would be more likely.

"I would say so," Parsons replied.

All principals, including Sirhan, retired into the judge's chambers where they heard testimony from several radio men and accepted copies of station logs from some of them. News reporters covering the trial were barred.

GIVEN WARNING

Herb Humphries, news editor of Los Angeles radio station KFWB, spent 10 minutes inside and came back out saying, "Guys, I've been given the warning, so hello and goodbye!"

He and others of the 10 broadcast reporters subpoenaed by the defence for the closed-door testimony said they were ordered not to discuss publicly anything that happened in chambers.

"Simply help the Canadian people decide who they need the most — their American neighbors, tourism and markets, or Trudeau, Mao, Castro and the Communist grain markets."

Students Arrive, Sent Off

MONTREAL (CP) — About 200 Grade 12 students reported to Raomain Robidoux regional high school Thursday after a one-month lockout, but were sent home because of a lack of teachers.

On Wednesday, about 60 students went to the school but had to leave when no teachers showed up to instruct them. An announcement ending the lockout was made Tuesday night.

The regional school board ordered the lockout, which started Dec. 10, in an attempt to force teachers to accept extracurricular duties such as playground supervision, not required of them under their collective agreement.

AGREEMENT NECESSARY

A spokesman for the Lignery teachers' association said although the lockout has been lifted, the teachers will not return to classes until a collective agreement is reached between the board and the association.

The lockout was stopped by the board after about 100 of the 225 teachers organized unofficial classes in church basements and private homes. Between 400 and 500 students have been attending the unofficial classes.

B.C. System

Seizure Of Land Rapped

Notice received by dozens of Delta residents from the government this week that they would be turned off their land to make way for the Roberts Bank superport rail route underlines the need for a total overhaul of B.C. expropriation laws, NDP member of the legislature Tom Berger said Thursday.

Mr. Berger, MLA for Vancouver Burrard and a candidate for the NDP provincial leadership, said the government is guilty of disinterest and neglect by failing to make arrangements for alternate accommodation.

"This highlights the necessity for immediate reforms in current expropriation practices in B.C.," he said. "There are now 28 separate statutes under which the government has authority to expropriate with each procedure different so that for the ordinary citizen they create complete confusion and shock.

"It is time this province enacted the recommendations of the 1964 Clyne royal commission report for a single expropriation statue with uniform procedures."

The opposition member said a new statute should give citizens notice of intention to expropriate so they can make representations to government, it should oblige the government to negotiate in good faith, provide arbitration at the insistence of either party if negotiations break down.

Citizens should also have the right to appeal to a court of law on points of law; and the government should provide financial assistance to citizens both in relocation and for the purpose of retaining legal counsel.

Viet Cong Coming To Victoria

Two representatives of the Viet Cong are being brought to Victoria next week by the Canadian Aid to Vietnam Civilians organization, Vancouver headquarters.

The two men — Hong Bich Song and Huynh Van Ba — will speak in Oak Bay junior high school auditorium at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

They will talk about the Vietnam war and the Paris peace talks, according to Lloyd Brereton of the CAVC organization.

"There will be a question-and-answer period," he said. "Victorians have sent a lot of aid over there, and they can ask whether it got through or not."

Mr. Hong and Mr. Huynh are permenent representatives in Havana of the National Liberation Front, Mr. Brereton said, and their visit to Canada was arranged in Moscow last month by Dr. A. M. Inglis, leader of the CAVC in Vancouver.

He said the flight from Havana to Montreal was being paid for by the Soviet Union but travel in Canada would be financed by CAVC organizations.

Strict Upbringing

Testator Saw Own Father By Appointment

By A. H. MURPHY

The late wealthy Victoria businessman Allan Douglas Ford, whose 1958 will is being contested in Supreme Court here, was brought up in a home so strict that he had to make an appointment to see his father, Ald. Robert Baird said Thursday.

As the hearing went in to its fourth day, Ald. Baird, who is a broker with Hagar Investments Ltd., told the court that he was a personal as well as a business friend of Mr. Ford and that he handled his large portfolio of investments for many years.

The will, which disposes of an estate of $1,152,792, is being contested by John Douglas Ford of Melbourne, Australia.

MOST TO CHARITIES

Under its terms, John Ford is left $50,000, and except for bequests to relatives and friends, the remainder goes to a number of Victoria charities.

Substance of the case, as pointed out Wednesday by Mr. Justice R. A. B. Wootton, is the allegation that the testator was suffering under the delusion that John Ford was not his son.

The original brief in the case declared that John Ford would maintain that the testator was "not of sound mind, memory and understanding."

EARLIER WILL

If the 1958 will was upset, a 1953 testament would come into force, which would give the whole estate to John Ford with the exception of two bequests amounting to $350,000.

One, for $200,000, would go to Christ Church Cathedral building fund and the other, for $150,000, to what was described in a codicil to the will as the Family Welfare and Children's Aid Society.

Ald. Baird said he had a great liking for Mr. Ford and believed the feeling was reciprocated.

ENJOYED COMPANY

"He was a most fascinating man, and I enjoyed his company. I used to visit his home and he would come to mine. He had a great flair for the dramatic and loved to impress people with his accomplishments. He loved to tell stories and was a great lover of music," Ald. Baird said.

The question of the legitimacy of Mr. Ford's son has been a paramount issue in the hearing, and Ald. Baird was asked if Mr. Ford ever spoke of the matter.

The witness said that the testator "spoke ill of his wife" and felt that she had never been true to him.

Ald. Baird quoted Mr. Ford as saying, "Bob, I have some doubts if he is my son."

He loved to speak of his early life, Ald. Baird told the court. Mr. Ford said he loved his mother but was brought up in the type of home where one made an appointment to talk to his father.

"He didn't hate his father, but it was a very strict upbringing," Ald. Baird said.

Mr. Ford was married in 1908, and John Ford was born in 1922. When the child was five, the Ford's separated and Mrs. Ford took the boy with her to Australia. John Ford didn't see his father again until his last illness. Mr. Ford died in 1967.

GERMAN ROYALTY

Asked about the Potsdam Tray, which has been a colorful feature of the hearing, Ald. Baird said that Mr. Ford told him that it "represent" a line of royalty which would rule if Germany ever again became a monarchy.

The witness said that Mr. Ford once put a $20,000 value on it. Under cross-examination, he admitted the figure could have been $100,000.

"He was a very dramatic man," Ald. Baird said.

Mrs. Nancy Baddeley, a friend of the testator for 40 years, said she used to see him on a social basis on Saturdays for many years.

COOKED DINNER

She would meet him downtown and go with him to his home, where she would cook dinner. Later in the evening she would be picked up by her husband.

She never stayed overnight, Mrs. Baddeley told the court.

She knew of two attacks suffered by the testator in the years around 1953 and 1954, Mrs. Baddeley said, but he recovered quickly and his faculties were left unimpaired.

He began to fail in 1963 when he went into a nursing home, she added.

AVOIDED SUBJECT

Housekeeper for the testator for a number of years from 1960, Mrs. Jane Ritson said she avoided the subject of his wife and son.

The testator spoke constantly about the Potsdam Tray, Mrs. Ritson said, and told how it had been brought from Germany strapped to a man's back. The man was killed later, Mr. Ford told her.

The tray was hidden in the house in a secret compartment for a time, Mrs. Ritson said.

Evidence was given earlier that it was later taken to the vaults of the Royal Trust Company.

Bad Habits Survey Planned for City

If you are driving in Greater Victoria and have a funny feeling that someone is watching you, you just might be right.

The man with his eye on drivers is Dennis Wagner, general manager of Greater Victoria Safety Council.

He is making a survey of their bad habits in preparation for a safety campaign to be undertaken later this year.

"There is nothing wrong with the driving skill of most motorists," he said, "but the attitude of some of them is hair-raising."

Mr. Wagner said impatience and "downright rudeness" were the worst faults he had noticed so far in his survey.

Just how this attitude can be corrected he does not yet know, he said, but a campaign to improve motoring manners, and increase safety as a result will be devised.

Another project in the works is the planning of a route for Sunday drivers who want to dawdle along enjoying the scenery.

Mr. Wagner said many motorists get impatient with the slowpokes and they can create hazards on major traffic roads.

An earlier suggestion by Mr. Wagner to remove hazards has so far not won any support, That called for lovers' parking lanes at such places as commuter transfer points in order that lingering farewells would not hold up other traffic.

Said Mr. Wagner: "No one was interested in that. I suppose there are lots of places available around here without creating them."

Resident of Oak Bay Dies on Visit to U.S.

Longtime Oak Bay resident, Mrs. Agnes Harris, 1319 Newport, died Wednesday in Issaquah, Wash. at 84, while visiting her daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Schmoe.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at McCall Bros. funeral home.

Mrs. Harris is survived by two brothers, Joseph Christie of Montreal, and John Christie in Scotland. Also two sisters, Meg and Barbara, both in Scotland.

Laboratory Space Unveiled

New laboratory and office space was officially opened Thursday at the Forest Research Laboratory on Burnside Road.

Six laboratories and 11 offices are included in the addition, opened by regional director Ray Lejeune. It relieves crowding of the 186 research scientists, technicians, administration and service personnel.

Schools' Projects Approved

The education department has granted permission to call tenders on two expansion projects at Willows and Rockheights elementary schools, it was announced Thursday.

The eight-room addition to Rockheights has been estimated at $224,000. The Willows project, seven rooms, is currently estimated at $199,540.

U.S. Influence Hits Canadian Universities

Headlong Expansion Flayed

Bishop

University of Victoria Professor Roger Bishop slammed American teachers at Canadian universities Thursday for their part in current student unrest.

Prof. Bishop was keynote speaker at the annual meeting of the Corporation of B.C. Land Surveyors.

Describing his activist American colleagues, Prof. Bishop said "Perhaps the kindest thing one can say about such people is that they have been conditioned by the never-never land of American TV advertising, that they have actually come to believe that they never will have to put anything down and that they will always have five years to pay. Sufficient to say the Americans have come, they have seen and they have conquered our institutions.

"Where they have not been in an actual majority in a faculty, they have given leadership to substitute American ways of doing things for our traditional Canadian."

Power Shift

Prof. Bishop went on to discuss the alteration in the power structure at the University of Victoria brought about the influx of American teachers.

"In effect we operate now under an elective committee system, all faculty are equal, and though heads, deans and presidents are charged with pursuing quality, it is very difficult to see how anyone accepting office can take that very seriously since he has few if any powers left with which to coerce the careless. Can you wonder I resigned as a head and that since then many other heads have also given up?

"The seizure of power by the inexperienced majority of faculty has laid, in my opinion, these standards open to new pressures, the consequences of which we will only be able to explore as the years pass. And now the activist students want to obtain for themselves and their successors a place in the power structure of the university equivalent to that occupied by the faculty."

Naive View

Prof. Bishop said," I do not accuse the local activists, either faculty or students, of being part of a Communist takeover plot, but I do accuse them of having a naive view of human nature. I do accuse them of irresponsibly pursuing a course of conduct that threatens the worthwhileness of every degree given by our universities.

"I do accuse them of neglecting the main problem that threatens to overwhelm the quality of all work done in our B.C. universities. I mean the problem of headlong, unchecked expansion."

Prof. Bishop said he opposed rapid expansion. "The University of Victoria as a multiversity, as Victoria's colossal leading industry, may be a pleasing image to those who hope to make fat real estate profits, but every student and every faculty member who co-operates in the process is selling his intellectual birthright and betraying his profession."

He suggested as one solution to the problem of unrest the development of two-year junior colleges.

Colleges Vital

"If the British Columbia government is sincere in its concern for the quality of higher education, if it is really interested in preventing more campus unrest, then it must promote by every means in its power a diversification of two-year colleges throughout this province, and it must see that this is done without further delay," he said.

"Junior colleges have the great advantage of promoting close contact. At the present time, too, they would have, properly organized, the advantage of restoring a direct Canadian influence in our system of higher education.

"Mr. Trudeau is on record as saying that the biggest crisis Canada faces today is the French-English problem. I think he is wrong. In our dispute together, both French and English-speaking Canadians have forgotten that we live under the shadow of the American colossus. Some people are expressing dismay that so many of our companies are controlled from America.

Delivered Over

"It is about time they realized that all our education is being increasingly controlled from there, too. Long ago it was said, 'Give me a child at seven years and I will make him what I please.' We have given our children American texts, they watch American TV. One of the effects of incorporating our old normal school system into our universities has been to Americanize the training of our primary teachers. Now we have delivered our universities over to American influence."

Prof. Bishop concluded by saying that if the expansion program was not slowed the university would become in the words of T. S. Eliot, a "shape without form, a shade without color, a paralyzed force, a gesture without emotion."

"Our precipitate rush into the abyss of the faceless, mechanical multiversity has been accelerated."

Faculty Members Deny UVic Americanization

The acting president of the University of Victoria and two faculty members disagreed Thursday with claims by Professor Roger Bishop that UVic has been Americanized by U.S. teachers and that standards are in danger of lowering because of speedy growth.

"It seems to me that the university must continue to try to attract the best it can get, regardless of country or origin," said Dean Robert Wallace, acting president.

"Canadian universities are striving to fill the need and progress is being made."

"This university, like every other, hires the best people it can," said Dr. Harry Scargill, dean of graduate studies and head of the linguistics department.

"Less than one-third of our faculty are from the States."

Dr. James E. Hendrickson, professor of history and university faculty association chairman, commented:

"I don't think there is any merit in the suggestion that new faculty are not well-prepared. It's quite evident that in the past three years the quality of faculty has improved."

"I'm not aware that we are being inundated by Americans," said Dr. Hendrickson. He added that the character of the institution will change somewhat no matter where new faculty come from.

Many new faculty are from the United Kingdom, he added.

There are now more than 300 faculty members at UVic. The university has just hired an American president, Dr. Bruce Partridge, who takes office next summer.

"There was no reference to where he came from," said Dr. Scargill, speaking of Dr. Partridge.

"Education is a world affair."

Confusing Names Studied

By DESMOND BILL

Pity poor postmen!

They get a letter addressed to someone on McKenzie. In that McKenzie Street in Victoria or McKenzie Avenue in Saanich?

Or the letter is for an address on Parkland. But is it Parkland Drive in Esquimalt or Parkland Street in Sooke?

Or Agnes Street. Which one? There is one in Saanich and another in Esquimalt.

COURT OR ROAD

Or should a letter go to Bryden Court or Brydon Road?

The similarity of names of thoroughfares in the region causes confusion every day, and not only to mailmen. But finally something is being done about it.

Capital Region Planning Board has made a study of the problem at the request of Saanich council, and recommendations to solve it will be made at a board meeting later this month.

GRADUAL THING

No one expects any immediate action to change the situation; it is something that can only come about gradually. But it is hoped that at least the report will stop any further spread of confusion.

However, any move to change an existing street name is likely to run into trouble from people who live on the street.

Planning Now for Next Year

UVic CUSO Leader On Per Capita Basis

By DON GAIN

The University of Victoria last year sent overseas more CUSO volunteers per capita of enrolment than any other university in Canada.

"We sent 22 volunteers to African countries, South America, the Caribbean and Asia," said Dr. Kenneth Moss, assistant professor of chemistry, who is chairman of the selection committees.

"We are beginning to interview people now for next year," he said, "and will be doing so until April or May."

VARIETY OF SKILLS

He said anybody who wanted information on CUSO could get it from Mrs. Diana Caleb in Hut M at the university.

CUSO — Canadian University Service Overseas — needs people with a wide variety of qualifications, he said.

"We're looking for people with skills," the professor said. "Skills to use to teach or to run a project."

GREAT DEMAND

He mentioned teachers, engineers, agriculturists, X-ray technicians, social workers, foresters, physiotherapists.

"We also need welders, electricians, carpenters, not to mention nurses, doctors and veterinarians, who are in great demand."

The volunteer may be almost any age, as long as he or she is healthy. Married couples are acceptable if both are skilled and can work as a team, or if they can be placed in jobs near each other.

SAME PAY SCALE

The volunteer is employed by the country he goes to and is paid exactly the same rate as a person of that country in the same job.

"This usually means a much lower standard of living," Dr. Moss said. "They are not allowed cars unless the job specifically calls for it."

When the volunteer returns, after a two-year stint, some financial help may be forthcoming because there is not much chance of saving money. Aid in settling back into life in Canada and in getting employment is also given.

ORIENTATION

There are orientation courses of about four weeks, half in Canada and half in the country to which the volunteer is assigned. In Canada the courses are given in Vancouver, London, Montreal and Antigonish.

In the overseas country, instruction is given in social, religious and cultural attitudes.

Dr. Peter Smith, chairman of classics at UVic and chairman of the CUSO committee last year, said the organization predates the Peace Corps in the U.S.

He said, however, that CUSO never became identified with foreign policy in any way.

"It's a private organization," he said, "and the countries know that the volunteers don't have any axe to grind."

"I feel that we at UVic are specially involved with CUSO. Mrs. Shirley Baker, co-ordinator of women's activities, went to East Africa last fall as supervisor of CUSO operations there. She is now living in Dar-es-Salaam, Tanzania."

Strong Possibility:

Weekend a White One

By DON COLLINS

Caught in the confusion of conflicting weather reports, Victorians may be preparing for the weekend with raincoats, umbrellas, snowshoes and toboggans.

Latest word from the Victoria weather office:

That snow you were told to expect, then not to expect, may be on its way after all — possibly not as much as forecast and not as soon.

GOOD LIKELIHOOD

The weatherman says there is a good likelihood of four to five inches of snow spread over Saturday and Sunday as the mercury dips to the high twenties.

First forecasts had indicated six to nine inches of snow before the weekend with another Arctic freeze. A change in the weather pattern prompted a new forecast Wednesday night. There was to be no snow after all.

By Thursday this was reported to have been based on a Vancouver forecast by mistake. The snow and cold would still come by Friday.

That forecast remained unchanged for several hours. Then came word that there might be a little less snow, a day later.

All of which, a harassed Victoria weatherman will tell you, is subject to change. There is a strong possibility of snow. But it is not a certainty.

Strikers Promise Roaming Pickets

Victoria's ministrike, which started after a government-supervised vote by three workers, was to add its latest frill today — roaming pickets.

Teamsters Union representative Jim Scott of Vancouver said Thursday night six pickets (only eight persons are on strike) would carry placards outside Greater Victoria stores doing business with Hy Fidelity Photos.

The Teamsters say Hy Fidelity is really just another name being used for Mortifee Munshaw Ltd., 750 Discovery. An unsuccessful attempt to bring about a first contract led to the strike Nov. 27.

The union had planned earlier to shadow company film delivery cars with cars of its own so that the delivery cars could be picketed each time they stopped.

But this fell through, according to Mr. Scott, when the company added a second man to each car. The second man kept the car circling the block while the first picked up or delivered film.

Mystery Copter Calls To City Pad in Dark

A mystery helicopter landed at Victoria Heliport after dark Thursday night and took off again, apparently before anyone was able to identify it.

The heliport is not equipped with lights for night landings.

Victoria police, alerted of the intended landing, sent a car to the scene to provide light. But the craft was gone by the time the car arrived.

A police officer said a check with Garden City Ambulance would probably disclose that the helicopter had made a mercy flight.

A spokesman for the company said no ambulance had been requested and suggested the craft had possibly been making a practice landing.

A search and rescue military helicopter landed during the evening at Patricia Bay airport, but a control tower official said no mention had been made of either a landing or intended landing in Victoria.

Military spokesmen at Comox air base said they knew of no such landing.

Private Firm's Low Bid Fails

Victoria Takes Over Ambulance Run

Victoria council decided Thursday to take over the emergency ambulance service in the city and have it operated by the fire department.

The present private operator, Garden City Ambulance, indicated late last year it was in financial difficulties and could not maintain service without going bankrupt.

Garden City Ambulance again bid for the job when it came up for tender, and its cost of $173,750 was lower than the $184,416 estimate of the fire department.

But City Manager Dennis Young said the company's bid was no more realistic than the low bid by which it won the last tender and which forced the company into difficulties.

Two other private companies bid $270,000 and $313,431 for the job. Mr. Young said their tenders were probably closer to the cost that would be incurred by private operators who have overhead expenses not incurred by the fire department.

The municipal operation will mean the fire department has to hire eight extra men to handle around-the-clock service, and will also have to buy a new ambulance.

Breast Cancer Treatment

New Hope for Control

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (CP) — United States government scientists reported exciting developments in controlling certain transplanted animal cancers with a new drug. They said they plan further explorations of it as a possible new weapon against human cancer.

Researchers of the National Institutes of Health said they hope to try the new injectable synthetic chemical against such solid, slow-growing, tumors in man as lung cancer and breast cancer which have not responded well to other anti-cancer drugs.

Up to now non-solid cancerous conditions — such as leukemia — have been virtually the only ones to respond to chemical attack. Surgery and radiation have been the main means of attacking solid tumors, and scientists have long sought drug weapons.

The researchers stressed that while the animal experiments are encouraging — including some at least temporary disappearances of malignancy — there is no guarantee the drug would be useful against cancer in man.

Further, they reported, it remains to be determined whether the chemical would be safe for humans in doses large enough to be effective. But they disclosed they are already planning efforts to develop suitable doses for human trials.

Dr. Hilton Levy of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases and Dr. Lloyd Law and Dr. Alan Rabson of the National Cancer Institute told about it in a report prepared for an international conference in Lyon, France.

The institutes made available a digest of their report.

The new drug — tried on mice and rats — is polyinosinic-polycytidylic acid, or Poly I:C for short.

The drug was tried against a variety of malignant tissues of animal origin which were implanted to animals of appropriate strains.

"With all the tumors studied," said the summary, "Poly I:C treatment decreased the rate of tumor growth, increased survival time of animals or caused a regression of established tumors."

Rights at Bar Woman's Goal

TACOMA (CP) — Lynda McElroy is going to stand up for her rights — the right to sit at a bar.

Miss McElroy, 29-year-old Tacoma beautician, said Wednesday she plans to refile a suit to obtain that right.

State law allows women to sit at the bar in a tavern where no hard liquor is sold, but prohibits them from doing the same thing in a cocktail lounge.

"I've had a lot of letters and phone calls," Miss McElroy said. "One woman said the 'ladies of Tacoma' are going to run me out of town — that no lady would want to sit at the bar.

"But I feel as deeply as ever about the unfairness of the law. I'm not going to give up. Women should have the same rights at the bar as men."

ERMA BOMBECK

Rob and Ricky Play It Tricky

Anyone over 35 is bound to remember the haunting lyrics of a song called John and Marsha. (To those under 35, I'll clue you. They were the only two words in the entire song.)

My neighbor, Mayva Larnyx, has written a sequel to it called Rob and Ricky. The song was inspired by her two sons who were playing one day in their bedroom. Mayva simply wrote down their conversation and set it to music. Another Harper Valley PTA it isn't, but it might just ring a familiar chord to the mothers of boys.

"Rob!"
"Ricky!"
"Rob, don't!"
"Ricky, don't!"
"I'm telling."
"I'm telling FIRST!"

(Refrain: Mother's voice: "What's going on in there?" Boys, in unison (softly): "Nothing.")

"Rob, shut up."
"Ricky, you shut up."
"Rob, stop it!"
"Ricky, you stop it!"
"I'm telling."
"I'M telling."
"I'm telling FIRST!"

(Refrain: Mother's voice: "What's going on in there?" Boys, in unison (softly): "Nothing.")

"Rob!"
"Ricky!"
"You're hurting me, Rob.'
"Quit hitting me, Ricky."
"I'm bleeding, Rob."
"I'm glad, Ricky."
"I'm telling."
"I'M telling."
"I'm telling FIRST."

(Refrain: Mother's voice: "What's going on in there?" Boys, in unison: "He's looking at me."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I do believe you are getting balmy in your old age. When that pathetic woman wrote that she was sick of sex—she got nothing out of it but frustration and fatigue—and went on to say she has had seven children in 14 years, you advised her to teach her husband to be a good lover. In fact, you suggested "Night School."

Take my word for it, Ann, lessons won't help him. The teaching should have been done years ago — by parents who set an example of gentleness and affectionate behavior in the home. I know what I'm talking about because I am married to the same kind of a lummox as the woman who wrote.

We had six children in 14 years and I can tell you there is no relation between the number of children a woman has and sexual compatibility with her husband. This may sound disgraceful but I'm going to say it anyway. I feel like a prostitute. I satisfy my husband's sexual needs in exchange for financial security, respectability and the social prestige that goes with being his wife. Your suggestion that the unfulfilled woman teach her husband how to be a good lover is just plain absurd. These men don't want to learn. They are interested only in satisfying their animal passions. Period. — Sick of Sex and Hungry for Love

Dear Hungry: I've had so many thoughtful letters from wives with this same complaint that I am rethinking the problem. More later.

Why Fear Anesthetic?

Dear Ann Landers: As a registered nurse, may I add a word of reassurance to the bride-to-be who was afraid to have surgery because she was fearful of disclosing an old secret while under the anesthetic?

I have been an RN on the surgical ward for almost 20 years. Often the first question asked by a patient (invariably a woman) when she wakes from the anesthetic is, "What did I say?"

I always tell her, "Nothing — nothing at all." And this is the truth. I have yet to hear a patient — male or female — disclose any secrets while coming out of an anesthetic. Most of their words are slurred and unintelligible.

So please, Ann, inform your readers that if they need surgery and are holding off because of this fear, they are very foolish. — Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston

Dear RN: Thanks for your letter of reassurance from a professional who is in a position to know. It was good of you to write.

Confidential to Should I Sue?: You could, yes, but my advice is forget it. Suits of this kind are costly and usually they end up giving the sordid story more publicity than it received the first time around. Even a verdict in your favor would leave unconvinced those people who want to believe it.

Little bit chilly

But No Size A, B or C

Bra to Breast Plate

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — The ancient Cretans did it, so why shouldn't today's girls wear breast plates?

Cadoro, a costume jewelry firm here, has come out with the first serious collection. Their breast plates are gold plated, some jewel-studded, and they are held up by gold chains, adjustable around the neck like a halter top.

Don Stoenescu, partner and co-designer with Stephen Brody in the firm, spent the summer in Crete and copied the idea straight from the old frescoes.

"There was this girl walking along in one of them, and she looked just like somebody you'd see today. She had a bikini with gold breast plates instead of a bra," he says.

There are about four styles of metal breast plates in the Cadoro collection, and the designs are all taken from ancient pieces of jewelry Don Stoenescu saw in the museums of Crete.

All of the breast plates are edged in gold filigree, except the one pair that is not only textured but decorated with ruby and sapphire stones. It won't be quite possible to order breast plates in A, B, and C sizes, but they actually come small, mediim, and larger. One of the most attractive designs is all delicate filigree leaves.

Breast plates may sound like a gag, but they actually make sense as a fashion.

The bra has been the biggest throwaway of the year. It has gone the way of the corset and the girdle, not just with teenagers but with 30 and 40-year-olds who are well built.

Few girls, though, are brave enough or exhibitionist enough, whichever you prefer to call it, to wear nothing at all under the dozens of diaphonous fashions that fill the stores.

Designers are going right on, too, with wide-apart decolletages that reach the waist, lace dresses with no slips and all kinds of peek-a-boo crochet work. The trend to take off and to show bare skin and a good, healthy body is a long way from over, if ever.

At a small shop the other day, I heard a well-dressed older woman hesitating over a pullover top and pants in open-work linen lace.

Should she order the top with a Marlene Dietrich type nude lining? The look struck her as too affected, but she said no to wearing nothing and disliked the idea of a white bra showing through.

The gold breast plates, half seen and looking like a piece of jewelry against the skin, would have been the perfect solution.

Breast plates are just another step in the metamorphosis of jewelry from idle decoration into clothes. In this era, the jewelers simply can't lose.

Besides the breast plates, Stoenescu and Brody have designed halter top bras of both crystal and colored stones. Remember? Pauline Trigere was one of the first to put a jeweled bra under a see-through top last season.

The halter bras at Cadoro are to wear over bare skin if you're the type, or over a dress if you aren't. They do a lot for a plain black dress if anybody still treasures one.

Store buyers who have seen Cadoro's new foundation jewelry are even more excited than hteir designers expected. Many have ordered for themselves. Both breast plates and bras will soon be in stores. The breast plates will cost about $50.

Models who have already posed in them for fashion photographs like them, too. "They're quite comfortable, once you get used to them," one model says. "The only thing is they're a little bit chilly." But of course they're meant for warmer weather.

Tallulah Left Million

NEW YORK (CP) — Actress Tallulah Bankhead's estate has been estimated at well over $1,000,000. Miss Bankhead, 65, died Dec. 12 of pneumonia. Papers filed Wednesday in Surrogate's Court disclosed assets of $1,000,000, with the tally not over. She owned several expensive paintings with their value not yet evaluated.

POMPEII, Italy (CP) — A foot-high bronze statue of Pompna, goddess of fruit, has been stolen from the ancient house where it stood for some 1,900 years after erupting Mt. Vesuvius buried this Roman resort town in ash and lava. Guards at the unearthed ruins said the statue was worth about $600.

A Lovelier You

Sticky Situations Really No Sweat

By MARY SUE MILLER

A teen asks: How can a girl keep her cool through a whole evening of dancing? I get so warm that the situation gets positively sticky. Really, it's embarrassing.

The Answer: Go fortified! There are a number of handy refreshers that tuck into a small purse. Excellent boosters to home applications of antiperspirants come in several forms, such as pressed powder in a small compact and disposable pads in leakproof foil wrappers.

A shiny nose and slipping makeup respond to blotting with small linen squares made for the purpose or with grainy blotting powder. Either method leaves the face fresh and sparkly, but not a bit shiny.

A flacon of light, airy cologne is a without-which-not. Pats of a clean scent on the wrists and throat are cooling. And reassuring.

Cologne, of course, is available in flacons or can be decanted into one from a large bottle. The problem of moist hands is also solved with cologne. Some girls, however, prefer talcum powder. And it is best toted in a tiny plastic shaker, often found in variety stores.

By taking all these measures, you put an end to embarrassment. Do you know that embarrassment — fluster of any kind — raises more havoc than a dance or two? Have you stopped to think you can always sit one out?

8 CARD OF THANKS

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbors to know how much their kind words and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the end loss of our husband and father, Herbert Allison. Special thanks to Dr. W. J. Bell, St. Joseph's Hospital staff and Saanich Ambulance. Sands Funeral Home.—Pearl Allison and family.

8 CARD OF THANKS

A sincere thank-you to our friends and neighbors for their thoughtfulness during the long illness of our dear mother, Mrs. Constance Griffiths. A special word of thanks to Dr. Fiddess, the V.O.N. and the Garden City nurses, who were so very kind. —The Griffiths family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

HILL—In loving memory of a dear son, Glenn Michael Hill, who passed away Jan. 8, 1966.
I cannot say, and I will not say that he is dead.
He is just away!
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land.
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there,
And you — oh you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return.
Think of him faring on, as dear,
In the love of There, as the love of Here.
Think of him still as the same, I say—
He is not dead — he is just away.
—Lovingly remembered by mother, father, sister and brother.

'Archaic'

Winch Doesn't Like Lord's Day Act

NANAIMO — Liberal candidate Eric Winch thinks that the Lord's Day Act is archaic and not in keeping with the times.

Mr. Winch, who is contesting the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands seat in the Feb. 10 byelection, told Hub City Kiwanis Club Thursday that greater freedom should be allowed in recreation and business areas.

"For the law to be respected, it must reflect the desires of the community," he said.

"I do not advocate a wide-open Sunday, but rather one which is observed in a manner suited to the wishes of today's citizens."

On income tax and housing, Mr. Winch wondered why a person should pay income tax on interest received from mortgage payments while no exemption could be claimed by the person paying the mortgage.

"It might not be a bad incentive for the government to allow exemptions on all interest paid on mortgages covering a house occupied by a taxpayer," he said.

Comox Development

Harbor Plan Given Priority

COMOX — Plans for harbor development at Comox received top priority this week when Mayor R. D. Ellis announced the proposed formation of a new committee to handle the project.

The matter has been discussed in the past but gathered more momentum after it was suggested there could be a classification change to that of a harbor.

Ellis

Mayor Ellis referred to the establishment of a harbor development and business liaison committee in his first address to this year's council.

He named his committees, asked council to consider combining the parks and recreation committees and named Ald. Louis Beduz, who defeated incumbent John Holmes, to chair the new harbor development committee.

His brief address to aldermen, their wives and guests, followed a dinner and installation of Ald. R. D. Graham and Ald. Beduz.

Other committees named were public works, Ald. Graham, chairman, Ald. Pat. Bing and Ald. Jim Percy; parks and recreation, Ald. Percy, chairman, Ald. Graham,; health welfare, library and civil defence, Ald. Bing, chairman, Ald. Beduz, fire, Ald. Beduz chairman, Ald. Bing; finance, Mayor Ellis, chairman, and council of the whole; street lighting, Ald. Bing, Chairman, Ald. J. Percy.

Ald. Graham and Ald. Percy will assist Ald. Beduz on the harbor development committee.

Ski Reports Excellent

Skiing conditions on Green Mountain appears to be excellent this weekend.

An added 12 inches of new snow was reported by the Sno Bird Ski Club Thursday to go with the 100-inch base.

Freezing level on the mountain is at 1000 feet, clearance of the road from the highway into the parking lot has been accomplished by the Dept. Highways and snowmobiles and rope-tows will be in operation starting at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Ministers Will Face Breakwater 'Whys'

CHEMAINUS — The $1,000,000 breakwater issue is not dead yet.

Liberal candidate in the Feb. 10 byelection, Eric Winch, and the Chemainus Chamber of Commerce will corner two federal ministers this month in a bid to reverse the recent Ottawa decision refusing the project.

They are public works minister Arthur Laing and fisheries minister Jack Davis. The chamber submitted its brief last summer.

Election Signs Stolen

NANAIMO — NDP election posters are being torn down in the greater Nanaimo area.

Six four-foot by eight-foot plywood signs have been removed from the downtown area together with at least 150 cardboard fence and lawn signs.

Joyce Nash, of Nanaimo, campaign manager for national leader T. C. Douglas, a candidate in the Feb. 10 Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands byelection, said she had not had any reports of missing signs in other parts of the riding.

Mrs. Nash stressed that she did not believe that any of the other parties were involved in the vandalism.

She said that one or two of the large signs were taken from the tops of downtown flatroof buildings. In the Townsite Plaza district, workers had replaced 50 signs at least twice.

Frank Crane of Nanaimo, campaign manager for Liberal candidate Eric Winch called the thefts "poor ball."

He said an agreement among all parties would negate any thoughts that opposing factions were responsible.

Soccer Slate Wiped Clean

All senior soccer games scheduled here this coming weekend have been postponed because of field and weather conditions.

Victoria O'Keefes of the Pacific Coast League were to have played UBC Thunderbirds at Macdonald Park on Saturday. Their next game is Jan. 25 against Croatia at Macdonald Park.

The Victoria and District League had planned a full slate of games in each of the first and second divisions.

Impairment Gets Blame

A coroner's jury ruled Thursday that the accident Dec 5, that caused the death of Alfred and Constance Burnell-Higgs on Millstream Road was due to the impaired driving of Donald Rabbitts, 1938 Island Highway.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre delivered a 50 minute charge to the jury before sending it out to deliberate. The inquest had been adjourned for a month after hearing medical evidence.

Garden Notes

The Tricky Ones

By M. V. CHESNUT

I had a letter the other day from a reader who complains that in my recent series of articles on houseplant care, I hadn't as much as mentioned the miniature houseplant rose.

My reason for omitting the rose is simple enough; a rose has no business blooming in midwinter. Like the outdoor roses, it should drop its leaves, go dormant and take a rest during the winter months. During this period, it should be stored in a cold but frost-free place, ideally around 40 degrees, with the soil almost but not quite bone dry.

In early February your little rose should be pruned, shortening all branches to a little less than half their length. Bring to a sunny window in a coolish room — these plants dislike temperatures higher than 70 degrees — and resume normal watering. After it has leafed out, a few drops of liquid houseplant fertilizer may be given in its water once a week.

Another letter asks about the care of a gardenia; this plant was not a Christmas gift but was purchased in a supermarket. It had one flower open and two plump buds when bought, but both buds and blossom fell off during the first week in its new home.

This is a very common occurrence. Gardenias are almost as well known for the buds they lose as for the sweetly scented flowers they manage to produce. One common cause is the abrupt change in environment, as from a controlled-climate greenhouse to a drafty, arid home. Very often, the leaf tips and stem tips turn black, and from the same cause.

A gardenia should do well in about the same light conditions as an African violet; direct sunshine in winter, light or partial shade in summer. It is somewhat fussier as to temperature than most houseplants, demanding a range between 62 and 65 degrees by night, 70 or very slightly higher by day. Buds may fall to form if the nighttime temperature drops below 60 or much over 70.

Like the azalea, the gardenia has a pronounced dislike for hard water and it is safest to use only rainwater, melted snow, or refrigerator defrostings. Soil should be maintained evenly but just barely moist, and the leaves and buds should be sprayed daily or oftener through the winter with plain soft water.

The feeding of a gardenia is a bit tricky too. A good plan is to feed weekly from January to September, alternating between a balanced houseplant fertilizer and straight sulphate of ammonia. The balanced fertilizer may be any of the proprietory brands such as Alaska Fish, Blue Whale, Algimure, RX-15, Instant Vigoro, Sangral etc., administered in water at half the strength recommended on the label.

The ammonium sulphate, given every second week, is given also in solution, one teaspoonful per pint of water. This routine helps maintain an acid condition in the soil, so necessary for this plant.

The gardenia is given no food at all from September to January, and watering should be reduced slightly, allowing the soil to become quite dry to the touch between waterings. The daily spraying of the leaves with a fine mist of water should be continued, though.

JACK SMITH Recalls Spartan Yachtsman

He Made His One Mistake

The story appeared two or three weeks ago, with a Moscow dateline.

Somewhere in the Atlantic, Latvian fishermen had found a sailing boat adrift. It was less than 12 feet long — "demasted and deserted."

In its tiny cabin they found the papers and diary of William Willis, U.S. citizen. The diary noted that Willis had set out May 3 from New York to sail around the world alone. The last entry was July 18.

"After a futile search for Willis," the story said, "the boat was hoisted aboard the fishing ship."

I met William Willis twice. The first time was in December, 1963. He had just come home after sailing a raft 6,700 miles across the Pacific, from Peru to Samoa.

He was disappointed. He had meant to sail all the way to Australia, he said, "because it's the longest stretch of the Pacific you can sail."

He had fought a series of brutal squalls; his raft was broken on the Samoan reef; he had suffered a painful and disabling rupture.

"As soon as I can," he said, "I'm going right back to Apia and take the raft and sail it to Australia."

The second and last time I was Willis was in February, 1965. He was holed up in a motel in Westwood, Calif., on his way home to New York from Australia. He was then 71 years old. His hair and beard were white; but his body was dark and lean and hard as a bowsprit.

He had finished his voyage. He had returned to Apia and repaired his raft and sailed it from Samoa to Australia. It was 72 days and nights of incredible hardship and trial.

Storms had lashed and torn him and driven him hundreds of miles off course. He was in constant touch with the spectre of death.

"One mistake out there," he said, "and it's all over. One mistake and I was overboard. One mistake, that's all."

Once, in a storm, he fell backwards into the end of a steel jib boom. A bone was fractured in his spine. For six days his legs were paralyzed.

I asked him how it happened. Had the wind knocked him down? Or a swinging spar?

He was sitting in a straight hard chair, the kind he preferred. His chin was up and his arms were folded over his chest like coiled rope.

"Nothing ever knocked me down," he said.

He had been pulling on the mainsail, he explained, and the rope broke and he fell back and was hurt. He dragged himself over the deck to the house and got a line about his waist. He lay helpless for six days.

Willis was heading for Sydney, on the bottom of Australia, but the storms blew him onto the Great Barrier Reef north of the continent. Many times he crashed on the reef before he found a passage and beached on the desolate Queensland coast.

Why, I asked him. Why such undertakings, a man of 70.

"I wanted to show," he told me, "that a man past 65 is still in the running, if he wants to be. Our young people today can't take two steps without a Coca Cola or an ice cream cone or a cigarette."

Willis liked being alone. He made no human contact on that voyage. He saw no sign of man; not even smoke or a sail.

We will never know how Willis perished. The sea closes forever over its triumphs. I suppose he made his one mistake. But I am sure of one thing. Nothing ever knocked him down.

SYDNEY HARRIS

Cuts Earth To Size

I was listening to a lecture by an astronomer last month, and he mentioned the relative size of our world in the universe. He said that the best modern telescope can now see so far into space that if we took the whole United States as our model, the Earth would not even appear on it, when looked at with electron microscopes.

This is a hard image to illustrate with words, so let me try again in another way. If that part of the universe we can already see were the size of the U.S., the size of the Earth in that area would be about as small as a virus compared with the whole country. Is that clearer?

How provincial of us, the astronomer went on, to imagine that our galaxy with 150,000,000 stars as large as our sun, does not have other planets with life on them — especially since there are 150,000,000 other galaxies in the universe, each containing as many millions of stars.

Other stars no doubt have planets. Other planets, somewhere, must have pretty much the same environmental conditions that bred life on Earth; and out of this life must have come what we call "intelligent" life on some of these planets — and possibly millions of years before this planet began to cool off. To believe we are unique is the height of anthropocentric arrogance.

If we could steadily see ourselves in this light — as a tiny speck of dust whirling about in one tiny corner of the universe, with the whole time-span of the Earth no longer than a twinkling — we might be able to reach a saner perspective on human and social problems.

Buckmaster Fuller's old analogy of the Earth as a "space-ship" is another useful concept. We are all riding together in a space-ship that is smaller than the one the astronauts went up in, compared with the size of the cosmos. We are locked into this ship together and forever, and we survive or perish together and forever.

The first and absolute imperative in the space-ship of the astronauts is co-operation, and the subordination of individual will to the welfare of the ship as a whole. Only after that is there room for idiosyncratic differences. Disharmony among the astronauts means disaster for all.

Man must begin to take the "astronomical" view of himself and his world if he is to survive. It is far too late for any parochial view; too late for politics, too late for race, too late for class distinctions.

Our ship is now so highly explosive, so charged with incendiaries, that we have only two options: We stay up, or we blow up.

Not to see this, clearly and steadily and primarily, is to perish in the universe as obscurely and ignobly as we have lived.

City Street Stays Shut

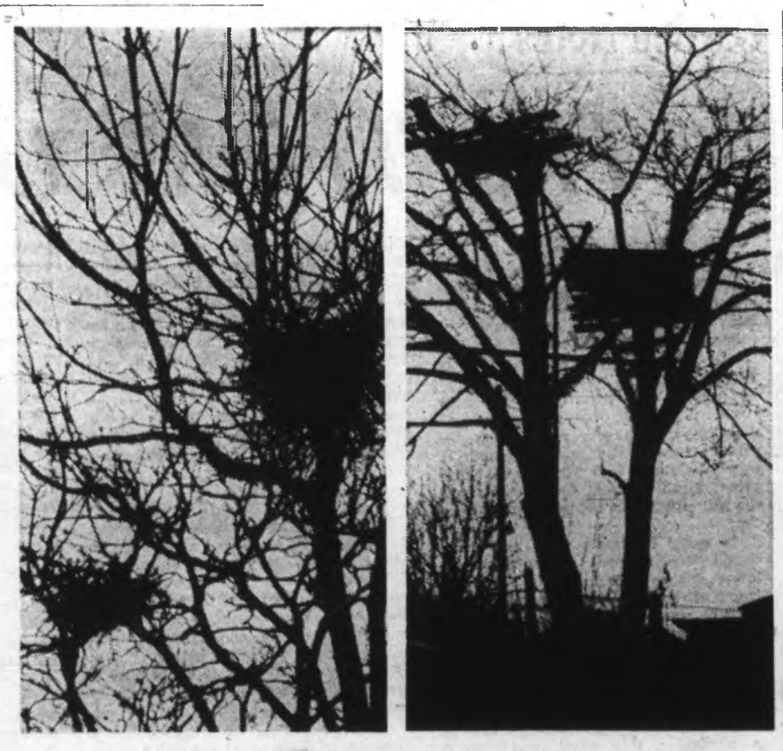

Broad Street will continue to be closed between Fort and View because of traffic congestion at the Broad-Fort intersection, City Manager Dennis Young said Thursday.

The short section of street between the two Eaton's stores is usually closed during the Christmas rush and re-opened immediately afterward.

But it is being kept closed for the present so as to observe the effect during normal traffic, Mr. Young said.

Victoria Labor Council objected Wednesday night that Eaton's has used the closure to keep up a canopy across the street linking the two stores. Council secretary Larry Ryan said the company should be charged rent for use of the public street.

Mr. Young would not comment on Mr. Ryan's statement but said, "We've always wanted to get some information on what would be the effect on traffic of shopping malls downtown, and this is our chance to find out."

Tenants Quit Tree Homes

Winter is time when birds and small boys abandon trees in quest for warmer spots. Last year's crowsnests in denuded trees on Wilson show in stark relief against Victoria skyline as do youngsters' treehouses on Washington.—(William E. John)

Petty Officer Guilty of Theft

Dismissal Sentence Imposed

A 34-year-old navy petty officer was sentenced to dismissal from the service by a disciplinary court martial Thursday at CFB Esquimalt.

The decision is subject to review by the district officer commanding.

PO William Griffey of HMCS Chaudiere pleaded guilty to stealing $2,000 from public funds entrusted to him as financial clerk.

PROCEEDINGS STAYED

He pleaded not guilty to an alternate charge of neglect to the prejudice of good order and discipline in failing to account for the money. Proceedings were stayed on the second charge.

Prosecutor Capt. Brian Murphy, said a Dec. 17 audit of HMCS Chaudiere's public advance fund showed a shortage of $2,000.

Subsequent investigation, he said, showed Griffey took the money and used it for his own purposes.

Defence counsel Major R. F. MacDonald said Griffey was driven to the offence by his debts, and because the organization to which he belonged let him down and failed him in his hour of need.

Griffey, he said, had $7,000 in debts, most of it to "the usual collection of servicemen's friends — the finance companies."

"I have been unable to find any indication of a concerted effort on the part of his divisional officers to relieve him of his difficulties by counselling or by giving him money from the benevolent fund," he said.

"This is why we are here today — to resolve a problem that arose six years ago.

"The only resource at the disposal of this court is punishment, and that never will pay debts," added Major MacDonald.

He said Griffey had six children, aged between three and 10. He also told court that Griffey and his wife were active in the community affairs of their neighborhood.

Griffey, he said was a Scoutmaster and his wife a Cubmaster.

"Consider that you are punishing a family here. It is an unfortunate state of affairs to know the punishment you see fit to award can, and will, have far-reaching effects on this family."

Major MacDonald also appealed to the court not to lose the 15 years' investment it had put into Griffey.

The navy said after the court martial that it is usual in such cases to make arrangements for restitution.

U.K. Roads Plagued By Fog, Ice

LONDON (AP) — Fog and ice played havoc with British roads Thursday, resulting in at least seven deaths.

More than 100 vehicles were involved in pileups on the M-1 expressway out of London and a mother and two children were killed when a truck skidded off a road at Hayes, 15 miles from the capital.

Fog also hit France and caused delays to Paris-bound flights.

The Automobile Association reported "almost unprecedented chaos" on the motorway near Luton where 30 vehicles were involved in a single pileup on the icy road.

Train Wreck Delays Film

The wreck of a CNR train at Chase has forced postponement of the showing of the 1916 film classic, Tolerance, at the University of Victoria.

Delivery of the film was delayed by the derailment. The film will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the MacLaurin Building.

Defence in Drug Case Fails in Two Motions

Five plastic bags containing marijuana and a plastic vial containing an LSD pill, were entered as exhibits Thursday in the trial of two Ucluelet men charged with possession of marijuana in Central Magistrate's Court.

Ott Misler, 28, and Wolfgang Nitsch, 24, both of Ucluelet, pleaded not guilty at an earlier appearance, after electing trial by magistrate.

Vancouver lawyer Gary Lauk, defence counsel for the two men, requested a change of election Thursday while the first Crown witness was in the middle of his testimony.

NOT ADVISED

He told court the first defence counsel had not advised the defendants of the many ramifications surrounding their election of trial method. He asked that the trial be changed to a preliminary hearing.

Magistrate J. A. Byers dismissed the application on the grounds that the men had competent counsel when they made their election.

Sgt. John C. Rickerby of the Victoria police told court he stopped a car at 1:10 p.m. Nov. 24 on View Street, in which the two accused and two women were riding. He said the car had California licence plates. The car was stopped because of certain information received, he said.

THREE STOPPED

Sgt. Rickerby said he detained the four persons until RCMP members arrived on the scene.

Inspector Lester Clark told Court he accompanied Sgt. Rickerby, and while the sergeant talked with the driver of the car, he stopped the other three persons as thye started to walk away from the scene.

RCMP Sgt. Lew Dempsey, of the narcotic squad in Victoria, told court he searched the car driven by Misley. He said he found holes in door panels inside the car which Misler said once contained speakers for a stereo system.

INSIDE DOOR

Inside the door on the driver's side, he said, he found five plastic bags containing a green plant substance.

City Detective John Markin told court he attended the scene with Sgt. Dempsey, and later with Inspector Clark took the two women and Wolfgang Nitsch to the city police station. He said he told Nitsch he was being held for investigation of possession of narcotics.

He said when Nitsch was asked to remove everything from his pockets, one item was a small plastic vial containing 10 white tablets. He said the accused told him he found the vial that morning in Centennial Square, but didn't know what the tablets were.

'RATHER NOT SAY'

Detective Markin said Nitsch admitted having smoked marijuana when he was asked, but when asked if he had taken LSD replied "I'd rather not say any more until I get in touch with a lawyer."

Henry Ho, analyst with the Food and Drug Directoriate laboratory in Vancouver, told court that tests proved the tablets to be LSD. Under cross-examination by Mr. Lauk, he told court that possesion of the drug was not illegal as far as he knew.

RCMP Constable John G. O'Neil, first of the seven Crown witnesses to testify, told court he received five plastic bags and a plastic vial from Detective Markin, and kept them either on his person or locked up before taking them personally to the Vancouver laboratory for analysis. He said samples were taken from two of the bags by Mr. Ho, plus nine of the 10 tablets.

OTHER DRIVERS

Marilyn Tsumos, final witness for the Crown, told court the car in question belonged to her, and although she was living with Mr. Misler, he only drove the car "occasionally." She said the car was driven by two other persons just before Nov. 24, while she returned to California to visit her son.

Prosecutor Edward Pollard asked her if she had placed marijuana inside her car's door. She said she had not.

Mr. Lauk then moved that the charges be dismissed against his clients because all evidence was circumstantial. He said no evidence showed the marijuana was ever in either man's possession, and the exhibits could have been placed in the car by some other person.

Magistrate Byers denied the motion and remanded the two men to Feb. 27. They will appear before him in Traffic Court to give defence testimony.

After pleading guilty to assaulting a paraplegic victim, Roddy R. Lee of 2003 Quadra told court he had apologized for his action and said, "I felt like about two cents when I found out."

Lee said he was told, later after the Jan. 1 incident, of his victim's circumstances by a passenger in the victim's car.

Magistrate Byers fined Lee $25 and told him, "But for your apology for what you did, your fine would have been substantially greater."

Gordon T. Walker, of apartment 211, 3820 Shelbourne, pleaded guilty to an act liable to contribute to the delinquency of a juvenile.

Court was told the act involved fondling a 15-year-old boy and showing him pornographic books and photos. The boy visited his apartment on several occasions between Feb. 1, 1968, and Jan. 8, 1969, court was told.

Magistrate Byers remanded Walker to Jan. 17 for a presentence report.

Leonard J. Watt, 46, of no fixed address, held in custody since he pleaded guilty to vagrancy Monday, was sentenced Thursday to the period already spent in jail.

Salvation Army Brig. G. M. Rankin told court he had been in contact with the DVA Hospital in Vancouver, which knew the accused well and would take him back. He said he would see that Watt had transportation to Vancouver.

Magistrate Byers warned Watt, "Don't you go playing hooky any more."

Tracking Dog Fails, Prisoner Still Free

Search by police using a tracking dog, has failed to locate a prisoner who escaped Wednesday from Colquitz Jail on Wilkinson Road.

Police said Allen Samuel Johnson, 21, of no fixed address, was serving a three week sentence following conviction on an impaired driving charge at Sidney.

They said he had been in jail only a few days and was due to be released Jan. 23.

Officials said Johnson was part of a work group being taken back to the institution in a truck. They said he jumped from the truck and escaped on foot.

Police said Johnson worked in Seattle and his wife lived in Duncan. He was last seen on Interurban Road headed toward the Trans-Canada Highway.

Johnson is described as five feet, 11 inches tall, with black hair, and brown eyes, and was wearing a yellow waterproof jacket when last seen.

Co-ed's Murder

Puzzling Stains Found on Body

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — State police chemists tested Thursday a mysterious red powder which the killer of a petite Harvard co-ed may have used in performing a weird Persian funeral rite.

Crimson stains from the substances which also could be an ingredient she used in painting, her hobby, were found on pretty Jane Britton, 23, and on the bloody mattress on which she was sprawled dead.

PERU FRIEND

The main thrust of the police investigation was on the powder after an ex-boyfriend from Peru was virtually ruled out as a suspect in the slaying of the brunette archaeological student whose nightgown-clad body was found in her apartment Tuesday.

Police theorized Miss Britton, daughter of the administrative vice-president of Radcliffe College, was beaten on the head with a large archaeological stone given to her as a gift. The stone is missing.

Police said they were advised by anthropologists that the stains on her body were similar to markings used in a primitive Persian burial rite to rid the dead of evil spirits.

If this is so, said Det.-Sgt. John Galligan, "we are dealing with a sick man." But, he said, the stains may be from red ochre that Miss Britton used in mixing paint.

SEEN IN PERU

The former boyfriend was all but eliminated as a suspect after his new girlfriend told police she saw him in Peru last weekend. She said he saw her off Sunday at an airport in Peru when she returned to Cambridge.

Four persons, including a young man Miss Britton dated just before her death and a young couple who lived in an adjacent apartment, underwent "strictly routine" lie detector tests Thursday. Police said they wanted to clear up "minor discrepancies" in details the four gave of Miss Britton's final hours.

'No Evidence of Intelligent Creatures'

Costly Report Scoffs at UFO Threat

WASHINGTON (LAT) — The air force released Thursday what it would like to think is the last word on the controversial subject of flying saucers — a 1,465-page scientific study that cost $500,000.

In great detail, the report said essentially what the USAF has been saying all along:

There is no evidence that unidentified flying objects are the vehicles of intelligent creatures from another world. Ninety per cent of them can be explained in terms of ordinary phenomena, and those which cannot show no evidence of a threat to U.S. security.

The suggestion that UFOs are military vehicles from another country, the panel said, is "utterly improbable."

Underway since late 1966, the study was conducted at the University of Colorado under the leadership of Dr. Edward Condon, a highly-respected physicist and former head of the National Bureau of Standards.

Predictably, the National Investigating Committee on Aerial Phenomena scheduled a press conference for today and will undoubtedly claim the study is inadequate.

Condon's group contradicted charges that the air force or the Central Intelligence Agency keeps the public from knowing the truth about UFOs.

"We have no evidence of secrecy concerning UFO reports," it said. "What has been miscalled secrecy has been no more than an intelligent policy of delay in releasing incomplete data."

Further, it criticized schools for helping to perpetuate the bewilderment about UFOs.

"Many children are being allowed, if not actively encouraged, to devote their science study time to the reading of UFO books and magazine articles" of a sensational nature.

"We feel that children are educationally harmed by absorbing unsound and erroneous material as if it were scientifically well-founded."

The report had this to say about people who report UFO sightings:

"In our experience, the persons making the reports seem in nearly all cases to be normal, responsible individuals. In most cases they are quite calm, at least by the time they make a report. They are simply puzzled about what they saw and hope they can be helped to a better understanding of it.

"Only a very few are obviously quite emotionally disturbed, their minds being filled with pseudo-scientific, pseudo-religious or other fantasies. Cases of this kind range from slight disturbance to those who are manifestly in need of psychiatric care."

Whooping Cranes Reach 50

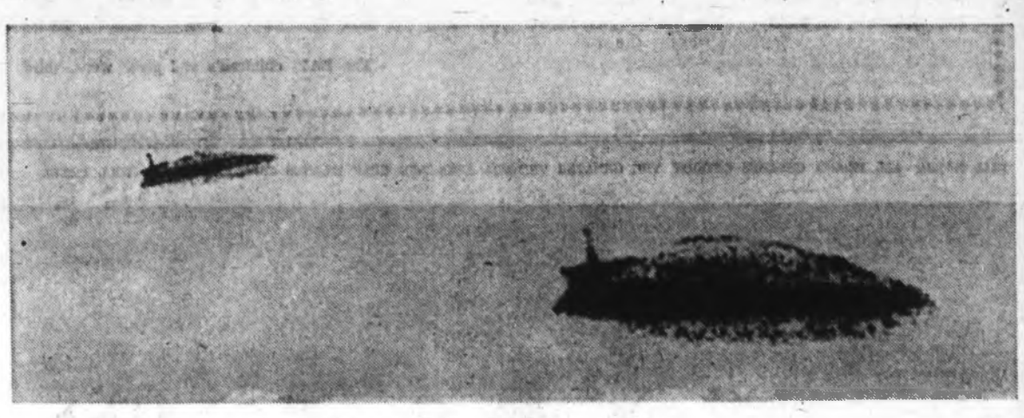

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The world's wild whooping crane population has reached a new high of 50 birds, two more than a year ago, it was reported Thursday.

The interior department said 49 whoopers arrived at the wintering area in south Texas by Nov. 25 and that a lone adult flew in to the Aransas wildlife refuge Dec. 14. Of the cranes, six were said to be "young-of-the-year," meaning they were hatched in 1968.

The aerial count exceeds last year's record of 48 whoopers. Wild whoopers numbered only 15 in 1941, 40 in 1964.

There are 18 birds in captivity, 12 of them at the bureau of sports fisheries and wildlife research centre near Laurel, Md. other captive whoopers are at zoos in San Antonio and New Orleans.

Eastern Canadian Fallout Came from U.S. Blast

OTTAWA (CP) — A United States nuclear test Dec. 8 violated the test-ban treaty by spilling radioactive fallout over eastern Canada, though not at levels dangerous to health, government sources said Thursday.

The Canadian government, warned in advance of the possibility, lodged no protest but, as a first step, asked the U.S. for "comments" on data from the Canadian radiation reporting network.

Four of the 24 stations on the network—Hamilton, Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal—reported the radiation surge of 20 times above normal for one 24-hour period, Dec. 12-13.

LESS THAN BEFORE

The highest reading, taken at Ottawa, was several hundred times lower than the fallout levels recorded during the bomb testing programs of the late 1950s and early 1960s.

The Canadian government apparently balanced the prospect of some radioactive fallout reaching this country against the expectation of receiving benefit from what the U.S. learned about peaceful uses of nuclear explosions.

Under the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, nuclear powers are required to supply non-nuclear powers with any useful information about peaceful employment of nuclear devices.

OIL SANDS USE

The kind of thing that Canada has shown interest in is the use of a nuclear blast to separate oil from the Athabasca oil sands in northwestern Alberta.

The Canadian government was warned that the U.S. "Plowshare" series of nuclear tests might produce fallout and, as requested, the Canadian monitoring network paid particular attention to the period after an underground explosion Dec. 8 in the Nevada desert.

Following the blast, U.S. authorities tracked by plane a fallout cloud that at their last report was heading north.

But the Western Canada stations of the network failed to pick up anything. By Dec. 12-13, four eastern points reported higher levels in the air but not in water.

The data was forwarded to Washington Dec. 20 with the request for "comment." So far only an exchange of fallout data has been supplied.

NO PROBE

In Washington, a state department spokesman said the department is looking into the reports and "has been in touch with the Canadian government."

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said no investigation is planned into the test aftermath.

Robert McCloskey, state department press spokesman, said there had been "extreme precautions taken to ensure that it was carried out in a manner consistent with the test-ban treaty."

The 1963 treaty among the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union specifically provides that nuclear powers will not carry out any nuclear explosion "if such explosion causes radioactive debris to be present outside the territorial limits of the state under whose jurisdiction or control such explosion is conducted."

BELOW DANGER POINT

The Canadian health department's radiation protection division initially declined even to speculate on the source of the radiation surge but later conceded that the only logical possibility was the Dec. 8 Nevada blast.

They stressed that the fallout, while 20 times above normal, was nowhere near the danger point for health.

'I Guess We Need Clearance to Havana'

Hijacker Holds Knife to Girl

MIAMI (CP) — An Eastern Airlines plane carrying 72 passengers and six crew members was hijacked to Cuba Thursday by a man who a stewardess said pressed a knife into her side.

The plane brought the six crew members and two passengers back to Miami about four hours later. The other 70 passengers had to wait for planes to be sent from Miami to retrieve them.

The stewardess, Joyce Jernigan, said the hijacker told her his name was Ronnie, he was from Indiana and that he is a Communist who hates the United States.

"He said he was running from the FBI and that he was a Communist who had just completed a mission," the 21-year-old Miami stewardess said.

The hijack occurred shortly after the Eastern 727 jet left Miami with a load of tourist headed for a holiday in the Bahama Islands.

Miss Jernigan said she could feel the point of the hijacker's knife twisting in her side all the way to Cuba.

Witnesses at Jose Marti airport in Havana said the hijacker was a tall, light-complexioned man wearing an overcoat and a hat pulled down over his face. He wore dark glasses.

The hijacker was taken from the airport by security agents while passengers were taken to a closely-guarded airport lounge.

The plane took off from Miami at 10:53 p.m. PST and was seen leaving its planned flight path at 11:07 p.m while over Bimini.

Air traffic controllers in Miami radioed the aircraft and the pilot responded "I guess we need a clearance to Havana."

Mr. Bennett also announced that Don Phillips (SC - South Peace River) will move acceptance of the Throne Speech and it will be seconded by George Munsullem (SC-Dewdney).

Bushfire Turned By Wind

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI)—A sudden change in the wind Thursday saved one small town from certain destruction as the death toll in Victoria state climbed to at least 15 in a series of bushfires which have blackened 250 square miles.

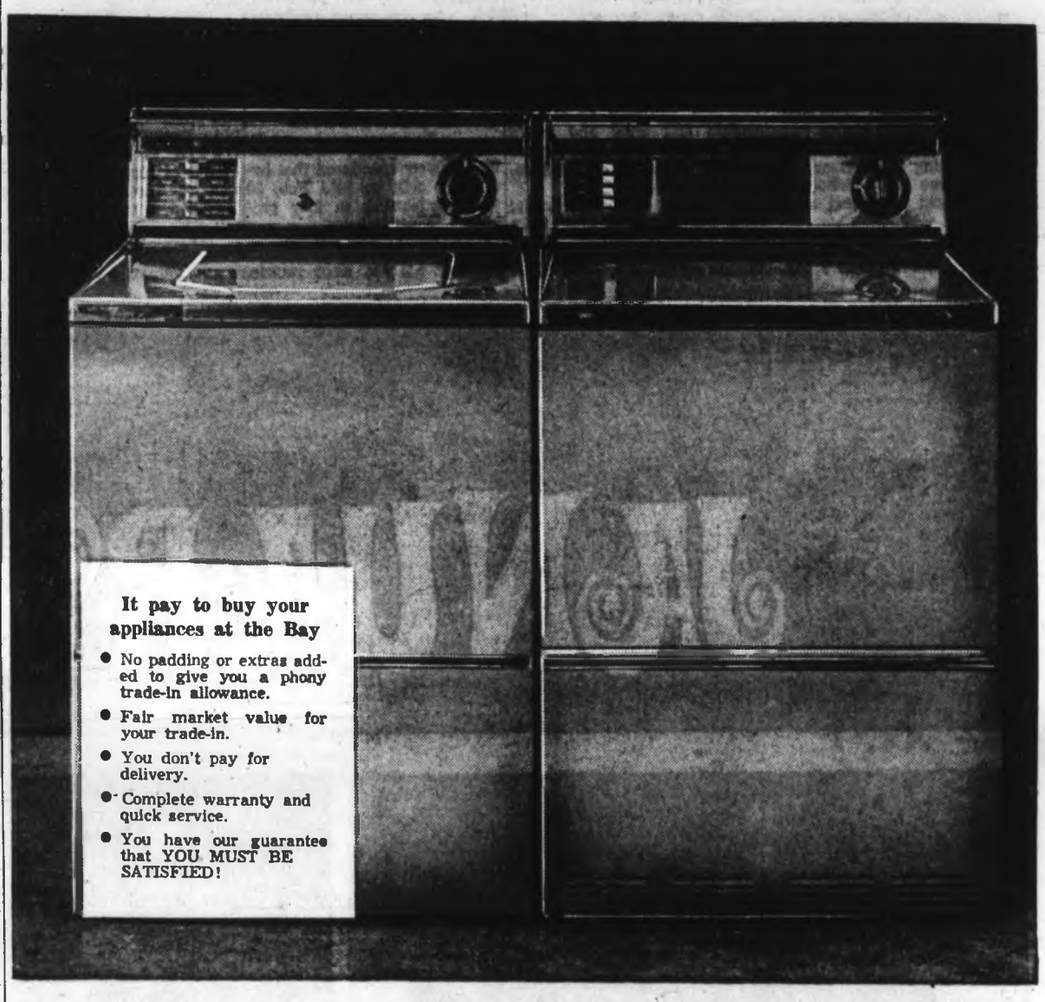

The wind shift, at the town of Yea about 50 miles northeast of Melbourne, came at a time when flames had swept to within 100 yards of areas where women and children had prepared for the worst.

In Melbourne, officials strictly enforced a ban on open fires, and 35 persons were arrested Thursday on charges of violating the ban.

Bermuda-Bound Once More

Sea-Battered Bluenose Sails Free of Storms

HALIFAX (CP) — The tall-sparred Bluenose II hoisted canvas again Thursday and was heading for Bermuda at 7½ knots after being battered by an Atlantic storm which took the life of one member of the schooner's crew.

The vessel's owners here reported everything is under control after talking by radio with the Bluenose II's skipper, Captain Ellsworth Coggins.

Hope was abandoned for one of two crew members swept overboard when a big sea struck the schooner early Wednesday. The other hand was rescued.

The storm caused some flooding in the vessel's engine room and the steering shaft was damaged, making it necessary for two or three of the schooner's crew to hold the wheel at all times.

The schooner's jib—one of its smaller sails—was torn to shreds, but its pumps were functioning and the skipper reported his ship in no danger.

Donald Oland, vice-president of the Halifax brewery firm of Oland and Sons, Ltd., which owns the Bluenose II, said the vessel was likely to reach Bermuda late Saturday or early Sunday.

There were no injuries among the six passengers.

The Bluenose II is powered by 10,000 square feet of sail and auxiliary engines.

Oland said he would fly to Bermuda Saturday to see the captain and crew and would take a spare driveshaft for the steering wheel and a replacement job with him.

He said the crew was having some trouble getting water from the engine room but none from the rest of the ship.

Oland said he thought water may have entered the engine room through a hatch because the vessel was not taking on water anywhere through her hull.

The United States Coast Guard cutter Vigilant and a U.S. Albatross aircraft were continuing the search for Neil Robitaille, 22, of Yarmouth, N.S., who was swept overboard early Wednesday at the height of a storm 350 miles south of here.

Another crew member, Craig Harding, 22, of Liverpool, N.S., was washed over the side but managed to get back to the vessel. He was reported in good condition.

The six passengers aboard were reported to be well and the captain said he would get them working "with buckets and mops—there is no problem."

Marijuana Penalty Easing Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government plans legislation, in the session of Parliament resuming Tuesday, to lighten the penalty for first-offender marijuana users, informants say.

The bill could be introduced by Justice Minister John Turner within a month or two. No change is contemplated in stiff penalties for those who sell marijuana.

Present law requires that any person found illegally in possession of an illegal drug be sentenced to a minimum six months in jail. The maximum sentence is up to seven years.

WITH OPIUM

The law states that courts have no power to impose "less than the minimum penalty" for such offences.

It lists marijuana along with such other drugs as opium and cocaine.

The bulk of the known legislative program was forecast at the Sept. 12 opening of the 28th Parliament. And most of that was a hangover from the pre-Trudeau era of Lester Pearson.

42 STILL TO GO

Of the 52 pieces of legislation forecast at the opening or introduced later, 10 gained parliamentary approval, leaving 42 to be dealt with by MPs who broke Dec. 20 for the Christmas recess.

The government is expected to assign high priority to the drug bill aimed at reducing prices through more open competition and the omnibus Criminal Code bill relaxing restrictions on abortion and homosexuality, among other things.

Some tax increases arising from the Oct. 22 fall budget have yet to be approved by Parliament. The government may add to the legislation items including housing amendments arising from the fall inquiry headed by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

Judy Admits Trudeau Good Prime Minister

TORONTO (UPI) — Former secretary of state Judy LaMarsh, who has often feuded publicly with Prime Minister Trudeau, conceded Thursday night that he was a "pretty good prime minister."

Miss LaMarsh said in a television interview that her former boss, Lester Pearson, was "too permissive" to be a good government leader. She said members of Pearson's cabinet "loved him and would do anything for him" but did not universally respect him as a leader.

She said Trudeau, on the other hand, was a good leader because he was "a bit of a bastard."

"In my view," she added, "Mr. Trudeau ought to be happy that he has this qualification.

"As a matter of fact," she said, "I think he's a pretty good prime minister."

Worried Lebanon May Rein Raiders

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) —Premier-designate Rashid Karami said Thursday he will give Israel no excuse for attacking Lebanon. But Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan warned in Jerusalem that Arab guerrilla bases on Lebanese soil are open to assault.

Karami told a news conference that Israel is using guerrilla activities as a pretext for attacking its neighbors and added: "we will give them no pretext."

But he defended what he called the right of Palestinian guerrillas to defend their own land.

NO EXCUSE PROVIDED

"I do not think anyone can say that that is not their right," he said.

Asked whether Lebanon would permit Arab guerrillas to operate from its soil he said Beirut will not provide Israel an excuse for mounting an attack, but declared that no one can expect Lebanon to act as policemen for the Israelis.

INTOLERABLE

In Jerusalem, Dayan said Israel "cannot tolerate a situation whereby we are forbidden to hit the sabotage organizations across the border while they are permitted to operate against us."

"We regard each Arab government as responsible for the acts of these organizations, and we have the right to deal them blows in their own territory."

FORM GOVERNMENT

President Charles Helou of Lebanon asked the 47-year-old Karami to form a government to succeed that of Abdullah Yafi which resigned Tuesday as a result of Israel's unchallenged commando raid against Beirut International Airport Dec. 28.

Karami spent the day consulting with political leaders with a view to forming a government as widely representative as possible.

SEES NO CHANGE

Karami, who has served seven previous terms as Lebanon's premier, said he foresaw no change in the country's basic policy.

"I think it is wrong to say Lebanon is neutral in the Arab-Israeli conflict because the threat is against us as against all Arab states. Israel's policy is one of expansion and aggression."

WON'T COURT REPRISALS

Karami, who headed an Arab nationalist uprising here in 1958 which led to the landing of U.S. marines, has been regarded as more a hawk than Yafi.

His latest statement, however, suggested that while Lebanon would continue to give Arab guerrillas moral support it would be unwilling to court reprisal raids by permitting them to use this country as a base.

'It Really Is a Small Planet'

Aldrin Armstrong Collins

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson, paying tribute to the Apollo 8 astronauts, said Thursday they "represented all mankind" in their historic voyage around the moon.

The space trio received medals from the president in a White House ceremony and standing ovations from a joint meeting of Congress where Col. Frank Borman described the Apollo mission as a "triumph of mankind."

The astronauts go to New York today for a traditional ticker tape parade reserved for heroes.

SERVICE MEDAL

Johnson decorated Borman, Capt. James A. Lovell, Jr., and Lt.-Col. William A. Anders with the Distinguished Service Medal of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

He called them "history's boldest explorers" and said they had "blazed a new trail for mankind out into the vastness of extra-terrestrial space."

From the White House, the astronauts motored to the House of Representatives where members of the Senate and House, the cabinet and the Supreme Court cheered the smiling astronauts.

BRAVE LADS

House Speaker John W. McCormack, introduced them as "three brave men who have made a notable contribution to our understanding of the exploration of space."

Borman, speaking for his fellow Apollo 8 crew members, said they had often been asked what was the most unforgettable impression of their flight.

He said: "I think the one overwhelming emotion that we had was when we saw the earth

Three Men Chosen For Moon Landing

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. space agency Thursday named astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin A. Aldrin to the Apollo 11 crew—the American team that will have the first chance of landing on the moon.

Armstrong, a civilian, was named Apollo 11 commander. Collins, a U.S. Air Force lieutenant - colonel, was named command pilot and Aldrin, an air force colonel, was selected lunar module pilot.

If they make the historic moon landing trip, Armstrong and Aldrin would drop to the lunar surface in the lunar module while Collins circled the moon in the main Appollo ship.

All three are space veterans.

Armstrong commanded the nearly disastrous Gemini 8 flight in 1966, which he flew with Lt.-Col. David Scott.

Collins took a space walk on the Gemini 11 flight in 1966, and originally was assigned to the Apollo 8 moon orbit mission. But a spinal operation knocked him off that assignment last summer, and he was replaced by Capt. James A. Lovell Jr.

Aldrin took a space walk on Gemini 12, in which he flew with Lovell.

'Peace — And Money'

PARIS (CP) — Foreign Minister Michel Debre Thursday night attacked countries that he said are voting at the United Nations for peace in the Middle East with one hand, "while getting money, the product of their arms sales, with the other."

It was his explanation, in part, for France's decision to stop all arms shipments to Israel.

Debre also cited French interests as an important consideration, pointing to France's desire to maintain economic and cultural relations with Arab states.

He also said France believes that Israel has the right to exist, the right to security and the right to the normal guarantees of international law.

But he stressed: "If the

Recognition

Sweden Nods To Hanoi

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Neutral Sweden Friday will become the first West European nation to extend full diplomatic recognition to Communist North Vietnam, diplomatic sources said Thursday.

The decision, seen in some quarters here as an act of support for Hanoi and the Viet Cong at the stalemated Paris Vietnam talks, was expected to be taken officially at a cabinet meeting Friday.

North Vietnamese Premier Pha Van Dong told the Social Democratic Stockholm paper Aftonbladet in an interview earlier this week that Swedish recognition was "of great importance" to his government.

CONFIRMED

Sweden also maintains formal diplomatic relations with South Vietnam but no Swedish ambassador is currently accredited in Saigon.

The story of the reported Swedish decision was circulated by the usually well-informed Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter. A foreign ministry spokesman had no comment but it was confirmed by diplomatic sources in the capital.

The sources said Sweden's ambassador to Peking, Lennart Petri, is expected to be accredited as ambassador to Hanoi as well, pending the establishment of a Swedish diplomatic mission in the North Vietnamese capital.

While such a move would make Sweden the first nation in Western Europe to accord full diplomatic recognition to Hanoi, the French have a lower-ranking mission there and Britain also has a foreign office official serving in North Vietnam.

British Won't Budge

LONDON (CP) — African delegates to the Commonwealth conference Thursday renewed their criticism of Brtish policy on Rhodesia but without the loud bitterness they showed at the last such meeting two years ago.

The British stuck to their established position on the thorny issue and insisted that sanctions rather than force are the key to toppling the rebel Rhodesian government of Ian Smith.

Prime Minister Trudeau backed the principle of no independence for Rhodesia before majority African rule—Nibmar—as theoretically and morally the best solution.

NO GUARANTEE

He also termed unacceptable the proposals made to Smith by Britain aboard HMS Fearless last year because, he said, they contained no real guarantee of majority rule.

But Trudeau added that if Nibmar proved impossible there must be a search for a solution which works. He rejected use of military force in Rhodesia.

The Canadian leader said Canada would object to any alternative to Nibmar which does not contain a guarantee of African majority rule.

Canadian Arnold Smith, Commonwealth secretary-general, told reporters after the Thursday session that there had been EDMONTON (CP) — A 5¼-hour fire fought by a third of the 600 men in Edmonton's fire department severely damaged the five-storey Swift Canadian Company Limited meat-packing plant in the northeast part of the city Thursday.

For NDP Leadership

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Robert Arthur Williams, a 35-year-old town planner from Vancouver, became the third MLA to toss his hat into the ring in the contest to elect a successor to Robert Strachan as provincial leader of the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Williams told a press conference here he could "happily live with" the choice of either of his fellow MLAs, Tom Berger and Dave Barrett, as party leader. But he added he had entered the race because only two candidates might lead to polarization of political thinking within the NDP.

"There is every likelihood that the delegates to the NDP convention this spring will not just be picking a leader of the opposition, but more likely we will be picking the future premier," he said.

"The choice for the delegates therefore must be as broad as possible and must not be limited for parochial or partisan reasons. That is one reason I am now in this race. I also think I can win — but winning is not enough. We must show those outside the

Canada in NATO Year at Least

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has expounded a philosophy that unless you have something better, you might as well leave things as they are.

He sees no likelihood of Canadians dividing on the status of the Crown or switching from the monarchy to republicanism in the next four years. Nor did he plan any immediate change in the status of Canada's military obligations abroad.

When NATO ministers meet in Brussels Jan. 16, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux will renew Canada's military commitment to the alliance for one year, until January, 1970.

MANY TOPICS

Trudeau, speaking to some 500 international journalists at a Dorchester Hotel press luncheon Thursday, emphasized the Canadian military review will continue and changes may still be made for the years ahead. But for one year at least there will be no change in the Canadian contribution of six bomber squadrons and 5,000-man brigade now stationed in West Germany.

Trudeau combined philosophy with politics as he roamed over internal and foreign problems in his candid address and question period. He urged the Commonwealth to be less obsessed with past misdeeds and more concerned with future opportunities. He held some world issues at arms' length and tended to shy away from them but he was forthright about his sympathy with sincere demonstrators.

It was important, he said, that these demonstrators, no matter how small their group, should be heard. The picket involves himself in issues while prime ministers and presidents drive by in limousines and tend to speak through distant microphones.

NOT RELEVANT

The picket feels he is not connected with decision-making; that events at the Commonwealth conference or at Ottawa are not relevant to reality; that statesmen participate in "theoretical discussions between men who don't feel the future, who don't feel justice as the protester demanded it."

To reject or imprison the protester was no answer. Men like Gandhi or like Canada's Louis Riel live on "and they obtain more by perhaps martyrdom, imprisonment or execution than they would by merely standing there."

Trudeau's preoccupation with the demonstrators brought a comment from the London Standard that he had delivered "as radical a homily as has ever fallen from the lips of a visiting statesman."

The question of whether Canada would become a republic while he is in office would depend on just how long he remains in office, Trudeau said lightly. He maintained that about two-thirds of Canadians have no emotional attachment to the Crown since only one-third came from the British Isles. But he did not see Canadians dividing themselves on what is largely a symbolic issue.

As for the Canadian parliamentary system, this had a great advantage over the American system where there could be a president of one political party and a Congress of another.

He was asked about China, the Middle East, the plight of the African Asians and Rhodesia. He gave replies which indicated that he either has not yet made up his mind about Canadian policy or does not want Canada to become directly involved.

RINGSIDE SEAT

Canada, he said, wants to recognize China. To disagree with an opponent did not mean you should not have a dialogue with him. Canada had developed its trade mainly through the Atlantic but it had a ringside seat on the Pacific and wanted to increase trade, cultural exchanges and diplomatic relations in that area.

Asked specifically what he thought about the Chinese imprisoning Reuters correspondent Anthony Grey for more than a year, Trudeau said he had not studied the matter and had no information about it.

The only way out of the Middle East impasse was for Israel and the Arabs to accept the efforts of the United Nations mission headed by Ambassador Gunnar Jarring of Sweden. Canada had no solution. But it was possible both sides might be persuaded by the Big Four after a period of brinkmanship. Canada did not accept the principle of changing frontiers by force.

Sanctions against Rhodesia should continue forever, he said. There was no point in announcing a termination date. This would have no more effect than that of a short strike. Negotiating strength lay in getting the point across that there would be no change, no withdrawal until the other side gave in.

Trudeau was asked whether Canada would take more of the Asians being booted out of Kenya and other East African states because they had decided to retain British passports rather than become local citizens. He said the answer was yes and no. Canada had a policy of speeding up processing of immigrants in special cases, such as stateless persons. This speeding up process is being examined in the case of the Asians.

Trudeau Held Floor While 'Bomb' Sought

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was speaking at the Commonwealth conference Thursday when word of an anonymous bomb threat came from Scotland Yard.

However, Trudeau and the other 27 delegation leaders talked on about Rhodesia while from other parts of the building came the sounds of a discreet — and vain — bomb search.

Trudeau told a correspondent's luncheon that he does not have much success with women because: "I have a very mild nature."

Russians Offered Coaches, Swedes Just Complain

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — An uproar among Swedish sports-writers, players and fans over t performances of Victoriaville Tigers, Canadian Allan Cup champions, graphically points up how the world hockey picture has changed in the past decade.

The fuss is not about any rough play during the recently-concluded Bunny Ahearne hockey tournament but because of the poor showing made by the Canadian club.

Tigers were favored to win the Ahearne tournament but lost four and tied one of six games. Other clubs entered were Djurgaarden, Soedertaelje, A.I.K. and Leksand of the Swedish first division, I.F.K. of Helsinki, a Finnish club coached by former National Hockey League-star Carl Brewer, and Sparta of Prague.

The tournament was conducted under Canadian rules, permitting body-checking in all zones, but it was no help to the Tigers. They scored only 12 goals in the six games, the least of any club, while conceding 24 goals.

Swedish newspapers and fans have strongly criticized Dagens Nyheter, the Stockholm morning newspaper which sponsored the tournament, for bringing the Tigers to Sweden.

It was stressed in criticism that the two best Swedish clubs, Brynaes of Gaevle and Vaestra Froelunda of Goteborg weren't in the Ahearne tournament.

Several newspaper critics said it was unfair to the fans to bring over a club of the calibre of the Tigers.

The sponsoring newspaper has more or less apologized to the fans and is reported to have requested the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to send a stronger club for next year's tournament.

Among the sternest critics were Swedish players, who in other years spent their criticism on the "rough" play of Canadian clubs.

"What is the meaning of bringing a Canadian team like this over here?" demanded Bert-Ola Nordlander, a Swedish international with the A.I.K. club.

"I cannot understand how a gang of old ladies like this is allowed to take part in the tournament," said Sig Johansson of the Soedertaelje team.

"We couldn't help laughing at the Canadians but we also felt sorry for them when the audience laughed and booed them," quote Roland Stoltz, veteran international defenceman.

And several Swedish writers asked if the Allan Cup champions were really Canada's best club and offered the opinion that if this was the case, then times must be hard for Canadian amateur hockey.

They could be right. A month ago, the Russians offered to send Anatoly Tarasav and Arkady Chernishov, coaches of their No. 1 and No. 2 teams, respectively, to Canada for a month during 1969 to act as advisers in the proper procedure of conditioning a hockey team.

Good as Any Says Juckes

WINNIPEG (UPI) — Gordon Juckes, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said here Thursday that the Victoriaville Tigers were "as good a club as any" that could have been selected to represent Canada in the recent international Ahearne Cup tournament in Sweden.

HE'D HEARD

Juckes was commenting on a reported uproar in the Swedish press and public over the poor performance in the tournament by the Victoriaville team, winners last year of the Allan Cup—symbol of supremacy in senior amateur hockey in Canada.

"There's little difference between the Tigers and the team sent last year from Drummondville," Juckes said. "In fact, there has been little change in Allen Cup competition in the last two years."

Juckes admitted that he was nevertheless disappointed with Victoriaville's showing — "they just did not play up to their potential" — but he added that the team suffered injuries to two good players before the tournament.

He pointed out that the Ahearne competition was a "club-type" tourney that was not for all-star aggregation but for individual teams. "We must not expect our amateur teams to be powerhouses every time they go to one of these tournaments," Juckes said. "Victoriaville was as good a club as we could select."

REVIEW COMING

Juckes said the CAHA had not received any protest from the sponsors of the Ahearne Cup over the team's performance, as has been reported in Sweden. But he added that the whole matter of Canada's participation in the tournament likely would be discussed during the world hockey championships next March in Stockholm.

It was a night for the attack in the National Hockey League on Thursday, five games producing 38 goals on an output of 327 shots.

Most of the shooting was done in Pittsburgh, where the Penguins came up with a 7-2 win over Minnesota North Stars in a wide-open game which saw the clubs take 76 shots. And most of the scoring was done in Montreal, where the Canadiens sped to an 8-4 win over Oakland Seals.

Detroit Red Wings also went on a binge, trouncing Los Angeles Kings, 6-2, on Detroit ice. In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs lost a 3-2 decision to the Bruins in Boston and New York Rangers outscored the Flyers, 3-1, in Philadelphia.

FINALLY ENDS

There was also a psychological victory for the Kings. When Bob Wall scored in the 15th minute of the first period, it ended a scoreless drought which had reached 210 minutes and four seconds.

Lowell MacDonald, finally getting his first goal of the season, got the other Los Angeles goal. But the Kings were outscored by Pete Stemkowski, who had three goals, two of them coming only 37 seconds apart in the second period.

Most frenzied action was in Boston, where the Leafs and Bruins combined for 59 penalty minutes in a wild first period.

Bruins had a 2-0 lead after 20 minutes, were ahead by 3-0 after two periods but had trouble extending their winning streak to five games as the Leafs closed in with goals by Mike Pelyk and Norm Ullman.

Phil Esposito of the Bruins drew assists on two goals and moved within one point of becoming the half-way leader in the individual point race. He now has 53 points and one game left to match or pass the 54 points Bobby Hull amassed in the first 38 games played by Chicago Black Hawks.

Neither Gary Smith or his second - period replacement, Charlie Hodge, looked good against Canadiens, who scored six straight goals between 8:00 of the first period and 19:33 of the second period to take an 8-2 lead.

Jean Beliveau, zooming into fifth place in the point race, scored his 18th goal and had three assists to benefit the most. Yvan Cournoyer chipped in with his 22nd and 23rd goals and also drew an assist.

Unitas Not Quite the Forgotten Man

By MILTON RICHMAN

BOCA RATON, Fla. (UPI) — Johnny Unitas realizes people mean well. He appreciates it. Sincerely.

It's simply that this happens to be an especially rough time for him what with the Super Bowl game coming up Sunday, his prospects of playing in it at all less than 50-50 unless the thing turns into a runaway and him still now knowing for sure about next season.

People always want to know how he feels. How do you think Johnny Unitas feels? Lousy. That's how he feels. Only he's too much of a gentleman to say so.

Oh, the majority of people who come up and talk with him are genuinely solicitous and nice and all that but sometimes that merely makes it worse.

DOESN'T NEED IT

They say little encouraging things to him like "we're with you all the way," "good luck, Johnny," and "you're still the best in our book," but they also look pityingly at the sidelined 35-year-old Baltimore Colts quarterback, the way they'd look at one of yesterday's heroes, and if there's one thing Johnny Unitas doesn't need or doesn't want particularly at this stage of the game it's pity.

"I'm well enough to play right now," he says. "My arm is all right. That's no problem. The only thing is I haven't played much so I'm not sharp and I might be slow picking things up out there."

There was a time Unitas meant the same thing to the Colts that Bill Russell means to the Boston Celtics and Bobby Hull means to the Chicago Black Hawks, but then he came up with ruptured muscle fibers in his $100,000 arm and now Earl Morrall is going to start against the New York Jets on Sunday.

Unitas says it doesn't bother him that much. "I haven't started all year so it's no big deal. Earl should be starting because he has been playing all year. He's an excellent quarterback, he deserves all the honors he's getting and he's a fine person. Why shouldn't he start Sunday after all he's done?"

Johnny Unitas has done a little in his time, too, for the Colts since he came with them 13 years ago. Few players have done more for their ball clubs in that time. Certainly no other quarterback has.

Earl Morrall is so much like Unitas that young Jim Ward cries himself to sleep every night. He's the Colts' backup quarterback for the backup quarterback. Morrall not only performs in the same general pattern Unitas does but also thinks like him. He's aware of what Unitas is going through now.

"I know how much it must bother him," Morrall says sympathetically. "I understand that. He's a wonderful competitor and a wonderful man. He certainly has helped me. He's been tremendous all along."

The orthopedic surgeon who examined Unitas in November said he should be as good as new by the middle of the summer. All he needs is rest, the doctor said. It's simply a case of his arm getting stronger and then his timing will come back.

Unitas says there's "no doubt in my mind" he'll be okay again next season.

Coaches Pick 14 All-Stars

MONTREAL (UPI) — Coaches Toe Blake of the East Division and Scotty Bowman of the West Division Thursday completed the lineups for the National Hockey League all-star game, scheduled here Jan. 21.

Both coaches named seven players to add to the 12 selected earlier in the week by a poll of NHL writers and broadcasters.

Blake added Ted Harris of Montreal Canadiens and Ted Green of Boston to his defence, rounded out an outstanding centre corps by adding Norm Ullman of Toronto and Stan Mikita of Chicago to Phil Esposito and Jean Beliveau.

The former Montreal coach also selected Dennis Hull to give him a brother combination on the left side and named rightwingers Bobby Rousseau of Montreal and Bob Gilbert of New York.

Bowman leaned heavily towards members of his own club, selecting defencemen Doug Harvey and Noel Picard, leftwinger Ab McDonald and rightwinger Jim Roberts to make the St. Louis contribution eight players.

Bernie Parent of Philadelphia was added to the St. Louis goaltending combo of Glenn Hall and Jacques Plante, rookie Danny O'Shea of Minnesota North Stars became the third centreman on the West team and rightwinger Ken Schinkel was selected to give Pittsburgh Penguins a representative.

Sifford Surges Ahead With Eight-Under 63

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Veteran Charlie Sifford, surging through the back nine with a barrage of birdies and an eagle, knocked eight strokes off par Thursday for a 63 and the lead in the first round of $100,000 Los Angeles open golf tournament.

The 45-year-old Sifford, the first Negro to gain top stature in professional golf, wrecked the Rancho Park Municipal Course's par 36-35-71 with nine-hole scores of 35-28.

His brilliant round put Sifford three strokes in front of two early surprises, new pro Grier Jones, the 1968 national collegiate champion from Wichita, Kan. and veteran Dave Hill of Evergreen, Colo.

Jones, 22, playing in only his fifth pro tournament, shot 32-34-66 and Hill, 31, had 34-32-66.

STARS IN BACKGROUND

The stars of the tournament, Billy Casper, with 34-35-69, U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino, 35-37-72, and Arnold Palmer, 37-36-73, were relegated to back seats.

Tied at 67 were three other lesser-known pros, Jimmy Walker, Jr., Terry Dill and Bob Murphy. Bruce Crampton was alone at 68.

Sifford sank eight-foot putts on the eighth and ninth holes and made the turn relatively unnoticed one under par. He parred the 10th and 11th and then launched his astonishing sub-par attack.

He birdied No. 12 with a three-foot putt, banked a shot in from 40 yards out on the next hole for an eagle three, and birdied the next four holes. The string ended on the 18th when he had to settle for par.

Sifford's 63 was one stroke shy of the course record of 62 set by Palmer in 1962.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 35-36-71 while Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver matched the score with a 34-37.

Robert Cox of Vancouver had a 39-34-73 and Bob Panasiuk, Windsor, Ont., shot a 37-40-77.

Bobby Hewitson Dies in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Hewitson, 76, former curator of the Sports Hall of Fame and sports editor of The Telegram, died Thursday in hospital after suffering a heart attack.

Hewitson also held posts as a racing official, hockey referee and football executive.

The National Hockey League recognized his contribution as a referee by naming him to its hall of fame in 1963. He was only the fifth NHL referee to be so honored.

CRU SECRETARY

He also was secretary of the Canadian Rugby Union for 25 years and until 1956 had never missed a Grey Cup. He was absent that year because he was en route to Australia to cover the Olympic Games.

He joined The Globe in 1913. In 1949 he gave up many of his other interests to concentrate on his job as sports editor of the Telegram until his retirement in 1957.

Hewitson served as curator of the Sports Hall of Fame until he left the post last February because of poor health.

Many Canadians remember Hewitson as an original member of the Hot Stove League radio program during intermission of NHL games.

He leaves his wife Edith and a son Glen. Funeral arrangements were not immediately known.

School Board Leaves College Plan

CAMPBELL RIVER — Letters have been sent to Dr. Roy Macmillan, acting chairman of the Malaspina Regional College council, stating that Campbell River school board would not take part in the present format of the college plan.

Trustees were told of the board's latest action by secretary Philip Samson at this week's meeting.

The letter indicated the board's willingness to pay its share of the original costs of advisory studies for the college.

RESIGNATION LETTER

Chairman Bruce Saunders said he had sent a letter to Dr. Macmillan resigning from the co-ordinating council.

Dr. Macmillan had replied that he had dissolved the co-ordinating council — set up before the current college council was formed.

Mr. Saunders said that he was a candidate for the chairmanship of the Vancouver Island branch of the British Columbia School Trustees' Association which would hold its meeting at Nanaimo Jan. 18.

He felt Campbell River's stand on the college would make his candidacy "most interesting."

PLANNING ONLY

The board takes the view that the college council has been given the go-ahead only for planning, and that a referendum should be put to the region's voters before commitments are entered into and later expenditures incurred.

A Campbell River referendum, asking taxpayers if they were in favor of the district contributing money for a college in temporary leased quarters before the submission of a money referendum, covering a permanent college, was defeated in the December municipal elections.

KINDERGARTEN DEBATE

Mr. Sampson told the board about the expected classroom situation for the coming year.

His comments sparked a long discussion over the necessity for kindergartens and classroom-pupil ratio in other grades.

Dr. John Ross and Jack Johnson of Sayward strongly opposed kindergartens. The proposal gained support from Harold Newman and Mrs. Roslyn Luoma.

"Somewhere along the line, we have to decide where formal education should begin," said Mr. Johnson.

CLASSROOM RATIO

He pointed out that psychologists claimed that children could be educated as early as 18 months. He felt it was parents' responsibility to support early education, not the board.

Dr. Ross, motion, seconded by Mr. Johnson, that the classroom-pupil ratio policy should be maintained, was approved.

Mr. Saunders was re-elected as chairman, and Al Rollins remains vice-chairman.

'Archaic'

Winch Doesn't Like Lord's Day Act

NANAIMO — Liberal candidate Eric Winch thinks that the Lord's Day Act is archaic and not in keeping with the times.

Mr. Winch, who is contesting the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands seat in the Feb. 10 byelection, told Hub City Kiwanis Club Thursday that greater freedom should be allowed in recreation and business areas.

"For the law to be respected, it must reflect the desires of the community," he said.

"I do not advocate a wide-open Sunday, but rather one which is observed in a manner suited to the wishes of today's citizens."

On income tax and housing, Mr. Winch wondered why a person should pay income tax on interest received from mortgage payments while no exemption could be claimed by the person paying the mortgage.

"It might not be a bad incentive for the government to allow exemptions on all interest paid on mortgages covering a house occupied by a taxpayer," he said.

Cowichan Valley

Regional Board Picks Chairman

DUNCAN — Alex Smith of North Oyster is the new chairman of the Cowichan Valley regional district board.

He defeated Ald. John Cannon of North Cowichan at this week's meeting.

Vice-chairman is Ken McKinnon of Cowichan Bay, who defeated Al Anderson from the unorganized Cowichan Lake area and Duncan alderman Jim Saunders.

DIRECTORS THANKED

Outgoing chairman George Whittaker presided over the elections from among directors of the board.

Mr. Whittaker resigned from North Cowichan council at the end of the year and is automatically off the regional district board. He thanked the directors for their co-operation and expressed satisfaction that the board last year decided to reject any financial responsibility for expenses not directly connected with the district.

FUNDS STRESSED

He stressed: "It is not bad if the regional district acts as agent for the provincial government, providing the necessary funds are made."

He said more people realized that the regional district was the vehicle through which services could be obtained for the area and every request reaching the board would be closely scrutinized.

A few months ago a board motion protested the provincial government's reluctance to guarantee debentures issued by the regional board. In his reply Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said: "The regional districts were established in British Columbia with substantial tax bases and there should be no reason why regional debentures require any further backing up by way of a guarantee."

'POOR ANSWER'

Director David Laverock of Shawnigan Lake remarked: "If they are so sure then there should be no question of their putting up a guarantee."

Director Smith agreed and commented: "It is a very poor answer." The directors decided to contact other regional districts regarding the matter.

The board will ask the attorney-general's department to consider a provincial control on fireworks.

Ald. Saunders said the main concern was in unorganized areas because sale and use of fireworks were controlled by bylaws in organized areas.

Power Cuts Traced On Islands

Power interruption on the Gulf Islands were traced to the circuit linking the islands with Vancouver Island, a B.C. Hydro spokesman reported.

A fault developed in the main submarine cable last Friday, and power was switched to the auxiliary circuit.

Early Sunday, trouble in the auxiliary circuit at the Salt Spring Island end of the Connection with Vancouver Island caused another interruption.

The spokesman said power was restored with a temporary repair on the auxiliary circuit, and electricity to the Gulf Island was being maintained on the auxiliary while the main cable was being repaired.

Comox Development

Harbor Plan Given Priority

COMOX — Plans for harbor development at Comox received top priority this week when Mayor R. D. Ellis announced the proposed formation of a new committee to handle the project.

The matter has been discussed in the past but gathered more momentum after it was suggested there could be a classification change to that of a harbor.

Mayor Ellis referred to the establishment of a harbor development and business liaison committee in his first address to this year's council.

He named his committees, combining the parks and recreation committees and asked council to consider named Ald. Louis Beduz, who defeated incumbent John Holmes, to chair the new harbor development committee.

His brief address to aldermen, their wives and guests, followed a dinner and installation of Ald. R. D. Graham and Ald. Beduz.

Other committees named were public works, Ald. Graham, chairman, Ald. Pat. Bing and Ald. Jim Percy; parks and recreation, Ald. Percy, chairman, Ald. Graham,; health welfare, library and civil defence, Ald. Bing, chairman, Ald. Beduz, fire, Ald. Beduz chairman, Ald. Bing; finance, Mayor Ellis, chairman, and council of the whole; street lighting, Ald. Bing, Chairman, Ald. J. Percy.

Ald. Graham and Ald. Percy will assist Ald. Beduz on the harbor development committee.

Ministers Will Face Breakwater 'Whys'

CHEMAINUS — The $1,000,000 breakwater issue is not dead yet.

Liberal candidate in the Feb. 10 byelection, Eric Winch, and the Chemainus Chamber of Commerce will corner two federal ministers this month in a bid to reverse the recent Ottawa decision refusing the project.

They are public works minister Arthur Laing and fisheries minister Jack Davis. The chamber submitted its brief last summer.

Election Signs Stolen

NANAIMO — NDP election posters are being torn down in the greater Nanaimo area.

Six four-foot by eight-foot plywood signs have been removed from the downtown area together with at least 150 cardboard fence and lawn signs.

Joyce Nash, of Nanaimo, campaign manager for national leader T. C. Douglas, a candidate in the Feb. 10 Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands byelection, said she had not had any reports of missing signs in other parts of the riding.

Mrs. Nash stressed that she did not believe that any of the other parties were involved in the vandalism.

She said that one or two of the large signs were taken from the tops of downtown flatroof buildings. In the Townsite Plaza district, workers had replaced 50 signs at least twice.

Frank Crane of Nanaimo, campaign manager for Liberal candidate Eric Winch called the thefts "poor ball."

He said an agreement among all parties would negate any thoughts that opposing factions were responsible.

George Nosky, manager for Magnus Verbrugge, Conservative candidate, agreed with that opposing parties were not responsible.

Cowichan School Board

Chairman Urges Loyalty

DUNCAN — Loyalty was stressed Thursday evening when Bruce Devitt, newly-elected chairman of Cowichan School board, spoke to trustees.

"Committees are fact-finding, but the board makes the legislative and administrative decisions.

"While trustees may not agree with the board's decision, there is a certain amount of loyalty to the board. Trustees have to uphold the board's decision."

It is the second term as trustee for Mr. Devitt who is a forester with the Duncan forest service.

Trustee Terry Taylor, principal of Yount Elementary school, Youbou, is vice-chairman.

A letter from Dr. Roy Macmillan, acting chairman of Malaspina regional college council raised an objection.

Dr. Macmillan asked that the area's college representative should be released from committee work to enable him to devote time to college work.

I find the letter impertinent to our nominee and impertinent to the board, that it is insinuating we don't know what we are doing. Our representative has put a lot of work into the college," said trustee A. I. MacDonald.

"I don't believe that is how it was meant," said Mr. Devitt.

Trustee MacDonald replied: "That's how it reads to me."

The representative to the college council, trustee Dick Christmas was appointed to two committees — education and salary.

A letter was received from Campbell River school board advising that it was not entering into the regional college at present. It was willing to share the cost of having an expert opinion on the feasibility of a college in the area, said the letter.

Crofton Community Centre Society has offered the use of the community hall in Crofton to the school board for physical education for Crofton elementary school.

At the moment the children do not have any facilities.

Trustee Jack Efford said; "I would like to see the offer accepted."

The board agreed to investigate the offer.

Gold River

Snowy Roads Pose Problem

GOLD RIVER — Gold River snow clearing crews have a problem. The town's roads are becoming narrower.

So much snow has fallen in the area that, as it is piled at the side of the roads, it is gradually cutting down the width of the pavement.

To add to the problem, people are parking their cars at the sides of the road, reducing the remaining space.

SNOW BLOWER

The town's works department has considered borrowing a highways department grader but that would mean result in piles of snow, about 10-foot high, blocking residents' driveways, said an official.

The department is hoping to obtain a snow blower, but all the blowers available on the Island are being used.

Crews cleared fire hydrants Thursday. Flags have been planted above the hydrants so that they can be easily located.

URBAN SNOW

According to unofficial highways departments estimates, about 72 inches of snow fell in the urban area between Dec. 1 and Thursday.

Snow was falling throughout Thursday and at Camp 10, about nine miles from Gold River on the Campbell River Road, there had been about 142 inches, it was reported.

Police said there had not been any major accidents reported along the Campbell River road.

CLINIC CANCELLED

A spokesman said there were eight to nine foot piles of snow along the road-sides which prevented motorists from going off the road.

Because travelling conditions were bad, the Kinettes' blood clinic, scheduled for Thursday, was cancelled.

NEW ALDERMEN Les Cartwright, Gar Westlake and Tom Ellwood are congratulated by Mayor Bruce Chisholm, left, as they attend first Gold River council meeting of year.—(Betty Macmillan)

Study Suggested

Airstrip Request Backed By Gold River Aldermen

GOLD RIVER — Gold River council suggested this week that the department of transport should make a feasibility study covering provision of an airstrip for the town.

Aldermen approved the idea in principle after a letter was received from William Heck of Gold River asking council to write to the department supporting his request for an airstrip.

However Mayor Bruce Chisholm said that Trans-Mountain Airlines investigated the possibility of an airstrip for the town some time ago.

SPACE PROBLEM

He said the problem was space. The only alternative to using municipally-owned land was using tree farm licence land.

A congratulatory letter was received from Gold River and District Chamber of Commerce which offered its assistance to council whenever necessary.

Council will thank the chamber for its interest and decided to send a copy of council's minutes to the chamber after each meeting.

HELP REQUEST

Chamber members will also be invited to attend council meetings.

A request for assistance was received from the Vancouver Island chapter of the Children's International Summer Village.

The letter was referred to a committee which will submit a report on whether a donation should be made and the amount.

Council accepted a provisional budget of $1,034,717, of which, said Norman Paulson, municipal clerk, $623,959 represented education costs.

A temporary loan bylaw has been passed, authorizing council to borrow $685,000, at not more than 6% per cent interest, until taxes are collected.

Mayor Chisholm and six aldermen were sworn in to office by Magistrate Alfred Harvey.

Council appointments included: recreation commission, Ald. Tom Ellwood; director, Comox-Strathcona Regional District, Ald. Bill Ford, alternate directors, Ald. Les Cartwright and Ald. Ellwood; Upper Island Board of Health, Ald. Mae Stewart; chamber of commerce, Ald. Gar Westlake and Ald. Tom Lampard; regional library board, Mrs. Roberta Feely.

COMMITTEES NAMED

The following committees were appointed, with additional appointments to be made when needed: health and welfare, Ald. Stewart, chairman, D. R. Cornish; finance, Ald. Les Cartwright, chairman, Mr. Paulson, Jack Copland and Clare Stoney; expansion Ald. Lampard, chairman, Ald. Westlake; works and services, Ald. Westlake, Larry Benoche; recreation, library and parks, Ald. Ellwood, chairman, Ald. Les Cartwright, Mrs. Feely, Rev. David McKay and Mr. Benoche; court of revision, Ald. Lampard, Ald. Stewart, Ald. Westlake and Ald. Cartwright.

The recreation commission will be appointed after Ald. Ellwood presents recommendations.

'GOOD' WAY

Discussing the appointments later, Mr. Paulson said: "Not too many municipalities appoint people other than aldermen to their committees but we have found that it is a good way to get members of the community involved and interested in civic affairs."

Cowichan Valley Area

Mail Delivery Goes for Study

DUNCAN — Cowichan Valley regional district board's planning committee is to study a suggestion for house-to-house mail delivery in part of the unorganized area south of Duncan.

The idea is being considered by Duncan post office.

Duncan postmaster Bob Carney said Thursday that houses would have to be numbered before his office could make a survey to determine whether a mail carrier service would be advisable.

FIREMEN HELPED

He told the board, in a letter, that the plan would cover businesses along the Trans-Canada Highway, south of the Silver Bridge, along to Allenby Road, Old Koksilah Road to the junction with Miller Road and the along Miller Road in the subdivision area near Mountain View Crescent.

He said a delivery service was established in an unorganized area north of Nanaimo and the volunteer fire department helped to devise a house numbering system.

Mr. Corney said that although it would take about two years before delivery could start, it would be "highly desirable" to have a house numbering system similar to those at Duncan and North Cowichan.

FUTURE SYSTEM

Ken McKinnon of Cowichan Bay said the fire department at Cowichan Bay would like to have a numbering system.

H. A. Warner, of Mill Bay, planning committee chairman, suggested that the whole unorganized area could be taken into a future numbering system.

It was decided to study an application for funds from the transport department and hold discussions with Cowichan Airport Society before taking the next step toward establishing a new airport in the Glenora area.

A detailed application form for funds from the department of transport will be studied and all aspects will be discussed with members of the Cowichan airport society before the regional board will take the next step towards establishment of a new airport in the Glenora area.

AIRPORT CARE

After hearing that the proposed airport's maintenance would become a responsibility of the board, some of the directors expressed reluctance. But Ald. John Cannon of North Cowichan said the board serves as the public body without which an airport would not be possible.

He pointed out that the society would take on the physical responsibility for the airport.

The department told the board that although the department's policy is under review, and that certain changes could be expected, the regional board should submit the application for funds soon.

The letter explained that maintenance would entail painting of runway markers, looking after the runway, grass cutting — but not including extensive snow removal.

INCINERATOR PLAN

The board's garbage committee will speed up its studies regarding an incinerator for the district after Ald. Cannon said that North Cowichan was making financial provision for an incinerator in this year's budget.

He said the municipality had been under pressure for some time and the time element was of great importance.

North Cowichan has four open garbage dumps and $100,000 has been included in the 1969 budget.

Ald. Cannon repeated that North Cowichan was interested in co-operating with the regional district. Ald. Jim Moore of Ladysmith, garbage committee chairman, said Ladysmith was close to signing a one-year contract for garbage pickup and disposal with a private firm.

He added that it was only for one year and "the town would like to see an incinerator. I am quite sure."

David Laverock of Shawnigan Lake criticized North Cowichan for not being flexible enough in the matter. He noted that Shawnigan Lake had also spent money for the preparation of a garbage land-fill system.

He said: "We are in a similar situation as North Cowichan but in a more flexible manner. We want an incinerator."

Ald. Jim Saunders wanted to know whether North Cowichan would take part in the regional incinerator plan because it would make a considerable difference for the regional district if the municipality decided to have its own incinerator.

Ald. Cannon replied that, as a delegate to the regional board, he could only convey the feeling of his council and did not have the prerogative to make decisions by himself.

Mink Disease Reduces Production

Story and Picture By DONNA CLEMENTS

COBBLE HILL — Because of an incurable virus, mink pelt production has dropped considerably, says Lorne Combs, a Cobble Hill mink farmer.

"A mink is subject to all diseases. When they are born I gave them distemper and botulism shots but this disease has really got a foothold," he said.

"All mink farmers are concerned with this matter. It is a blood disease called plasma sytosis and they havent been able to culture the virus. Therefore there is no vaccine available. It is transferable and stable — hard to get rid of.

BLOOD TESTS

"In the spring and pelting season I give blood tests and any minks that have the disease are killed. One redeeming factor is that I raise dark minks, the most popular, and they are less susceptible to the disease than the lighter species."

Mink farming is the full time occupation of Mr. Combs. He has been in the business for 17 years. He was first a partner with his father and brother in Saanich and for the past five years has been in Cobble Hill. The only other mink farmer in the area is his brother Lawrence at Cowichan Station.

"Mink farming is quite a risky crop, and it certainly isn't anything for a novice to attempt — I guess it's the same in any business," he said. "I enjoy my job. The main downfall is I am tied to it and have difficulty having holidays. I work an average of 55 to 60 hours a week."

Mr. Combs has 500 breeder females and 100 males.

He said the March mating season is the busiest time of the year.

AUCTION SALE

"It lasts approximately three weeks and I have to do everything myself. It involves skinning, taking the fat off the hides, and drying them. The pelts will keep until they are tanned. All pelts are sold at auction houses where they are lotted together for color, quality and size. I take mine to Seattle to see how they are graded."

Minks are expensive to feed because they need special food. Feed alone costs an average of $9 to put a pelt on the market, he said.

Mr. Combs said the minks are tough little animals and have weathered the snow and cold well so far. "I added extra fat to their diet and gave them hay in their cages to snuggle into."

Emergency Bylaw Orders Fire Services for Sidney

Sidney council Wednesday afternoon held a special meeting to initiate a bylaw to provide fire protection in the present emergency.

The 22 members of the North Saanich and Sidney volunteer fire department have resigned, effective Jan. 31.

The men are demanding appointment of the present volunteer chief, Hugh Loney, as paid chief of the department. They say this step is necessary to provide for the safety of 6,000 persons in the municipality of North Saanich and Sidney.

Wednesday's bylaw, No. 341, would declare an emergency and establish a Sidney fire department, with Mr. Loney as its chief, made up of present members of the volunteer department. It makes no mention of pay.

The bylaw was given two readings and was then referred to committee for study. It was also referred to the municipal affairs department for "legal acceptance."

The bylaw provides that if passed it will become effective unless the resignations are rescinded, and will remain in force only until an agreement is reached with the firemen.

Demand Increasing

UVic's Senate In Favor Of Law School

By BILL STAVDAL

Creation of a law school at the University of Victoria was approved in principle Wednesday by the university senate.

Demand for training in law is increasing rapidly and will soon exceed the capacity of the province's only law faculty at the University of British Columbia, the senate was told in a two-year study presented Wednesday.

The senate motion calls for establishment of a faculty of law not earlier than the 1970-71 academic year. The resolution must go to the university board of governors, which administers finances.

Also involved is the B.C. Bar Association, which controls law training.

The move for a law school stems from a brief to the senate by the Victoria Bar Association in October, 1966. A senate committee headed by Professor Ronald Cheffins subsequently studied the matter and prepared the report submitted Wednesday.

Initial opposition by the law faculty at UBC has evaporated, said the Cheffins report. Two years ago the UBC law group estimated that it would not reach capacity enrolment for "many years."

The UBC law school predicted that enrolment would reach 400 in the fall of 1968, but actual enrolment was 491, the Cheffins report noted.

UBC law enrolment by 1973-74 would be 975, far above the 495 forecast two years ago.

Last September the UBC senate fixed 700 as the enrolment limit at its law school, causing "a considerable change of opinion" among lawyers who had opposed creation of a second B.C. law school, said the Cheffins report.

The legal education committee of the B.C. section of the Canadian Bar Association reversed its previous stand and unanimously expressed approval in principle for a second B.C. law school, said the report.

"This committee has no doubt whatever that the need for a second law school in the province of British Columbia not only can be denied, but is a need which the province must quickly satisfy if a complete breakdown of existing facilities is to be avoided," the report said.

"The question is no longer whether there is a need for a second law school, but how soon a second law school can be established . . ."

A survey of 260 students by the UVic Pre-Law Society found 79 students who wanted to attend law school and expected to do so elsewhere.

In other business, the senate expressed concern over delays in construction of new buildings on campus. The proposed biology building, originally scheduled for completion by September, 1969, is now tentatively scheduled for opening a year later, said campus planning committee chairman Dr. John Dewey.

A chemistry building is set for September, 1970, but this date "may be very optimistic," said Dr. Dewey. The physical education centre, estimated to cost about $2,400,000, is planned for opening by Christmas of 1970, he added.

Dr. Gordon Fields, head of the biology department, expressed "dismay" with the architectural firm of Erickson Massey for postponements of its target dates for completion of the biology building.

Hong Kong Flu Cases Pinpointed

Two cases of Hong Kong flu were diagnosed at St. Joseph's Hospital during December, the hospital announced Wednesday.

The December statistics show two cases definitely diagnosed as Hong Kong flu in December and also 28 admissions where the patient's illness was described as "possible complication of Hong Kong flu."

There were also 13 admissions for other kinds of influenza and 64 admissions where the sickness was diagnosed as pneumonia.

Staff absenteeism at the hospital was 350 during December, which hospital officials described as an all-time high.

Saigon Freeing 10 Viet Cong

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnam freed 10 Viet Cong prisoners as a "humanitarian gesture" and said it would release many more as a psychological warfare ploy to encourage Viet Cong to defect.

The 10 prisoners, mostly young men in their 20s, were given civilian clothes and about $6 in pocket money at a ceremony attended by members of the international committee of the Red Cross. Then they were driven to a nearby bus stop.

Marijuana Penalty Easing Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government plans legislation, in the session of Parliament resuming Tuesday, to lighten the penalty for first-offender marijuana users, informants say.

The bill could be introduced by Justice Minister John Turner within a month or two. No change is contemplated in stiff penalties for those who sell marijuana.

Present law requires that any person found illegally in possession of an illegal drug be sentenced to a minimum six months in jail. The maximum sentence is up to seven years.

WITH OPIUM

The law states that courts have no power to impose "less than the minimum penalty" for such offences.

It lists marijuana along with such other drugs as opium and cocaine.

The bulk of the known legislative program was forecast at the Sept. 12 opening of the 28th Parliament. And most of that was a hangover from the pre-Trudeau era of Lester Pearson.

42 STILL TO GO

Of the 52 pieces of legislation forecast at the opening or introduced later, 10 gained parliamentary approval, leaving 42 to be dealt with by MPs who broke Dec. 20 for the Christmas recess.

The government is expected to assign high priority to the drug bill aimed at reducing prices through more onen competition and the omnibus Criminal Code bill relaxing restrictions on abortion and homosexuality, among other things.

Some tax increases arising from the Oct. 22 fall budget have yet to be approved by Parliament. The government may add to the legislation items including housing amendments arising from the fall inquiry headed by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

Rhodesia Stand

British Won't Budge

● Canada will remain in NATO for year at least. Page 12.

LONDON (CP) — African delegates to the Commonwealth conference Thursday renewed their criticism of Brtish policy on Rhodesia but without the loud bitterness they showed at the last such meeting two years ago..

The British stuck to their established position on the thorny issue and insisted that sanctions rather than force are the key to toppling the rebel Rhodesian government of Ian Smith.

Prime Minister Trudeau backed the principle of no independence for Rhodesia before majority African rule—Nibmar—as theoretically and morally the best solution.

NO GUARANTEE

He also termed unacceptable the proposals made to Smith by Britain aboard HMS Fearless last year because, he said, they contained no real guarantee of majority rule.

But Trudeau added that if Nibmar proved impossible there must be a search for a solution which works. He rejected use of military force in Rhodesia.

The Canadian leader said Canada would object to any alternative to Nibmar which does not contain a guarantee of African majority rule.

Canadian Arnold Smith, Commonwealth secretary-general, told reporters after the Thursday session that there had been

Judy Admits Trudeau Good Prime Minister

TORONTO (UPI) — Former secretary of state Judy LaMarsh, who has often feuded publicly with Prime Minister Trudeau, conceded Thursday night that he was a "pretty good prime minister."

Miss LaMarsh said in a television interview that her former boss, Lester Pearson, was "too permissive" to be a good government leader. She said members of Pearson's cabinet "loved him and would do anything for him" but did not universally respect him as a leader.

She said Trudeau, on the other hand, was a good leader because he was "a bit of a bastard."

"In my view," she added, "Mr. Trudeau ought to be happy that he has this qualification.

"As a matter of fact," she said, "I think he's a pretty good prime minister."

Unidentified man runs to car driving astronauts, Vice-President Humphrey

'It Really Is a Small Planet'

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson, paying tribute to the Apollo 8 astronauts, said Thursday they "represented all mankind" in their historic voyage around the moon.

The space trio received medals from the president in a White House ceremony and standing ovations from a joint meeting of Congress where Col. Frank Borman described the Apollo mission as a "triumph of mankind."

The astronauts go to New York today for a traditional ticker tape parade reserved for heroes.

SERVICE MEDAL

Johnson decorated Borman, Capt. James A. Lovell, Jr., and Lt.-Col. William A. Anders with the Distinguished Service Medal of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

He called them "history's boldest explorers" and said they had "blazed a new trail for mankind out into the vastness of extra-terrestrial space."

From the White House, the astronauts motored to the House of Representatives where members of the Senate and House, the cabinet and the Supreme Court cheered the smiling astronauts.

BRAVE LADS

House Speaker John W. McCormack, introduced them as "three brave lads who have made a notable contribution to our understanding of the exploration of space."

Borman, speaking for his fellow Apollo 8 crew members, said they had often been asked what was the most unforgettable impression of their flight.

He said: "I think the one overwhelming emotion that we had was when we saw the earth

Three Men Chosen For Moon Landing

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. space agency Thursday named astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin A. Aldrin to the Apollo 11 crew—the American team that will have the first chance of landing on the moon.

Armstrong, a civilian, was named Apollo 11 commander. Collins, a U.S. Air Force lieutenant - colonel, was named command pilot and Aldrin, an air force colonel, was selected lunar module pilot.

If they make the historic moon landing trip, Armstrong and Aldrin would drop to the lunar surface in the lunar module while Collins circled the moon in the main Appollo ship.

All three are space veterans.

Armstrong commanded the nearly disastrous Gemini 8 flight in 1966, which he flew with Lt.-Col. David Scott.

Collins took a space walk on the Gemini 11 flight in 1966, and originally was assigned to the Apollo 8 moon orbit mission. But a spinal operation knocked him off that assignment last summer, and he was replaced by Capt. James A. Lovell Jr.

Aldrin took a space walk on Gemini 12, in which he flew with Lovell.

LEBANON PLANS CURB ON RAIDS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) —Premier-designate Rashid Karami said Thursday he will give Israel no excuse for attacking Lebanon. But Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan warned in Jerusalem that Arab guerrilla bases on Lebanese soil are open to assault.

Karami told a news conference that Israel is using guerrilla activities as a pretext for attacking its neighbors and added: "we will give them no pretext."

But he defended what he called the right of Palestinian guerrillas to defend their own land.

NO EXCUSE PROVIDED

"I do not think anyone can say that that is not their right," he said.

Asked whether Lebanon would permit Arab guerrillas to operate from its soil he said Beirut will not provide Israel an excuse for mounting an attack, but declared that no one can expect Lebanon to act as policemen for the Israelis.

INTOLERABLE

In Jerusalem, Dayan said Israel "cannot tolerate a situation whereby we are forbidden to hit the sabotage organizations across the border while they are permitted to operate against us."

"We regard each Arab government as responsible for the acts of these organizations, and we have the right to deal them blows in their own territory."

FORM GOVERNMENT

President Charles Helou of Lebanon asked the 47-year-old Karami to form a government to succeed that of Abdullah Yafi which resigned Tuesday as a result of Israel's unchallenged commando raid against Beirut International Airport Dec. 28.

Karami spent the day consulting with political leaders with a view to forming a government as widely representative as possible.

SEES NO CHANGE

Karami, who has served seven previous terms as Lebanon's premier, said he foresaw no change in the country's basic policy.

"I think it is wrong to say Lebanon is neutral in the Arab-Israeli conflict because the threat is against us as against all Arab states. Israel's policy is one of expansion and aggression."

WON'T COURT REPRISALS

Karami, who headed an Arab nationalist uprising here in 1958 which led to the landing of U.S. marines, has been regarded as more a hawk than Yafi.

His latest statement, however, suggested that while Lebanon would continue to give Arab guerrillas moral suport it would be unwilling to court reprisal raids by permitting them to use this country as a base.

French Slap

'Peace — And Money'

PARIS (CP) — Foreign Minister Michel Debre Thursday night attacked countries that he said are voting at the United Nations for peace in the Middle East with one hand, "while getting money, the product of their arms sales, with the other."

It was his explanation, in part, for France's decision to stop all arms shipments to Israel.

Debre also cited French interests as an important consideration, pointing to France's desire to maintain economic and cultural relations with Arab states.

He also said France believes that Israel has the right to exist, the right to security and the right to the normal guarantees of international law.

But he stressed: "If the

Recognition

Sweden Nods To Hanoi

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Neutral Sweden Friday will become the first West European nation to extend full diplomatic recognition to Communist North Vietnam, diplomatic sources said Thursday.

The decision, seen in some quarters here as an act of support for Hanoi and the Viet Cong at the stalemated Paris Vietnam talks, was expected to be taken officially at a cabinet meeting Friday.

North Vietnamese Premier Pha Van Dong told the Social Democratic Stockholm paper Aftonbladet in an interview earlier this week that Swedish recognition was "of great importance" to his government.

CONFIRMED

Sweden also maintains formal diplomatic relations with South Vietnam but no Swedish ambassador is currently accredited in Saigon.

The story of the reported Swedish decision was circulated by the usually well-informed Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter. A foreign ministry spokesman had no comment but it was confirmed by diplomatic sources in the capital.

The sources said Sweden's ambassador to Peking, Lennart Petri, is expected to be accredited as ambassador to Hanoi as well, pending the establishment of a Swedish diplomatic mission in the North Vietnamese capital.

While such a move would make Sweden the first nation in Western Europe to accord full diplomatic recognition to Hanoi, the French have a lower-ranking mission there and Britain also has a foreign office official serving in North Vietnam.

Packing Plant Blazes In 25-Below Weather

EDMONTON (CP) — A 5½-hour fire fought by a third of the 600 men in Edmonton's fire department severely damaged the five-storey Swift Canadian Company Limited meat-packing plant in the northeast part of the city Thursday.

Firemen were rotated in shifts so that they would not have to spend long periods out in the 25-below weather. The blaze was reported "out" at 9:25 p.m.

Third Hat in Ring

By IAN STREET

Robert Arthur Williams, a 35-year-old town planner from Vancouver, became the third MLA to toss his hat into the ring in the contest to elect a successor to Robert Strachan as provincial leader of the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Williams told a press conference here he could "happily live with" the choice of either of his fellow MLAs, Tom Berger and Dave Barrett, as party leader. But he added he had entered the race because only two candidates might lead to polarization of political thinking within the NDP.

"There is every likelihood that the delegates to the NDP convention this spring will not just be picking a leader of the opposition, but more likely we will be picking the future premier," he said.

"The choice for the delegates therefore must be as broad as possible and must not be limited for parochial or partisan reasons. That is one reason I am now in this race. I also think I can win — but winning is not enough. We must show those outside the

Bishop

University of Victoria Professor Roger Bishop slammed American teachers at Canadian universities Thursday for their part in current student unrest.

Prof. Bishop was keynote speaker at the annual meeting of the Corporation of B.C. Land Surveyors.

Describing his activist American colleagues, Prof. Bishop said "Perhaps the kindest thing one can say about such people is that they have been conditioned by the never-never land of American TV advertising, that they have actually come to believe that they never will have to put anything down and that they will always have five years to pay. Sufficient to say the Americans have come, they have seen and they have conquered our institutions.

"Where they have not been in an actual majority in a faculty, they have given leadership to substitute American ways of doing things for our traditional Canadian."

Power Shift

Prof. Bishop went on to discuss the alteration in the power structure at the University of Victoria brought about the influx of American teachers.

"In effect we operate now under an elective committee system, all faculty are equal, and though heads, deans and presidents are charged with pursuing quality, it is very difficult to see how anyone accepting office can take that very seriously since he has few if any powers left with which to coerce the careless. Can you wonder I resigned as a head and that since then many other heads have also given up?

"The seizure of power by the inexperienced majority of faculty has laid, in my opinion, these standards open to new pressures, the consequences of which we will only be able to explore as the years pass. And now the activist students want to obtain for themselves and their successors a place in the power structure of the university equivalent to that occupied by the faculty."

Naive View

Prof. Bishop said," I do not accuse the local activists, either faculty or students, of being part of a Communist takeover plot, but I do accuse them of having a naive view of human nature. I do accuse them of irresponsibly pursuing a course of conduct that threatens the worthwhileness of every degree given by our universities.

"I do accuse them of neglecting the main problem that threatens to overwhelm the quality of all work done in our B.C. universities. I mean the problem of headlong, unchecked expansion."

Prof. Bishop said he opposed rapid expansion. "The University of Victoria as a multiversity, as Victoria's colossal leading industry, may be a pleasing image to those who hope to make fat real estate profits, but every student and every faculty member who co-operates in the process is selling his intellectual birthright and betraying his profession."

He suggested as one solution to the problem of unrest the development of two-year junior colleges.

Colleges Vital

"If the British Columbia government is sincere in its concern for the quality of higher education, if it is really interested in preventing more campus unrest, then it must promote by every means in its power a diversification of two-year colleges throughout this province, and it must see that this is done without further delay," he said.

"Junior colleges have the great advantage of promoting close contact. At the present time, too, they would have, properly organized, the advantage of restoring a direct Canadian influence in our system of higher education.

"Mr. Trudeau is on record as saying that the biggest crisis Canada faces today is the French-English problem. I think he is wrong. In our dispute together, both French and English-speaking Canadians have forgotten that we live under the shadow of the American colossus. Some people are expressing dismay that so many of our companies are controlled from America.

Delivered Over

"It is about time they realized that all our education is being increasingly controlled from there, too. Long ago it was said, 'Give me a child at seven years and I will make him what I please.' We have given our children American texts, they watch American TV. One of the effects of incorporating our old normal school system into our universities has been to Americanize the training of our primary teachers. Now we have delivered our universities over to American influence."

Prof. Bishop concluded by saying that if the expansion program was not slowed the university would become in the words of T. S. Eliot, a "shape without form, a shade without color, a paralyzed force, a gesture without emotion."

"Our precipitate rush into the abyss of the faceless, mechanical multiversity has been accelerated."

Faculty Members Deny UVic Americanization

The acting president of the University of Victoria and two faculty members disagreed Thursday with claims by Professor Roger Bishop that UVic has been Americanized by U.S. teachers and that standards are in danger of lowering because of speedy growth.

"It seems to me that the university must continue to try to attract the best it can get, regardless of country or origin," said Dean Robert Wallace, acting president.

"Canadian universities are striving to fill the need and progress is being made."

"This university, like every other, hires the best people it can," said Dr. Harry Scargill, dean of graduate studies and head of the linguistics department.

"Less than one-third of our faculty are from the States."

Dr. James E. Hendrickson, professor of history and university faculty association chairman, commented:

"I don't think there is any merit in the suggestion that new faculty are not well-prepared. It's quite evident that in the past three years the quality of faculty has improved."

"I'm not aware that we are being inundated by Americans," said Dr. Hendrickson. He added that the character of the institution will change somewhat no matter where new faculty come from.

Many new faculty are from the United Kingdom, he added.

There are now more than 300 faculty members at UVic. The university has just hired an American president, Dr. Bruce Partridge, who takes office next summer.

"There was no reference to where he came from," said Dr. Scargill, speaking of Dr. Partridge.

"Education is a world affair."

Confusing Names Studied

By DESMOND BILL

Pity poor postmen!

They get a letter addressed to someone on McKenzie. In that McKenzie Street in Victoria or McKenzie Avenue in Saanich?

Or the letter is for an address on Parkland. But is it Parkland Drive in Esquimalt or Parkland Street in Sooke?

Or Agnes Street. Which one? There is one in Saanich and another in Esquimalt.

COURT OR ROAD

Or should a letter go to Bryden Court or Brydon Road?

The similarity of names of thoroughfares in the region causes confusion every day, and not only to mailmen. But finally something is being done about it.

Capital Region Planning Board has made a study of the problem at the request of Saanich council, and recommendations to solve it will be made at a board meeting later this month.

GRADUAL THING

No one expects any immediate action to change the situation; it is something that can only come about gradually. But it is hoped that at least the report will stop any further spread of confusion.

However, any move to change an existing street name is likely to run into trouble from people who live on the street.

Planning Now for Next Year

UVic CUSO Leader On Per Capita Basis

By DON GAIN

The University of Victoria last year sent overseas more CUSO volunteers per capita of enrolment than any other university in Canada.

"We sent 22 volunteers to African countries, South America, the Caribbean and Asia," said Dr. Kenneth Moss, assistant professor of chemistry, who is chairman of the selection committees.

"We are beginning to interview people now for next year," he said, "and will be doing so until April or May."

VARIETY OF SKILLS

He said anybody who wanted information on CUSO could get it from Mrs. Diana Caleb in Hut M at the university.

CUSO — Canadian University Service Overseas — needs people with a wide variety of qualifications, he said.

"We're looking for people with skills," the professor said. "Skills to use to teach or to run a project."

GREAT DEMAND

He mentioned teachers, engineers, agriculturists, X-ray technicians, social workers, foresters, physiotherapists.

"We also need welders, electricians, carpenters, not to mention nurses, doctors and veterinarians, who are in great demand."

The volunteer may be almost any age, as long as he or she is healthy. Married couples are acceptable if both are skilled and can work as a team, or if they can be placed in jobs near each other.

SAME PAY SCALE

The volunteer is employed by the country he goes to and is paid exactly the same rate as a person of that country in the same job.

"This usually means a much lower standard of living," Dr. Moss said. "They are not allowed cars unless the job specifically calls for it."

When the volunteer returns, after a two-year stint, some financial help may be forthcoming because there is not much chance of saving money. Aid in settling back into life in Canada and in getting employment is also given.

ORIENTATION

There are orientation courses of about four weeks, half in Canada and half in the country to which the volunteer is assigned. In Canada the courses are given in Vancouver, London, Montreal and Antigonish.

In the overseas country, instruction is given in social, religious and cultural attitudes.

Dr. Peter Smith, chairman of classics at UVic and chairman of the CUSO committee last year, said the organization predates the Peace Corps in the U.S.

He said, however, that CUSO never became identified with foreign policy in any way.

"It's a private organization," he said, "and the countries know that the volunteers don't have any axe to grind."

"I feel that we at UVic are specially involved with CUSO. Mrs. Shirley Baker, co-ordinator of women's activities, went to East Africa last fall as supervisor of CUSO operations there. She is now living in Dar-es-Salaam, Tanzania."

Strong Possibility:

Weekend a White One

By DON COLLINS

Caught in the confusion of conflicting weather reports, Victorians may be preparing for the weekend with raincoats, umbrellas, snowshoes and toboggans.

Latest word from the Victoria weather office:

That snow you were told to expect, then not to expect, may be on its way after all — possibly not as much as forecast and not as soon.

GOOD LIKELIHOOD

The weatherman says there is a good likelihood of four to five inches of snow spread over Saturday and Sunday as the mercury dips to the high twenties.

First forecasts had indicated six to nine inches of snow before the weekend with another Arctic freeze. A change in the weather pattern prompted a new forecast Wednesday night. There was to be no snow after all.

By Thursday this was reported to have been based on a Vancouver forecast by mistake. The snow and cold would still come by Friday.

That forecast remained unchanged for several hours. Then came word that there might be a little less snow, a day later.

All of which, a harassed Victoria weatherman will tell you, is subject to change. There is a strong possibility of snow. But it is not a certainty.

Strikers Promise Roaming Pickets

Victoria's ministrike, which started after a government-supervised vote by three workers, was to add its latest frill today — roaming pickets.

Teamsters Union representative Jim Scott of Vancouver said Thursday night six pickets (only eight persons are on strike) would carry placards outside Greater Victoria stores doing business with Hy Fidelity Photos.

The Teamsters say Hy Fidelity is really just another name being used for Mortifee Munshaw Ltd., 750 Discovery. An unsuccessful attempt to bring about a first contract led to the strike Nov. 27.

The union had planned earlier to shadow company film delivery cars with cars of its own so that the delivery cars could be picketed each time they stopped.

But this fell through, according to Mr. Scott, when the company added a second man to each car. The second man kept the car circling the block while the first picked up or delivered film.

Mystery Copter Calls To City Pad in Dark

A mystery helicopter landed at Victoria Heliport after dark Thursday night and took off again, apparently before anyone was able to identify it.

The heliport is not equipped with lights for night landings.

Victoria police, alerted of the intended landing, sent a car to the scene to provide light. But the craft was gone by the time the car arrived.

A police officer said a check with Garden City Ambulance would probably disclose that the helicopter had made a mercy flight.

A spokesman for the company said no ambulance had been requested and suggested the craft had possibly been making a practice landing.

A search and rescue military helicopter landed during the evening at Patricia Bay airport, but a control tower official said no mention had been made of either a landing or intended landing in Victoria.

Military spokesmen at Comox air base said they knew of no such landing.

Victoria Takes Over Ambulance Run

Victoria council decided Thursday to take over the emergency ambulance service in the city and have it operated by the fire department.

The present private operator, Garden City Ambulance, indicated late last year it was in financial difficulties and could not maintain service without going bankrupt.

Garden City Ambulance again bid for the job when it came up for tender, and its cost of $173,750 was lower than the $184,416 estimate of the fire department.

But City Manager Dennis Young said the company's bid was no more realistic than the low bid by which it won the last tender and which forced the company into difficulties.

Two other private companies bid $270,000 and $313,431 for the job. Mr. Young said their tenders were probably closer to the cost that would be incurred by private operators who have overhead expenses not incurred by the fire department.

The municipal operation will mean the fire department has to hire eight extra men to handle around-the-clock service, and will also have to buy a new ambulance.
